GONE BACK HOME

The Jackson family has gone back home. Within itself, the above announcement expresses little interest, but, Mr. Ephraim Jackson, wife and J. C. their four year old son, were victims of the Maplesville hotel fire sometime ago.

Finding themselves entrapped by the flames about two o'clock in the morning they made a desperate effort to reach safety. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson were horribly burned and the young son's arm was broken near the shoulder. The victims of the fire were brought in by Mell Martin's ambulance and placed in the Central Alabama Hospital where everything that is known to medical science was done to allay suffering and to hasten recovery. That Mr. and Mrs. Jackson recovered is pronounced a miracle.

Rehearsal of that part of the story concerning escape from the flames, suffering the loss of all earthly possessions, anticipations of begining life over is enough to awaken sympathy in the most calloused heart. But the spontaneity with which Chilton County citizens materially expressed their sympathy for these unfortunate people is characteristic of our citizens. Many gifts were made the Jacksons by citizens of Maplesville and of Clanton. Their various expenses were met by our men.

Apparently none the worse off on account of their recent experience, the Jackson family, surronded by new-made friends left on last Friday morning for their former home in Augusta, Georgia.

Friday night Mr. Stapp will meet with the farmers of Baker school community at the Baker school house.

TWO UNUSUAL EGGS DURING THE PAST WEEK

Will wonders never cease? It looks like they will not, so far as the egg department is concerned. During the past week The Union-Banner has received two that outclass anything heretofore seen in the matter of curious shape. One of them was brought by Walter Pool from the farm of Rev. W. S. Cox. It is an extra large egg with the addition of a tail. We suppose it was laid at night as the old hen watched the passing of a comet or a shooting star.

Mrs. C. N. Henley brought in a very small egg which was also a somewhat drawn out affair. It is the shape of a gourd with a handle on it. "Can you beat that?" asked Mrs. Henley as she unwrapped her curious little egg. "Yes, I think we can," she was told. We went and got the big egg with the tail on it, and she admitted that her little egg was outclassed before it got here.

Clanton Motors Now In The New Building

Formal Opening Will Be Held Sometime During Present Month

Clanton Motors, local Ford dealers, are now occupying their permanent new home at the corner of 3rd Ave., and 7th St. Although the new building is not yet complete, it was possible for the building to be occupied on October the first. Workmen are busy all over the place putting on the finishing touches, and the decks will be cleared for action some time this month.

Mr. J. C. Bowen, manager of the firm, states that when the new home is finally completed and every detail has been put in place, he will have a formal opening at which the public will be invited to come for a day and be the guests of Clanton Motors.

There are many nice things we would like to say about Clanton Motors and their new building, but we will withold further comment until the building is completed and ready for the inspection of the public.

May We Present.—

Culture and refinement are two of the most beautiful traits a woman can possess. You will be impressed with this fact when you meet Mrs. Tabb the teacher of the third grade at the grammar school. Mrs. Tabb was reared in Kentucky where she graduated at Rogers Collegiate School at Mt. Sterling. She also attended Hamilton College at Lexington, Kentucky. As our own delightful state attracts a number of people from other states so it has attracted Mrs. Tabb who now makes her home at Demopolis, Alabama. In 1925-26 Mrs. Tabb taught expression in a school in that little city. Mr. J. W. Watt, principal of the city school recommends her highly as being a splendid instructor and organizer. Mrs. Tabb has attended Livingston Nomal School and her ability as an elementary and junior high school teacher is recognized by Dr. G. W. Brock, President of Livingston Normal School, who also recommends her very highly to us. He states that her ability and efficiency are above the average. It is a pleasure to meet a person of Mrs. Tabb's personaity. She is very adaptable and has wonderful force of character. She is the mother of three children, 2 girls and 1 boy. One of her daughters who attended Columbia University last year is a teacher at her mother's and grandmother's Alma Mater, Hamilton College. The other daughter is attending W. of A. It will be interesting to the mothers to know that Mrs. Tabb will instruct their children with a mother's understanding and patience.

The church is now domiciled in one of the most commedious houses of worship in the South, and is one of the most up-to-date and complete in every way. It is located hard-by Howard College and the place where most of the faculty and students worship.

The meeting place being in one of the greatest cities of the South with an abundance of natural resources, and in the midst of a great Baptist center, and the home of one of our historic Baptist Schools, should bring a great number of Baptists to the meeting this year. It is hoped that every Baptist church and every Baptist Association in the state will be represented. You will hear something of the program later.

RED MEN AND WIVES ENJOY BANQUET TUESDAY NIGHT

The members of Waxahatchie Tribe No. 9, Improved order of Red Men, about fifty in number, together with as many of their wives and friends, enjoyed a banquet and special social gathering Tuesday night. This was a most enjoyable occasion, the first of its kind that has been attempted by Red Men in this section for a long time; but to say that it was a huge success is only putting it mildly.

The gathering assembled in the Red Men Hall at eight o'clock and enjoyed an address by Sachem, W. J. Armstrong concerning the work and purpose of the Red Men.

After the address the members and their visitors and friends were taken in charge by the entertainment committee and conducted to the Dixie Cafe where a most sumptous banquet table was awaiting them.

Everybody enjoyed the supper and were well pleased with the excellent manner in which the Cafe handled the crowd.

CONCORD HAD GOOD SINGING ON LAST SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Sunday school was held as usual last Sunday morning followed by preaching at 11 o'clock by the pastor. Both services were well attended.

The singing in the afternoon was the best we have had in some time. A large crowd of singers were present as well as a long list of directors, and everyone seemed interested in the service. The following directed: S. V. Miller, W. M. Devaughn, W. F. Gilliland, Rube Miller, J. E. Miner, S. L. Baker, W. L. Miner, O. L. Devaughn, O. R. Robinson, and Melvin Miner. The closing song was sung by Prof. W. M. Devaughn. Organists for the afternoon were Mrs. Amie Robinson, and Mr. Tommie Mims. Closed with prayer by J. E. Miner.

We were glad to have all visitors and extend them a cordial invitation to come and be with us every first Sunday afternoon.—S. V. Miller.

TWO STILLS DESTROYED TUESDAY MORNING

Two big zinc stills were destroyed by Sheriff Collins and his deputies Tuesday morning near the Eli Guin place in Stumps Hills. The stills contained about 600 gallons of beer. They were not in operation and no arrests were made in connection with the raid.

TAKEN OUT OF SERVICE

100 Miles of Equipment

In order to deliver to the American people the finest freight and passenger service in all the world, the great steam railroads of this country must keep their physical equipment in finest condition. Looking to the public's comfort and to the saving of its time, American railroads each year take out of their service large quantities of freight and passenger cars and locomotives, which have been rendered inefficient due to damage and the natural causes of wear and tear.

In the year 1925, more than 2,900 locomotives were scrapped; and 3,500 passenger cars and 133,500 freight cars found their way to the shops for demolishing. This equipment was, of course, replaced with newer, more modern locomotives and cars, there being a substantial increase in the number of freight cars purchased. If all of the locomotives, freight and passenger cars retired during the year 1925 were coupled together, they would make a train approximately 100 miles in length, or about the distance between Cincinnati and Louisville.

During the year 1926 the L. & N. R. R. took out of its service 33 engines, 3,000 freight cars and 10 passenger cars; authorizations and expenditures for new equipment in 1926 totaled $16,300,000.

"What is that anyway?" asked Mary.

John stood studying it a few moments.

"It's a parking space," he replied.

FARM ECHOES FROM THE BIRMINGHAM FAIR

Visitors at the State Fair in Birmingham, September 26 to October 1, were impressed with the quality and also the quantity of agricultural exhibits. The general agricultural displays were said by the judges to be among the best ever shown at the Birmingham Fair, and visitors thronged the agricultural building to see these displays.

As usual, the livestock attracted unusual attention. From early morning until late at night the livestock buildings were thronged with people viewing and admiring the animals.

The display of dairy cows attracted most attention in the livestock group. It was the outstanding feature of the livestock division, and Jerseys were outstanding among the dairy breeds. Those who have been connected with the fair for many years say that the Jersey show was decidedly the best ever seen at Birmingham. Guernsey and Holstein shows were good but not up to the Jersey, because Alabama is essentially a Jersey state.

The beef cattle show was also the best ever seen at a Birmingham Fair. The Angus display was especially good. Those in charge of this department said that it was by far the best Angus show yet staged in Birmingham, and the best yet seen at a southern fair.

The hog show was not in line with interest in hogs in the state. Poultry as a whole was about the same. Rhode Island reds made an excellent showing.

The livestock show was another demonstration of the fact that livestock have established themselves as a permanent part of farming in Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Neeley of the Enterprise community spent Saturday in Clanton.

ALABAMA CORN IS GOING TO MARKET

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 3.—Following cotton picking, corn is now being gathered in Alabama and some of it is going to market, according to reports received by J. D. Moore, extension marketing specialist, Auburn. As usual, a very large portion of it will be consumed on the farms where it is produced.

Investigating conditions in which Alabama corn is arriving at the markets, Mr. Moore found that much of it is not mature and that this is causing complaints by the buyers. For this reason he is suggesting that selling corn where there is a surplus be delayed until it is as mature as the buyers want it. He said also that there is danger of over selling this fall and having to buy at a higher price next spring.

In Birmingham there is a weekly market of two to three carloads of ear corn. The demand for corn shelled, graded, and sacked in two-bushel sacks is said by Dr. M. F. Jackson, of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, to be all that Alabama farmers will supply. The Cosby-Hodges Milling Company uses 2000 to 3000 bushels of yellow corn each week in their poultry feeds.

Another complaint concerns corn weevils. Farmers in south Alabama are well acquainted with weevils and buyers in Birmingham and elsewhere object to taking weevil corn. If it is harvested early and then fumigated weevils will be destroyed. This makes it marketable and also prevents severe injury for feeding at home.

THORSBY SECTION

(E. E. NORTON, Manager).

Thorsby Institute has sold to Mr. Leonard Hayes for $4,000, their property lying east of the railroad in Thorsby. The tract comprises about two acres of land, a cottage two bored wells more than 100 feet deep, one 4-inch and the other 6-inch, together with a water tank ond tower which for the past twenty five years has been a principal landmark in Thorsby.

This was by no means a forced sale on the part of the Thorsby Institute, but is in line with a policy adopted by the Institute to have all of their holdings concentrated west of the railroad and highway, eliminating, at least for the boarding students the dangers of grade crossing.

The location of this property makes it of exceptional value for business purposes lying as it does practically in the center of the town and fronting on three streets.

Mr. Hayes has not announced what he intends to make of his new holdings, further than to immediately occupy the cottage as a residence, but the purchase price will undoubtedly exclude its use for farm purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Norton have the great pleasure of a few days visit from their nephew, Leonard C. Payne, together with his wife and daughter, Helen, aged 10, and Billy, aged 4. Their home is near Fairhope, in Baldwin County.

Mr. Payne is superintendent of a private Citrus plantation, consisting of about 400 acres, mostly set out to Satsuma Oranges, and some choice pecans. The owner is Dr. O. F. E. Winberg, of Silver Hill who is also President of the Gulf Coast Citrus Exchange, composed of all the principal growers of Satsuma Oranges in southern Mississippi, Mobile and Baldwin Counties in Alabama and west Florida, with packing houses in all these sections. During the packing season, now about to begin, Mr. Payne works where most needed in the management of these houses. All of which aim to put out a uniformly high grade of this delicious fruit, attractively packed.

Mr. Payne and his little boy and wife left Tuesday evening for their home, taking with them their daughter, Helen, and their mother, Mrs. W. C. Payne, sister of Mrs. Norton, who has been spending several weeks in Thorsby.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Driskill received at their home Tuesday night of last week a little new daughter, weight nine pounds, named Frieda Ann. All are doing well.

W. W. Fox will sell you 7 packages of Export or Borax Soap for 25 cents.

Mrs. W. C. Payne went with her family as far as Montgomery, where she, with her granddaughter took a train for North Carolina to visit relatives, then go on to Washington, D. C. to visit Miss Goodwin, who is well known in Thorsby. Miss Goodwin being the sister of Mrs. Norton and Mrs. Payne.

Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Each entertained at dinner Sunday Misses Anna Lou Arthur, Theresa Gibbons, Ruth Primm and Mr. Butler. Afterwards the party, all except Miss Ruth Primm and Mr. Butler, motored to Lock 12 to visit Miss Betty Lakeman and Mrs. Pearl Steiner Hanson.

Hollis Pate left Tuesday morning to work at Collinsville.

Dr. Wood carried the small son of Mr and Mrs. Robert Bean to a Birmingham Hospital on Tuesday.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. S. C. Wood entertained at a quilting party, Mesdames Robert Davenport, George Mims, R. R. Franklin, C. Spivey, Franklin, J. E. Each, D. L. Ward, George Freeman. After quilting two comforts refreshments were served.

Mr. Kendall Franklin entertained a few friends at dinner Friday evening. The party consisted of five couples. After dinner they all went to the picture show.

Rev. J. E. Each conducted chapel service at the public school Tuesday morning and gave an interesting talk on "Provoking To Anger."

The congregational Ladies Aid Society will be entertained at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Each Thursday night of this week. This is one of the few social meetings under auspices of the ladies when all ladies are expected to be accompanied by their husbands if they have one.

Mrs. M. J. Soberg entertained Mrs. S. E. Norton and her sister, Mrs W. C. Payne, Friday afternoon of last week.

Next Sunday is the time for morning and evening service at the Baptist church.

Prof. C. M. Williams who is teaching at Camp Hugh in Bibb County, spent Sunday with his family in Thorsby.

The Ladies of "The Guild" who met with Mrs. Norton last Wednesday to work on articles for the Bazaar had a very enjoyable time and accomplished considerable work.

Thorsby Institute announces a Lyceum course of three numbers of high class talent from the Piedmont Bureau of Asheville, North Carolina. Two numbers will be musical. The third will be a reading, Miss Laura Forbes, who is well recommended.

Mrs. Eric Hanson died September 30, 1927 of old age, and was buried in the Lutheran Cemetery October 2. The funeral services being held at 2:30 p. m. from the house and at 3 p. m. at the Lutheran church. Rev. Bakke and Rev. Each taking part. Mrs. Hanson came to America in 1880, settling at Keewannee, Illinois. A child died there. Mrs. J. O. Johnson and Earnie Hanson live here, her only remaining children. A sister lives in Keewannee, Illinois. The Hansons moved to Thorsby, Alabama in 1900, 27 years ago.

Mrs. Hanson was born in Fahlun, Sweden 78 years ago.

Saturday night the Dormitory folks of Thorsby Institute had a very pleasant party in the Dining Hall. Several new games were played.

There will be English services at the usual hour, 10:45 a. m. next Sunday at the Lutheran church.

The first number will be in the auditorium on October 27. This will be the "Alpress All Star Company." Mr. Alpress, B. M. founder of this company is a master violinist and composer. He has studied and played the violin abroad and in this country. Mrs. Alpress is a pianist and reader and Miss Gladys Barchardt is a cellist. This number is very highly recommended.

It is hoped that Thorsby people will patronize these three numbers and buy season tickets. The Institute will have to make up any deficit as it must guarantee a certain amount each time. The cost of tickets will be announced later.

ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE NECESSARY FOR U. S.

To be politically independent a people must be self-governing, and they must have economic independence too, in order to be free according to Willis C. Hawley, of Oregon, who writes interestingly on the subject of "Our Economic Independence" in the current issue of the National Republic.

"What is political independence? That a people be self-governing," Mr. Hawley declares. "What is economic independence? That a people be self-contained. Had the Revolution ended when political independence alone had been secured the result would have been partial. So those men who organized political independence in the Constitution also gave the country a charter of economic independence in the first general law. Washington signed and that was a protective tariff. Despite occassional departures from it, it is the historic policy of the United States in relation to foreign trade. For a long period this was a policy common to all parties. Later a new policy was initiated, called free trade; it was modified under the leadership of Carlisle to that of tariff for revenue; under Randall to tariff with incidental protection; under Underwood to a so-called competitive tariff. That is, the later trend has been from the designation of 'free trade' toward the use of some name indicating protection, but such developments have included all the economic ills of free trade with none of the benefits of protection. This groping discloses a lack of understanding of the genius of our country. I maintain that to the American people, economic independence is as important as political freedom; and foreign domination of our economic life, based on lower standards of living, is as dangerous to us as any other form of foreign domination.

"Our people have in the last forty years experienced the inevitable results of the adoption of the policy of free trade and its aliases, under the Wilson-Gorman law and under the Underwood Act in 1914, before the World War created a practical and effective embargo and after the war when the war conditions ceased to be effective, and prior to the enactment of the tariff act of 1922. And, what are these inevitable results? Always a lack of employment for millions, idle industries, depressed business conditions, low prices for agricultural products, and general distress. With what result? In both instances, when weary of the oppression of poverty, and of the domination of the foreigner in our markets, the people returned to the protective policy. And then with what result? Renewal of business and industry, reemployment of idle wage earners by millions, better prices for agricultural products, general prosperity, and increase in the public wealth."

NEW BUILDING ON NORTH 7Th ST. TO BE OCCUPIED BY ELLIS

The new building of Mr. J. W. Cagle on the highway north of Jeff Ruffin's chicken house was started this week. It is planned that the new building be ready for occupancy by about the middle of November. The building has already been rented to Mr. Latham Ellis, and the business of the Ellis You-Drive-It Company will occupy it.

Mr. Ellis will continue to run his drive-it-yourself business, and in connection will do taxi service as well as furnish day and night storage for automobiles. He will also operate a washing and greasing service for cars, and he will sell second-hand Ford parts. He will run a general auto service business.

AGRICULTURE'S DEBT TO LINCOLN

President Coolidge, dedicating the Lincoln Memorial Library at the South Dakota State College, appropriately emphasized the debt that agriculture owes to Abraham Lincoln. He referred to Lincoln's championship of the cause of the agricultural college before he became president and the passage of an act approved by him in the second year of his administration granting public lands to each state "to be used for the support of a college of agriculture and mechanic arts," a law which has enabled the states to establish these institutions "which in the past fifty yeas have played such an important part in the agricultural life of our country." With this in mind the President declared "the hand of Abraham Lincoln reached over the battlefields of France and was one of the decisive factors in turning the scale of victory in the World War.

"I think," said President Coolidge, "it is entirely within reason to say that without the supplies that came from the American farms it is impossible to see how the war could have been won." And it was the vision of Lincoln, whose advocacy and approval of the agrirultural lollege measure led to the creation of "a vast agrirultural empire lying between the Alleghenies and the Rockies," that made it possible for the United States to contribute this important factor in the winning of a war fought more than half a century later. It was a fitting tribute to Lincoln on shch an occasion and it serves to call attention to a side of the man not widely known.—Hartford Courant.

Home Boys Annex Third Straight Game

Mighty Tigers of Chilton Trim Coosa High to Tune of 19 to 0

Chilton High uncorked a driving attack in the first half of last Friday's game that swept Coosa High off its feet for the third straight victory of the season. The score was 19 to 0. Touchdowns were made by Nelson, L. and O. Sanford, one each; O. Sanford added one extra point out of the three attempts to kick goal. All scoring was done in the first and second quarters.

Coosa came back fighting in the second half, and their renewed spirit together with the loss of O. Sanford by injury, gave Coosa a much better chance. Chilton's line held, only a few bucks gaining; one or two end runs were about all Coosa could get around the flanks with, but Coosa's air game was dangerous, most of the yardage being gained by this method. Time and again it looked like the red-shirted warriors were loose for a touchdown but always an orange-clad lad was in his way, L. Sanford saving two sure touchdowns by his deadly tackling. Leon Sanford was just so many pounds of dynamite to Coosa especially on defense. Twice Coosa was on Chilton's 20-yard line; on the last of these threats it was fourth down with two yards to go; a left end run was started which looked good for this two yards, but Mose Simpson, a substitute end, filtered thru the Coosa defense and nailed his man for a 10-yard loss.

M. Dunlap and Adams were the principal ground gainers for Coosa, while several passes, H. Hardy to Hanna, and H. Hardy to Adams were nicely executed.

Chilton's line was the usual stone wall, with Nelson's line plunges, O. Sanford's sweeping end runs, and L. Sanford's savage tackling as big factors in the victory. A bursted blood vessel took O. Sanford out of the game in the second quarter, but he returned in the fourth.

Coosa is much stronger on the offensive than on defense; Chilton has a much better balanced and smoother working squad.

The "Tigers" take on the outfit from West Blocton next Friday, October 14, at 3:30 p. m. on the local field, and a hot scrap is expected.

Chilton's goal line has not been stained by an opponent's cleat, and the boys are very anxious and fighting hard to keep it so.

The season record—

Chilton— 37	Marbury—	0
Chilton— 50	Verbena—	0
Chilton—106	Oppon'ts—	0

Total Enrolment at Alabama College Has Reached Seven Hundred

At Alabama College, Montevallo, Alabama, there is gathered together the largest group of young women of Alabama that can be found anywhere in the world, according to President, O. C. Carmichael, who was commenting upon the size of the institution this year.

Already seven hundred seventy-nine young women have enrolled for college work, while something like two hundred twenty-five are in attendance at the high school on the college campus.

All of the sixty-seven counties are represented except one. Of the sixty-six counties represented, Jefferson County has the largest number. Eighty-three from Jefferson are now attending the institution.

TWO CLANTON MEN IN AUTO ACCIDENT LAST SATURDAY

Macy Jones and Julius Burnett were the principals in a little excitement last Saturday afternoon on the highway at Keystone, when they had a wreck that came very near proving serious. They were on their way to Birmingham in Mr. Burnett's Ford coupe. A man driving a Chrysler and making about ninety to nothing passed them at Keystone, and as he went by he made a quick dip and connected with the Ford causing it to turn completely over. Mr. Burnett and Mr. Jones were thrown out of the car, sustaining a painful injury on the knee and two broken ribs. The man in the Chrysler did not hesitate to see what damage he had done.

MR. BUTLER OF THORSBY BELIEVES IN HIS PRINCIPLES

The Union-Banner has received the following letter from Rev. E. W. Butler, of Thorsby:

"Editor Union-Banner:

"As your paper was in a measure responsible for my getting into an embarrassing situation, perhaps you will give me a chance to get out of it through your columns.

I read yesterday of the Revival in Clanton, and went to the meeting last night. After some preaching, the preacher called on those who believed in the Christian religion (and some other things) to rise. And I kept my seat. A strange thing for a man to do who has been a Christian minister for nearly forty-five years. And it was embarassing too, for they ordered me out.

My trouble was this. Before the preacher began to preach he gave us clearly to understand that no Jew from Jerusalem or "Nigger" from Africa would be expected to remain in the meeting. And I got to thinking about the preaching of my Master who was a Jew in Jerusalem and how he said "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," and when they asked him who his neighbor was, he told the story of the Good Samaritan.

Now the Samaritan of Jesus' day and country almost exactly corresponded to the "Nigger" of our time and place. The man in Alabama who can't read that wonderful story in the tenth chapter of Luke and substitute the word "Nigger" for the word "Samaritan" has missed the point of the story.

Now I confess that I don't love the Jewish brethren of my Master nor my "Nigger" neighbors as I ought to. The reason is because I don't love my master as I ought to. "Inasmuch as ye have done it to one of these least, ye have done it unto me."

But since there were so many last night, ready to stand up for "the Christian religion" as the evangelist interpreted it I kept my seat as a protest in behalf of my Master's Jewish brethren and "Nigger" neighbors.

Ibelieve from the depths of my soul in Jesus Christ and in His gospel of love. I believe in no religion which denies His gospel of love.—E. W. Butler.

CLANTON MATTRESS FACTORY IS NOW IN SMITH BUILDING

The Clanton Mattress Factory is now located in the lower floor of the Smith Building at the rear of Jones Hardware Company, with new and larger equipment for building new mattresses and rebuilding old ones.

The management of this business says "It is no use to throw away your old mattresses. Come and tell us what you have and we will look them over and tell you how we can repair them to save you the expense of buying new ones, and at the same time guarantee that you will have a rebuilt mattress as good as a new one."

Dr. Samuel E. Johnson

Standing out conspicuously on the enumerated list of sons and daughters of Clanton who have helped to put our town and county on the map of the world is the name of Dr. Samuel E. Johnson. He is the youngest son of the late Dr. J. S. Johnson, and a brother of our esteemed citizens, Drs. Napoleon and Arthur Johnson. Sam was born in Clanton in 1889, and is the youngest of four sons.

Coming as he did of a family of physicians, it was but natural that he should choose as his life's vocation the noble calling of his ancestors. In early life he attended the city schools of Clanton. Later he went to Randolph-Macon College where he graduated and went on to take up his study of medicine at Vanderbilt University in Nashville. He was awarded a diploma from that institution in 1911.

After his graduation from Vanderbilt he was licensed by the State of Alabama to practice medicine, and he began his profesional work at his home city, Clanton. Along about this time there is to be recorded what is perhaps the greatest event of the young doctor's life, his marriage to one of Clanton's fairest daughters, Miss Mattilee Harper.

Dr. Johnson removed to Verbena and practiced medicine for a short while. Then followed a course in McGill University in Montreal, Canada. Returning to Clanton to pursue the practice of his profession, Dr. Johnson made preparations to settle down and devote his future years to a life of service to the home people with whom he had grown up. But along came the World War about this time. Like millions of other young men of that day, the plans of Dr. Johnson had to be made all over again, because the big war was calling for men from all walks of life. The response of this young prysician to the call of his country was made by his enlistment in the United States Navy for the duration of the war.

During the war time period he made an enviable record in the service of his country. His duties carried him to practically every important country in the world. At the conclusion of the war, Dr. Johnson chose to remain in the service of Uncle Sam. He was placed at a very important post in one of the country's largest sanitoriums at San Diego, California.

Frequent visits have been made by Dr. Johnson to his native city, and he always expresses himself as intending some day in the distant future to come back home and settle down. He owns quite a lot of very valuable business property here, and his cozy little home on north Sixth Street remains in charge of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Harper, awaiting the day when her son-in-law and daughter shall have grown weary of the world and turn their footsteps homeward.

Clanton and Chilton County are proud of Sam Johnson. We have known him ever as a clean, upright, sterling young man. He has gone the world over and we dare say that every place he has been has admired him for the qualities by which we love and honor him at home.

Everybody in Clanton would be joyful to know that he had decided to come back to the place of his boyhood to spend the rest of his days.

NEW THOMAS SCHOOL BUILDING IS ACCEPTED

An agent of the State Department of Education was here Tuesday to look over the new building of the Thomas Junior High School which has just been completed under direction of Mr. J. L. Dupree. We understand that the state representative gave Mr. Dupree a clean slate on the job and accepted the building with congratulations for the excellent manner in which it was constructed.

The people of Poplar Springs, and Maple Springs and Bethel communities which districts have been consolidated into the Thomas Junior High School, are to be congratulated upon the splendid spirit which they have put forth during the past summer to get their new building completed and ready for this winter's session of the school. Prof. J. L. Wilson is principal of the school. His work for the educational advancement of the boys and girls in those communities has been zealous and faithful throughout several years past, and we are now glad to note that he shall have a wider field of service and a school plant that is much better equipped to meet his needs and to carry out his ideas.

MISSISSIPPI BEANS ON VISIT TO CLANTON

Sheriff Dudley Collins has had Beans at his house during the past week. These were not the ordinary kind of Beans. They were Beans from Mississippi; but somewhat kin to many of the same species so well known in Chilton County.

In the party were Madison, Lonnie H. and John I. Bean from Ratliff, Miss., and W. H. Bean, of Dorsey, Miss. They are cousins of Sheriff Collins. The father of these gentlemen, Wiley Bean, lived in Chilton County when he was a young man. He moved to Mississippi 54 years ago. He died a few years after going to his adopted home.

The Beans from Mississippi thoroughly enjoyed their visit to relatives and friends in Chilton County.

Probe Renewed In Dewey Barrett Case

Negro Arrested Here and Carried to Rockford as a Material Witness

Last Friday Sheriff Snider of Coosa County came over to Clanton and placed under arrest George Williams, negro section hand, and carried him to Rockford and lodged him in jail.

It is said that Williams knows something of the killing of Dewey Barrett, which tragedy took place on Hatchett Creek in Coosa County about five years ago. Reports say that Williams has recently confessed to knowing something definite about the tragedy, and states, it is said, that he was less than 100 feet from the scene at the time Barrett was killed.

The body, according to George Williams's statement, was first placed under a house where it remained for several days and was later thrown into a creek where it was found on February 12th. The statements of the negro are corroborated by evidence revealed in the investigation shortly after the murder.

In a preliminary hearing in Rockford Saturday Williams was bound over to the grand jury as an eye witness to the crime. The grand jury convenes on October 17th.

Received Letter From An Unknown Friend

Kansas City Lady Writes Mrs. C. B. Huett Concerning Son, F. J. Huett

The following letter was handed the Banner by Mr. Charley Huett of Enterprise, and was written to Mrs. Huett by a lady in Kansas City, Mo. Mrs. Huett had never seen or heard of the lady before. The son refered to in the letter is Mr. Forney Huett, who left here and went to Missouri several years ago.

"Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 11. Dear Mrs. Huett:—You will be surprised to get a letter from one you have never seen or heard from, but I am a mother and know a mother's heart. I know that if I were in a far away country from my boy and anyone met him and knew he was doing good, I would appreciate a letter from them. And that is why I am writing to you. I met your son one night at Church and he said to me "I know you are from the South and you remind me of my mother." I got interested in him, and I am glad to tell you that he came into our church. Today, his wife and two boys are to be baptised. He has a nice family. Often the little girl comes and slips up and sits down by me as if Iwere her grandmother, and I enjoy having them feel free with me. I like your son very much and I felt that I wanted to write and tell you how he is interested in the church of his mother. He comes to prayer meeting and Sunday School.

I hope I may meet you some time. He told me about all the good watermelons and fried chicken you said you were having and he said "I wish I could take you there some time." I told him that all that sounded mighty good.

Well I must close; all the children and his wife are all well. I am your friend because I am a friend of your son. Any time I can be of help to your son and his wife and children I will be glad to do it.—Mrs. T. S. Smith."

B. Y. P. U. WORK IN UNITY ASS'N PROGRESSING NICELY

A new epoch in B. Y. P. U. dom was staged Tuesday night, October the fourth when Miss Katie Myrtle Cobern, the Associational president, was given full charge of a program on the first night of the annual meeting of the Association. After song service Miss Allie Walker, one of the efficient vice presidents, led in a spiritual devotion.

Mr. Paul Oden, one of our most beloved young preachers of the state, then gave a beautiful solo.

Mr. Arthur Deloach, Asociational pastor, talked on "The Aim of B. Y. P. U."

Mr. Truell Smith of Evergreen sang a special song.

Miss Cobern, in her own characteristic way, led in a very helpful discussion on "The B. Y. P. U. Department."

As a climax for this particular program Mr. Oden again rendered a beautiful song.

No doubt it would be of interest to know that Unity Associational B. Y. P. U. has gone over the top in practically every item of the goal and in some points has doubled.

MULBERRY AND ISABELLA

The Isabella team met Plantersville's team at Plantersville Friday afternoon in their second game of the season. The game ended with a score of 33 to 0 in favor of the Plantersville squad. During the game two of Isabella's men were disabled but both were out on the gridiron for practice this afternoon. Although Paulk's eleven has been defeated in their first two games they are showing excellent prospects for better results before the close of the season.

Mh. T. L. Leeroy, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Manning and Miss Dorothea Manning spent last week end over in Coosa near Rockford with their brother, J. W. Leeroy. While there they atended an all day singing at old Poplar Springs Sunday and enjoyed the day with old friends ana relatives. Mrs. W. J. Morris from near Clanton, a sister of Mr. J. W. Leeroy, acompanied them over there.

Making Long Distance Calls is a simple matter-

Long distance telephone service is now used universally because it is easy and convenient to make all classes of calls.

To make a station-to-station call, you merely tell the operator the number of the distant telephone. The charge begins when the called telephone answers.

To make a person-to-person call, you tell the operator the name of the party to whom you wish to talk. The charge begins when communication is established with the person called.

If you do not know exactly how to make a long distance call, let the operator help you. She will cheerfully give you all the necessary information.

You Keep a String on Every Dollar You Spend at Home

WHETHER you spend it with the grocer, the clothier, the laundry or anywhere in Clanton, it's true just the same. For every one of these pays taxes, contributes to civic improvements which you also enjoy. Plus this, the home-spent dollar eventually comes back to you whether it be for merchandise or in the form of wages.

The money that remains at home helps everybody here. The money that is sent away handicaps everybody here. This seems like a strong statement, yet it is plain fact. If you will only analyze it you will see!

NEWS IN BRIEF

"In planting oats the only fertilizer needed this fall is an application of acid phosphate on the heavy lands which were not fertilized liberally this spring. Phosphate on sandy land is not recommended; and potash is not recommended for oats anywhere in the state. A top dressing of nitrate of soda applied next spring will pay handsomely."—M. J. Funchess, Auburn.

TO ALL FARM BUREAU POULTRY ASSOCIATION MEMBERS, ALL COUNTY AGENTS, HOME DEMONSTRATION AGENTS AND VOCATIONAL TEACHERS:

Dear Friends:

At a meeting held in Montgomery Thursday, September 15th, an agreement was reached whereby the State Board of Agriculture considered it advisable to encourage the accreditation and certification of poultry in Alabama. At the same meeting the Board of Agriculture appropriated sufficient funds to make this project a success. The work is to be done in cooperation with the Alabama Extension Service and Alabama Farm Bureau. The Alabama Farm Bureau Poultry Association to be the accreditating and certifying agency.

Alabama flocks are relatively free from Bacillary White Diarrhea and it behooves all of the agriculture workers of the state to do everything in their power to keep this infection from spreading. The blood testing work will begin on or about October 1st. In order to facilitate our schedule for taking blooded samples, etc., we would appreciate all agencies cooperating in this project, and getting those who want this work done to send in their applications at once. The application blank may be secured from this office.

Mr. H. R. Bailey, a graduate of Auburn in the class of 1926, has been designated as supervising official of this project, with headquarters here at Auburn. From now on Mr. Bailey will spend most of his time on this project.

With very best wishes for your continued success, I am,

Very truly yours,

John E. Ivey,Head Division of Poultry Husbandry.

FALL DESTRUCTION OF COTTON STALKS URGED

With unusually good weather and an early cotton seasan most of the cotton in the southern half of the state will be gathered in September. This should encourage early destruction of cotton stalks. If the stalks are destroyed as soon as the crop is gathered this destroys the breeding quarters of the weevil and their food supply, and this means that the weevil in that field is going to have to move out to some other field or else go into winter quarters in very poor condition. It seems that those farmers who lost heavily this year because of weevil injury would not have to be reminded to start now to prevent such a loss next year.

To those who were more fortunate and did not have a very heavy infestation this year, let me warn you that some of the heaviest losses ever experienced, due to weevil injury, occured this year. Heavy losses were general in the eastern and southern parts of the state. This should serve as a warning to those who say, "The weevil is no more." Next year may be the year the weevil will visit your farm again. Destroy your stalks at once and you will have taken the first step in boll weevil control for next year.

Methods of destroying the stalks have to be determined largely by the individual farm and its equipment. The idea is to stop that second growth which starts with the fall rains and furnishes squares in which to breed, and an unlimited food supply for the weevils. Some farmers turn their cattle in and let them keep all the new growth picked off. This is very satisfactory and should be done where possible; others uproot the stalks with a turning plow or middle buster; others flat break the land—this seems to be too slow except for acreages; still others simply run the stalk cutter over the stalks. The cheapest way to stop the growth is the best way. DESTROY THE STALKS NOW.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Pitts and family spent the week end in Vincent, Alabama.

KILL THE PEACH TREE BORER WITH P. D. B.

Paradicholorobenzene commonly known as P. D. B. paracide, or crystal gas, gives the most satisfactory results in the control of the peach tree borer. It can be bought for about 35 cents per pound from any wholesale drug company or from Durr Drug Co., Montgomery, Alabama.

1.—P. D. B. should be applied from Oct. 1 to 15, in north Alabama, and from the 15th to 30th of October in south Alabama..

2.—Only trees over three years of age can be treated with this insecticide

3.—Trees three to five years old require 1-2 to 314 ounces per tree, depending upon the size of the tree. Trees five years old and older require from 3-4 to 1 ounce per tree.

4.—All grass and other trash should be cleaned from about the tree, do not dig the soil, leaving the ground firm, level, and free from trash about a foot from the trunk of the tree.

5.—The P. D. B. should be spread in a narrow circle around the tree. The death ring should be about 2 inches from the trunk of the tree.

6.—The mound should be 4 to 6 inches high. The soil used in the mound should be free of trash and care should be taken not to get any of the crystals against the tree as this will cause serious injury.

7.—Remove the mound in four to six weeks, so that any crystals will not be left so near the tree. This is especially important with young trees.

The following letter to Mr. Stapp is self explanatory:

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 31, 1927

Dear Mr. Stapp:

We are receiving several inpuiries from hatcheries relative to securing hatching eggs for this fall. These hatcheries for the most part are agreed that if possible these eggs should be purchased from Alabama poultrymen. During other seasons it has been our experience that a large quantity of eggs have been secured from other states, chiefly Tennessee,, for this purpose. It seems to us that there must be a number of Aabama poultrymen who would like to take advantage of a premium over the market price for the trouble of mating their flock to produce fertile eggs for delivery to these hatcheries.

These hatcheries are operating at this season for the purpose of producgin baby chicks whill go to the broiler trade for the most part; therefore, they are chiefly interested in securing eggs from the general purpose breeds, such as Barred Plymouth Roccks, Rhode Island Reds, Wyandottes, Orphingtons, etc.

Will you kindly prepare and forward to our office a list showing name, address, breed and number of birds in the flock of as many poultrymen in your county who might be interested in selling eggs to hatcheries during September, October and November. No doubt some of these hatcheries will continue to operate during the winter months. Our plan is to turn these names over to the hatcheries so that the hatchery men may write these poultrymen regarding their project.

Please let us have this information at your convenience.

G. A. Trollope.

The general level of farm prices advanced from 132 per cent of the pre-war level to 140 per cent from August 15 to September 5, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This is the largest gain in a single month since May 1919. It was due to the advance in cotton, cottonseed barley, rye, hay, hogs, beef cattle, calves, eggs, and butter.

Turkey Bean Contest Is Now Going Again

SALESMEN OF CHEVROLET ORGANIZATIONS ARE MAKING SPECIAL EFFORTS

With more than 27,000 persons who make up the selling organization of the Chevrolet Motor Company involved, the unique "turkey-bean" contest inaugurated by this company a year ago is again in full swing during the month of October.

This huge sales organization has been divided for the duration of the contest into competitive groups of which the winners will eat turkey while the losers will sit and dine only on beans—and pay the entire dinner check.

Two major divisions of the country have been made, with an assistant general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company in charge of each. D. E. Ralston has the western half of the United States, and M. D. Douglas the eastern half.

Each of these sections has been further sub-divided. The Flint sales region has been pitted the Atlantic Coast region, the Southeastern region against the Middle West region and the Great Lakes region against the Pacific Coast. Every one of the 43 zone sales offices in the United States also has been squared away against another zone; cities are competing against cities, as are dealer organizations and individual salesmen.

In this manner every man in the entire selling organizations and every dealer in every section of the country gets an opportunity to demonstrate his ability to outsell his competitor and win himself a turkey dinner.

Officials in the sales department of the home office have gone into the field to aid various groups. R. H. Grant, vice-president in charge of sales, has gone to the Great Lakes region for one week and then will move to other regions; H. J. Klingler, general sales manager, is stationed on the Pacific Coast; Mr. Ralston in concentrating on the Middle West; M. Douglas on the Southeast; R. K. White, sales promotion manager, has the Atlantic Coast; and Sidney Corbet, manager of the truck division, is located in the Flint region.

Mr. Grant in an address to dealers at the beginning of the contest, stated that Chevrolet plans to sell 71,451 cars this month. He also stated that selling conditions in October loom considerably brighter than in September.

"I am optimistic also for November and the ensuing months," Mr. Grant declared. "Last November our sales quota called for 43,000 units, whereas we sold and delivered more than 73,000 cars and trucks. What we accomplish this year in November and December will hinge to a large measure upon our October showing.

We are facing the new year with as much confidence as we are the immediate future. I look forward to 1928 with confidence in continued leadership and continued progress for Chevrolet's record breaking success."

THE BEE NEWS LETTER

It is spring time for beekeepers. Have you started to get your bees in shape for next year's crop of honey? If you have not you should begin to do so. All of us, in the south especially, think spring is the time to begin any farm project. That is one of the reasons that a large per cent of farmers do not succeed any better than they do. If we wait until spring to start preparing our bees for next year's honey crop we are going to fail. This really is late spring for beekeepers in Alabama so you will have to rush if you get your colonies in the best shape for next year. How should you proceed? First, place an order with some Alabama queen breeder for a select Untested Italian Queen for every colony of bees that you have in modern equipment. You cannot requeen bees that are in "box hives" or "gums." Perhaps you say that your bees already have an Italian queen, and that she is a good one too. Perhaps so but if she has been in the colony a year it is time to put a young one in now. Why? First, a colony headed by a young queen introduced in the fall has a larger number of young bees to form the cluster during the winter, that is they winter better. Second, a colony that is requeened in the fall seldom has any trouble with "spring dwindling," that is, old bees dying faster than the young ones are hatched. Third, a young queen introduced in the fall seldom swarms the following year. This saves time and labor in swarm prevention and it also insures a good strong colony to gather the honey crop.

An extractor is one piece of bee equipment that every beekeeper needs to have. Heretofore the price of extractors has been prohibitive to the beekeeper who has only a half dozen colonies. Within the last few days advertising material from one of our big bee supply houses were listed for less than $15.00. This price, it seems, puts an extractor within the reach of any beekeeper. If you are interested in such an extractor drop us a line and we will gladly send you the address of the company.

Don't forget your honey customers. There is quite a bit of honey about over the state. If you have sold out inquire of your neighbor. He may have enough to supply both your customers and his.

Now it seems that our long experience would learn us what we loose by those changes.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

The National Association of Manufacturers has announced that it is preparing to launch a "get out the vote campaign" which it is believed will be a little more pretentious than anything of the kind yet staged. The campaign is to begin on November 1, this year and continue right up until the presidential election n 1928, in the hope that at least three-fifths of our eligible voters can be induced to exercise the right of suffrage at the next election.

It is indeed a sad commetary on American elections that we have arrived at the point where, in the last presidential election a little less than half of the people turned out to register their choice of chief executive. And it is also unfortunate to say the least that such a campaign as that sponsored by the manufacturers association is needed to induce the people to vote.

The decline in the number of potential voters who take part in the biennial elections has been steady. To go back to 1896 and the McKinley-Bryan campaign, which is still well remembered by million of voters who are no more than middle aged, eighty per cent of the electorate went to tre polls. Compare this with the less than fifty per cent of three years ago and you can realize the seriousness of the situation.

Certain it is that American citizens in some way must be made to see the importance of exercising their right of suffrage. We already hear the complaint that we are being governed by an organized minority. But if the present decadence in the vote continues this governing minority is going to degenerate into an oligarchy and then the end of popular government will be at hand.

The first thing to be done, perhaps, is to seek out the cause and try to remove that. There are probably several reasons, but undoubtedly one of the chief ones is the primary It was after 1896 that the total vote, compared to the voting population began to decline so rapidly. And it has been since 1896 that our primary laws have come into generaluse. The primary discourages voting in more ways than one. In the first place it increases the number of elections. With primaries, general elections, city election, bond referendums and the like, Americans are being fed up on elections. In the old days elections were biennisl events and they were infrequent enough to appear important. Hence the people regarded it as something like a privilege to get out and vote.

Then again the primary has engendered factional bitterness and personal control of politics. Where men used to discuss principles and go out to the polls to support them, they are now fed up on the personality of the candidates, and drawn into personal quarrels which arise among them in the primaries. The whole tendency is to disgust the average voter with politics altogether, and the result is an increasingly big stay at home vote.

It can be argued also of course that 1896 was the last presidential year in which the nation was in the throes of depression and panic. Since the country has been generally prosperous and the people have perhaps too generally been busy to get out to the polls on election day. Hard times and dissatisfaction, some experts claim, are the best weapons for increasing the vote.

Be this as it may, there can be no debating that the fact that the American people must be induced to turn out at elections again. Light voting means small interest in public affairs, and if America is to remain the great, free nation that it is today, our people must maintain their interest in our political problems.

SOME GOOD NEWS

Every once and a while we get an inkling that conditions among the Iowa farmers are not so bad as painted by the alarmists, that the industry and good sense of the agriculturists of that great state, together with the natural ferility of he soil are doing more for the industry than Congress could possibly accomplish by mere legislation, although we will all agree that Congress ought to do what it can constructively.

One of the best known agricultural editors of Iowa, a man whose publication has a large circulation among the farmers of the country is Dante Pierce. Mr. Pierce in a recent editorial of his paper expressed doubt as to whether conditions are so bad in Iowa as some of our alarmists have painted them. Among other things the editor declared that more than 400,000 persons, most of them farmers and their wives, recently visited the Iowa state fair during its ten day session, showing that there is still some spare money in the state. Mr. Pierce also remarked that while 500 farmers were attending a free lecture on farm relief legislation given by Congressman Brand of Ohio, more than fifteen thousand farmers and their families were watching the horse races and listening to the stirring notes of Sousa's band at from 50 cents to a dollar a person, showing that even in Iowa free farm relief is a thirty to one loser over horseracing and music.

Mr. Pierce's remarks are undoubtedly timely. Iowa has received a lot of unfavorable advertising from the professional "farm relievers." As a matter of fact Iowa's per capita wealth is greater than that of some of the so-called "tariff protected" industrial states of the East. Iowa is a great state and a beautiful state. It is also a prosperous commonwealth and it has been made so by the thrift, the industry and the enterprise of its sons and daughters.

Messers Olan Bice and Vester Bice served as groomsmen. Rev. Hughes of Chestnut Creek performed the impressive ceremony. May We Present.—

It affords us pleasure to present to you this week another Grammar school teacher who is a real asset to our community. Mrs. Mamie Spencer the fifth grade teacher was reared in Simpson County but has made her home in recent years in Meridian, Miss. She is well equipped for her work, having attended school at Montevallo, Livingston Normal and the University of Alabama.

For the past four years Mrs. Spencer has taught in Tuscaloosa County where she was principal of several Junior High Schools, namely, Mt. Olive, Cedar Grove and Beulah.

Mrs. Spencer is the mother of four splendid daughters, the oldest who is barely eighteen year sold and is a teacher of public school music and piano at the Gorgas High School in Tuscaloosa County. The other three children, Martha, Raiford and Velma Hearn share an apartment in the home of Mrs. W. Z. Hodges with their mother.

It is truly inspiring to meet a woman of Mrs. Spencer's courage and determination. Her wonderful understanding and sympathy with young people have been the secret of her success in primary work.

It is only natural to believe that children who come under Mrs. Spencer's influence will develop into men and women of high ideals.

Enjoy your food—

as it nourishes your body

If your appetite is not keen you owe it to yourself to take S.S.S. regularly before each meal. It will give you a good appetite.

In these days of fast competition, only full-blooded, robust, healthy people can keep to the front, and success comes to those who have the snap, vigor and magnetism that go with a wholesome, healthy life.

Don't despair because others forge ahead of you. Start right now to regain the health which will help you progress. A hearty appetite will restore your energy, build you up and give you "pep."

Thousands have benefited themselves and kept their bodies in good repair by occasionally taking a course of S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles and it improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

S.S.S. is time tried and reliable. It is made from the roots of fresh herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

LANDOWNERS CAN PREVENT DISASTROUS FOREST FIRES

Montgomery, Ala., Oct., 10—Landowners can prevent a repetition of the disastrous fall fire season of 1924 by taking appropriate action at this time, says the Commission of Forestry in a statement issued today. In fact, points out the Commission, individual action and community cooperation is the only way in which very heavy losses can be avoided in view of the existing high hazard. Too great dependence must not be placed upon the effects of the local forestry agents assigned to the various field areas by the Commission of Forestry in cooperation with the United States Forest Service. Each of these men will do all that one man can possibly accomplish, but he can only be in one place at a time.

The protection method followed by the most successful landowners is to visit frequently each part of their rough land holdings searching for fire, and not to wait until a burning is forced upon their attention. In this way fires can be prevented entirely, or at least extinguished before they have reached considerable size.

In the case of large holdings, the owner or several adjoining owners should employ a dependable man, or perhaps more than one, to cover the area throughly several times a day, carrying with him tools with which to extinguish promptly any fires that may start. One of the best tools is the fire swatter, made by inserting a piece of old belting eight or ten inches wide and about twenty-two inches long in the split end of a hardwood sapling and permanently fixed by a few nails. A shovel for throwing sand and earth and a grub hoe or mattock for trenching are very valuable. A rake is effective in the clearing of firebreaks. If there is much small growth to work in, an ax and a brush hook are also extremely desireable. If the patrolman uses an automobile, or if the fire is not too far from headquarters, small spray pumps such as are used for spraying orchards are exceedingly useful. A few large milk cans filled with reserve water and carried in the car will save many a difficult situation.

Whoever is assigned to patrolling the woodlands for fire must be ablebodied and industrious, and must have his heart in the work. It is of small avail to merely assign a man or men to look after fires unless they apply themselves diligently to the task and are not afraid of work.

BOLL WEEVILS MAY BE DESTROYED NOW

Auburn, Ala., Oct., 10.—A rare opportunity for solving the boll weevil problem for next year is now presenting itself. W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist of the College of Agriculture at Auburn, says that the unusually early season for harvesting cotton has enabled growers to harvest it in plenty of time to destroy the stalks before frost.

If the stalks are destroyed weevils are left without food and shelter. Consequently the number going into hibernation will be materially reduced and fewer of those going into hibernation will survive the winter.

Before hibernation weevils can live only two or three weeks without food. After hibernation they can live until the following spring or summer when they come out of hibernation. This is why early destruction of cotton stalks gives the weevils a solar plexus blow. The farmer who does this will solve his weevil problem for next year.

Mr. Ruffin pointed out that boll weevils took a very heavy toll of the 1927 cotton crop in central and south Alabama. The late squares forming, if not destroyed, will enable weevils to go into hibernation in a strong, vigorous condition.

Cattle grazing in cotton fields will eat most of the squares and blooms. Another method is to uproot the old stalks; another is to flat-break the land, which is very slow; and another is to use a stalk cutter. The cheapest way to stop the growth of stalks is the best way.

The farmer who does this at least two weeks before frost will have very few weevils to eat his cotton next year.

NICE EAR OF CORN

The Union-Banner has presented to it everything from rattle snakes to rooster eggs, and they come from just everywhere. This time we have a very nice ear of corn sent in by a young farmer, Harvey Easterling, of near Refuge. The ear has exactly eleven inches of corn and there are eighteen rows of grains. The ear is a good looking one and speaks well for the young man. Harvey is the 17 year old son of the late Bennett Easterling.

CURB MARKET SALES TOTAL $473,532.88

Auburn, Ala., October 10—Up to October 1 the 18 curb markets in Alabama had marketed products for a total of $473,532.00 The Gadsden market, which was first to get started, reported sales totalling $149,680. Tuscaloosa, the second oldest market, was second with sales totaling up to $122,370.00; Selma third with $41,425.00; Anniston fourth with $34,322.16; Mobile fifth with $26,820.00; and Ensley sixth with a total of $6,000.00.

Other Alabama towns having curb markets are Athens, Bessemer, Eufaula, Decatur, Dothan, Jasper, Montgomery, Opelika, Sheffield, Talladega, Troy, and Union Springs. The Montgomery curb market opened on May 21, 1927, and sales up to October 1 totaled $20,683.00 Fourteen of the eighteen have been started since January 1, 1927.

These figures were compiled by Miss Isadora Williams, district home demonstration agent, from reports received from the county home agents. The reports show that most of the products sold on these markets would have gone to waste without a curb market.

In addition to saving products that would have gone to waste, Miss Williams says that the production of new products has been encouraged. It has grown already to the extent of developing a home industry; and arrangements are being made to establish a state headqurters for these products at the store of Joseph, Loveman and Loeb, Birmingham. In this way many artistic articles made at home will be sold in Birmingham, thereby opening up a big market.

Mr. C. E. Stapp, Chilton County farm agent originated the Gadsden curb market while he was agent of Etowah County a few years back.

ATLANTA TO HAVE NEW CHEVROLET PLANT

Detroit, October 10.—An indication that the automobile industry is looking forward toward increasing prosperity was noted here today with the announcement by the Chevrolet Motor Company that Construction will start immediately on a new Chevrolet assembly plant in Atlanta.

The Atlanta plant has been made necessary to adequately meet the requirements of the rapidly growing demand for Chevrolet cars in the South and at the same time to relieve the Cincinnati plant, which has been operating on an overtime basis to care for southeastern business as well as that from more immediate territory. The Atlanta plant will serve particularly Georgia, Florida and parts of Alabama and South Carolina.

When completed early next spring the plant will represent an investment of more than $2,250,000 covering acreage building and equipment. Thirty one acres of ground have been taken over for the Atlanta layout. Building plans call for 410,000 square feet of floor space, including plants, office and driveway shed.

The plant will be one of the largest and finest of its kind in the south with a capacity of 350 cars a day. Work will be provided for 1,200 people and the payroll will exceed $8,000 daily.

The assembly plant proper will be a one story unit, 800 by 320 feet, of face brick construction with a monitor steel roof. There will be a Fisher Body division of similiar construction, 160 by 680 feet, and a parts supply depot 120 by 204 feet. Plans also call for a two story office building, 40 by 204 feet.

Completion of the Atlanta project will provide the Chevrolet Motor Co., with eight assembly plants throughout the country and an export plant at Bloomfield, New Jersey. Domestic assembly plants are located in Flint, Michigan, Tarrytown, New York, Norwood, Ohio, Oakland, California, Buffalo, New York, Jamesville, Wisconsin, and St. Louis Missouri. In addition Crevrolet maintains manufacturing plants in Detroit, Bay City, Saginaw, Flint and Toledo.

Mr. Ethan B. Popwell of Thorsby Route 1 was in Clanton Monday, and in conversation with the Banner man told us to tell our readers that he had just returned from a trip to his old home place near Billingsley where he visited relatives and old friends. Mr. Popwell said that he had a mighty nice time while down there.

This Buick Has an Unusual Job

Buick's reputation for reliability has won it an unusual job on the lines of the Northern Pacific Railway Co., where a specialy adapted Buick Sedan is doing duty as an inspection car. Northern Pacific officials express themselves ar "tremendously pleased" with the success of the innovation.

The Buick was equipped for its special duties by the Pence Automobile of Minneapolis. Flanged Steel wheels were substituted for the standard wheels, a rigid front axle was provided, and the steering apparatus was removed entirely. Its resemblance to a locomotive was heightened by addition of a cowcatcher.

Advice from the Northern Pacific states the Buick is making good in every respect. It is in operation constantly, over the entire length of the Northern Pacific lines from St. Paul to Puget Sound, covering 250 to 300 miles a day with ease. The users are particularly pleased with the Buick's flexibility, for which the powerful Buick six cylinder valve-in-head engine and Buick mechanical four wheel brakes are mainly responsible.

The cost of the Buick's operation, according to railway's figures, is less than one-fifth that of the equivalent steam equipment, in addition to which it is proving far better adapted to inspection work than the locomotice which it replaced.

Farm Paragraphs

Poultry breeders of the United States sold about 800,000,000 baby chicks last year. Egg production in the United States was at the rate of about 760 egges each second, or 2,000,000,000 dozen in the year.

Cross-ocean flying demands a new service by the U. S. Weather Bureau. Comprehensive weather information is telegraphed to the naval radio station for broadcasting in whatever foreign language may be necessary.

From two million to three million acres of fall-sown oats are grown annually in the South, 50 per cent of the oat acreage in the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisana being devoted to the fall-sown crop.

Crop rotation does not cost any money, but it rivals the use of manure and fertilizers in maintaining and increasing yields of crops. A good tation is a most effective means for increasing yields and lowering crop-production costs.

Carrots are a good source of vitamins. In winter, when they are older and have been stored a long time, they may lose some of vitamin C, but they are still valuable for their minerals and for vitamins A and B.

In the far west where wood is stored in the forests, fire insurance is often carried on the wood. The rate is high in the dry season, but the wood is not in danger in the rain season. When weather reports show late-conditioned rain a slight delay in taking out insurance may be risked and considerably saving in premiums are possible.

In recent years many grain farmers, recognizing the feeding value of dockage, are taking a great interest in cleaning their grain on the farm or in having it cleaned at the country elevators and utilizing the screening as feed for livestock. Country elevator operators, recognizing this demand for screenings, are making greater effort to clean the grain before shipping it to market.

When officials of a large railroad in Montana were asked by the headquarters in St. Paul why there had been a noticeable falling off in coal shipments as compared with previous winters, the Weather Bureau was consulted. Weather records showed that there was a period of unusually mild weather. Similarly, weather records are used by a local lighting company at the close of an unusually cloudy, gloomy month, to show consumers what constitutes an average month and why the one past has been unusual, occasioning larger bills. In winter the coal dealer watches the weather forecasts for a cold wave so that preparation may be made for handling an increased demand for coal. If a cold wave is expected on a Sunday the yards must be kept open and special forces held in readinss to handle the coal.

Don't leave the lettuce on your plate. Eat it for the sake of the vitamins it contains.

A flat narrow collar or no collar at all and a V-shaped or U-shaped neck line is most becoming to a short, stout figure. Square neck lines should be avoided.

A little kerosene in clear water helps in window washing. Wash with even overlapping strokes and rub dry with soft paper or clean cloth. A rubber wiper can be used on large windows.

WHEN TO BUY FEEDERS

Just what grade of cattle to select for the feed lot is a problem that must be considered by every feeder. There are a number of seasonal factors to be kept in mind in this connection. Common cattle are generally lowest in price in October and November during the time of large runs of cattle from the range. Choice finished cattle are usually higher in price than at any other time of the year because there are ordinarily very few grain-fed steers marketed at this time. Because most of the corn-fed cattle are fattened during the winter and sold in the spring, the price of choice steers is lowest in April and May. Common steers, on the other hand, bring the highest price of the year during May.

MOON FARMING

Moon farming, according to the Weather Bureau is "moonshine." It has absolutely no support from any scientific point of view. By moon farming is meant sowing or reaping, breeding or butchering, shingling or shearing, or any other farm activities supposed to be effected by the dark or the light or some other phase of the moon. The chief things affecting the growth of crops at any stage are: temperature and moisture conditions of soil and air, composition of adjacent atmosphere, kind and intensity of light, presence or absence and severity of plant disease, mechanical conditions of soil, loose or compact, fertility of the soil, and quanity of other vegetation, or weeds present. Meteorologists can show that the moon has nothing to do with any of these conditions affecting the crops. It has no influence on weather or soil.

HERBERT LOWERY WANTS TO TELL YOU SOMETHING

"Middishade" is a new word in the vocabulary of Clanton, but it is not a secret. Ask Herbert Lowery what it means. I. is something in which mostly the men are interested; but it also concerns every woman who wants her menfolks to be neatly and correstly dressed. Mr. Lowery is the Middishade specialist. He sells, talks, wears, and sings "Middishade." See him at W. T. Baker's and let him tell you more about it.

To store farm butter for winter use the best method is to wrap the rolls of prints in parchment paper and sack them in stone crock, covering them with a strong brine and then store in a cool place. The butter intended for winter use should be made from sweet pasteurized cream churned at a fairly low temperature, washed thoroughly and worked merely enough to dissolve the salt.

Much dust and dirt can be kept out of the house by taking precautions. If the roads near your home are not oiled, stop some of the dust at your doors and windows. Dust window sills, porches, steps and walks daily. Cover the pantry and storeroor window screen with cheese cloth to keep dust out but let the air in. If the walks about the house are muddy get the family to use shoe scrappers and leave muddy rubbers and boots outside.

Don't have the same menu every time you entertain. Plan several good "company" menus, according to the season of the year. If the same people come often to your home, it's a good plan to have some record of what you served to guests each time, or you may duplicate your menus.

In order to acquire farm land most of the present landlords have had to buy it. Of land owned by a representative group of 25,000 farm landlords, latest figures show that more than four-fifths had been purchased and only about a sixth obtained by gift of inheritance.

FACTS –AND THE OPEN MIND

THE MOST important element in business success—and the most difficult—is to be sure that you have all the facts before you act.

TO GET them all, from every possible source, is the first objective in General Motors. The Research Laboratories contribute some. These are nuggets, left in the crucible, after hundreds of ideas that looked good have been burned away. The Proving Ground contributes others. Dealers contribute. The public contributes. Every department contributes. Through the whole organization runs a spirit of inquiry and of rigid insistence on proof.

OUT OF such thinking come the new models announced from time to time by Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick, LaSalle, Cadillac—all with Fisher Bodies. And by Frigidaire. Each new model is a tested step forward. Nothing goes into it as a result of habit or guess or pride of opinion.

Nothing counts but hard-won facts, gathered and used with an open mind.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

Every cotton square in October is that much more feed for boll weevils.

Nitrogen in the air is free but the only way that a farmer can gather it is through legumes.

Running water in the home and barn is not only convenient but it pays for itself many times by saving time.

The farmer who trades a ton of cotton seed for a ton of cottonseed meal is making a splendid trade for feed.

Mrs. T. C. Thompson, a farm woman of Montgomery County, says that one of the best health rules is "just laugh."

The successful farmer of today is the farmer who uses power successfully. One-mule farming is too inefficient to pay.

Prof. M. L. Nichols, of Auburn, has found by investigations that a great many more Alabama farmers can profit by using tractors.

Through the Farm Bureau Alabama farmers have placed their orders for large quanities of fertilizer to be used next spring. In this way they will avoid the spring rush.

An Oklahoma girl broke out of the state reformatory because they wouldn't let her keep her goldfish in prison. Maybe the warden was afraid it would disturb the other prisoners.

BUICK MAKES NEW RECORD

Flint, Mich., Oct. 15.—Buick sales since the introduction of new models in July have shattered all records in Buick history, C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Co. announced today. The July, August, and September total this year is 82,955 cars, as compared with 10,941 cars sold during the corresponding period in 1926.

"The average monthly increase during the last three months, over the corresponding period in 1926 amounts to more than 4,000 cars," said Mr. Churchill. "This represents an average increase of 1,000 cars a week, or considered better than 100 a day.

"When it is recalled that these are retail sales figures, and not mere production totals, such a record seems to us highly significant. It means that the instantaneous public reception of the new Buicks was not just a flash in the pan, but rather the forerunner of a sustained demand for Buicks, all over the country, based on the recognition that here was such style, comfort, and performance as best met the public's conception of value in a motor car."

REPUBLICAN LEAGUE IN NEW ORLEANS

Annual Session Will Be Held On Roosevelt's Birthday, October 27th.

The meeting of the Southern States Republican League this year will be held in New Orleans on the 27th and 28th of this month. On Thursday evening. October 27th a dinner will be given on the roof of the Roosevelt Hotel in commemoration of the 69th birthday of Theodore Roosevelt. This, it is announced, will be a gala affair, and will be strictly non-partisan.

The entire day, Friday, the 28th, will be given over to the discussions of flood relief problems which is a matter which vitally affects not just a few states, but is a national problem which concerns our entire citizenship.

The New Orleans Convention and Publicity Bureau is sending out to people all over the South a very cordial and warm invitation to attend this convention. The letter of the Bureau says in part, "There is certainly no more charming and delightful place to visit than this quaint and picturesque old city of ours. There is more that is charmingly different to see and enjoy at New Orleans than any other city in America."

The Southern States Republican League is the largest organization among Republicans in the South. It is composed of leading and Representative Republicans from every State south of the Mason and Dixon Line. The meeting of the League is an annual affair held in some city of its selection in the South. Since its organization only a few years ago the organization has been accorded a nation-wide interest.

HOME OF MR. DIN LITTLE BURNS TUESDAY MORN.

About 2 o'clock Tuesday morning the home of Mr. Din Little in the Gowan addition of Clanton was discovered to be on fire. The family was not at home Monday night and the house was completely burned down before they knew of their loss. Everything in the house was burned with the exception of one or two chairs and a center table. How the fire originated was not known and was in full flame before it was discovered. The wind was not blowing Monday night which probably saved other houses close by.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald motored down to Montgomery Monday.

Mr. Macey Jones spent Sunday in Montgomery. On his return he was accompanied by Mrs. Jones who had spent several days with her mother.

Rev. Parrish To Preach At Friendship Sunday

Next Sunday morning at eleven o'clock the new pastor at Friendship church, Rev. M J. Parrish, will preach the initial sermon of his pastorate. He will also conduct the evening service at 7 o'clock. It is hoped that everybody who can will come out to both services to hear Brother Parrish.

Although new as our pastor he does not come to us unknown. He has preached here before many different times. He conducted the revival campaign of the church in 1926. A good old Christian man he is—a battle-scarred veteran of the ministry of Christ's gospel. He has preached when things looked gloomy and impossible, but he has never been known to surrender. He labors under difficulty with a faith as firm as in prosperity—with zeal and unfailing determination for the glorious cause to which his life has been dedicated.

The singing society meets Sunday afternoon at the usual hour, two o'clock. All singers have a cordial invitation to come and lend your help. The singing at Friendship is always very good and we hope that next Sunday will be no exception, but if possible that it may be better.

Sunday school at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

STAR BARBER SHOP ANNOUNCES RAISE IN PRICES

Simultaneously with the announcement of the sale of half interest in the Star Barber Shop to Mr. Ivy O. Blalock, Mr. Joe B. Downs makes the statement that the scale of prices in the shop has been raised to the standard which has been maintained by the other shops in town. Mr. Downs further states that he has found that it is impossible to operate a shop with the reduced prices which he attempted since opening the Star Shop.

JOHNSON DRUG COMPANY IS PURCHASED BY A. L. FARLEY

The Johnson Drug Company was last week sold by Dr. Arthur Johnson to Mr. A. L. Farley. Mr. Farley is now sole owner and manager of the company, which in the future will be known as Farley Drug Company.

Mr. Farley, the son of J. E. Farley of Clanton, will be pleasantly remembered as having been connected with the Johnson Drug Company before, as part owner and manager, which position he held until about a year ago. Six months ago Mr. Farley moved to Birmingham where he took charge of the Walker Drug Company No. 2 at Norwood. He was manager of this store for about six months.

We are indeed glad to have Mr. Farley back in Clanton with us as well as his family. They have already moved back to their home on Lock 12 road north of Clanton, where they expect to reside in the future.

Cotton Blooms Now Are Food For Boll Weevils

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 20.—The cotton blooms which are opening daily in cotton fields have no chance to make cotton but rather to make food for boll weevils and enable them to live thru the winter and make an early attack on the cotton crop next year, say county agents, and entomologists of the college of agriculture at Auburn.

Recent reports show that cotton plants are blooming profusely, following rains. This is an ideal condition for boll weevils to thrive and to be vigorous condition when they go into hibernation at the time of the first good frost.

With cotton picked earlier entomologists at Auburn say that a rare opportuniy for giving Mr. Boll Weevil and his tribe a knock-out blow has presented itself. They say also that destroying cotton stalks now, thereby destroying bool weevils, is much cheaper and much surer of boll weevil conrol than poisoning next year.

Expereriments have shown that where cotton stalks are distroyed early in the fall very few weevils survive the winter. This being true very little weevil damage will follow. This control work is better when done on a community basis but still the individual farmer who distroys his cotton stalks while his neighbors neglect it will be amply rewardel.

A cheap way to starve the boll weevil is let cows graze in the cotton field. Enough cows will eat buds on the cotton stalks soon after they appear thereby preventing squaring and blooming.

Stalks cutters, middle busters, and turning plows may be used. The object is to destroy the stalks early and thereby starve boll weevils; and the best method for any farmer is the one that he should practice.

A Masterful Appeal For The Republican Party in the South

Address of Hon. E. E. Callaway Before Hillsborough County (Fla.) Republcans at Tampa, Friday, October 7th.

Ladies and Gentlmen of the City of Tampa:

I would like to talk to you this evening upon the subject of good citizenship, and I hope that what I shall say will tend to make you better citizens. I am going to discuss political and governmental matters, but in order for us to discharge our duties as good citizens, we must understand politics, and we must understand the science of government.

I am going to digress sufficiently from my planned remarks to say that the most important duties of any man, are to vote at every opportunity and to serve on juries when called. The reason we have bad laws, burdensome taxation, extravagance in government and inefficient and corrupt public officers, now and then, is because the people do not vote. The reason there is so much complaint against the courts and a feeling that justice is too often delayed, is because the majority of our leading men find some excuse not to serve on juries. The scales of justice never rise above the character of the men who serve on our juries. The law is no stronger than the moral force of the grand and petit juries behind its enforcement.

When the manhood and the womanhood of this country qualify to vote and then vote, we will have good laws, dependable public officers, and economic government. When our most influential men obey the law themselves and lend their moral and personal assistance towards its enforcement by serving on the juries, we will begin to do away with crime. It is the example set by the leaders in society which determines the character not only of our social life, but our political and governmental life as well. The reason that we have so much bootlegging and other crimes of more or less serious importance is because men of prominence and influence in our communities set the example of ignoring or nullifying the law in order to get what they want, and the man of wesker moral strength, seeing this, naturally assumes that he is justified in violating the law to get what he wants, even though he has to rob a bank or commit murder to do it.

Now in local politics, in order to be able to vote intelligently, we must know the issues involved, and the character of the candidates who offer for public office. The diligent man and woman can know these things; but in national politics or in state politics even, it is impossible for us to know the individual, so we must have political parties that represent or stand for certain fundamental principles, and we then hold the party responsible for the execution or the putting into effect of those principles. When a man offers himself for local public office, I am never concerned so much as to whether he is a Democrat or a Republican, but I am interested in the character of the man, his ability to accomplish the most for his constituents, and I have always tried to vote for what I considered the best interests of my country, regardless of partisan politics.

In national politics in this country we have two major parties, the Republican party and the Democratic party. There are two fundamental differences between these parties. These differencs, and especially one of them, I consider vital to the progress and development of America, and there can never be any compromise on fundamental issues. These fundamental differences between the two major parties are: first the matter of State's Rights or local self-government, and this difference is growing less important all the time; and, second, the tariff question or the matter of protection for American industry. This difference between the parties is fundamental and must remain so until the standard of living, socially, economically and racially throughout the world is virtually the same. I would not predict that this will ever be.

Certain designing politicians in some sections of the country, in order to advance their personal interests and to extend their tenure in office, try to make it appear that there are other differences between the two parties, but in fact there are not. There can be no fundamental difference of opinion among white people as to the importance of racial purity or white supremacy, and there can be no difference between them upon the subject of honesty and the keeping of the industrial and competitive door of opportunity open to our children. The prejudices engendered by the Civil War warped, for a day, the universal opinion among white men relative to one of these things, but this difference is gone, and it will never again return to curse this country. That prejudice will no longer prevent a realization in fact of that "more perfect union" which was the dream of the founders of this Republic.

Back in the early days when transportation was slow, and communication at a distance almost impossible, the Democratic party made great capital out of tht issue of local self-government, but when our modern means of communication by mail, by wire and by radio came into existence, and when our rapid means of transportation by rail, by automobile and by airplane came, the Democrats lost much of their campaign thunder on this issue. The national prohibition law, the national narcotic law, the white slave law, the law against the interstate operation of stolen automobiles, are all evidences of the absolute necessity of expanding the national authority in accordance with Republican principles. The strongest objection to the enactment of the national prohibition law was that it violated principles of local self-government. This is vindicating absolutely the position of the Republican party on this question.

And now we consider the second difference, the tariff question. Here

Mr. Willie C. Edwards

When we consider the useful and successful men and women that Chilton County has sent out into the world then we begin to realize the important parts the mothers and the fathers of our county have played and are still playing in the history of America. Their ideals and principles are spreading out into the world to make it a better place and in no son of Chilton County or any other county have lofty ideals and inspirations been more evident than in the person of Willie C. Edwards and no community has sent out a more useful citizen. Mr. Edwards, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Edwards, was born at Route 2, Clanton, July 17, 1896. He attended the grammar school and the C. C. H. S. from which he graduated. At Auburn he studied electrical engineering. When the World War broke out Mr. Edwards answered his country's call and attended the training camp at Auburn, at which time he was in the radio department. His company was ready to leave for the front when the armistics was signed. He graduated at Auburn with high honors in 1918. Mr. Edwards served his apprenticeship, one year at Westinghouse, at Pittsburgh, Pa. Due to his unusual talent and ability he mde a great impression upon the head of Westinghouse and was given a position as superintendent of the branch at Springfitld, Mass. On July 14, 1920 Mr. Edwards married one of Clanton's young ladies, Miss Mae Roberts. Three years later he was made sales manager of the United States for Westinghouse. The later part of that year he was called back to Springfield and given another promotion. The next year Westinghouse discontinued his branch of the work but recommended him highly to the North East Electric Company at Rochester, New York. After spending a short time in the shops he was promoted to assistant manager in Chicago. In 1925 he was promoted to general masager at Detroit, Mich. This position he now holds. This Company while manufacturing various types of electrical machinery specializes in electrical parts for automobile motors.

Mr. Edward's career has been an interesting one. He has risen steadily from the beginning and having put his hand to the plow he never turned back.

He will be remembered as a splendid character, a bit reserved but withal a jovial manner which made him popular wherever he went.

Chilton County and Alabama are proud of him and we congrtulate him and also those who have been his inspiration through life.

Chilton County Baptist Association Last Week

The Chilton County Baptist Association met at Poplar Springs Church on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. A large delegation was present, twenty nine out of the thirty-two churches being represented.

It was reported that the opening of this meeting was the largest of any corresponding opening in he history of the Association. All Church reports were duly read and commented upon, many of which were excellent.

Many visitors added to the interest of the meeting. Among them was Dr. S. J. Ezell, who represented the "Alabama Baptist", for which he took 32 subscriptions. He also presented the book, "Man's Fairest Hope," for which he took subscriptions numbering 28.

A special offering for the Orphan's Home was taken, amounting to $32.-25. Offerings made by delegates to the meeting amounted to $61.25. The total of the two, $93,50 was sent to the home at Troy, Ala.

On the second day, the W. M. U. was well represented. Dr. G. F. Green, State Secretary and Treasurer, was present. The subject of his discussion was the Program for 1928. Dr. Seymour represented the Baptist Hospital in Selma, concerning which he made a very interesting talk.

An offering of about fourteen dollars was made to the two blind ministers, Paul Oden, of Maplesville, and George Anderson of Pletcher.

Respectfully,
Publicity Committee.

GOOD RECORD MADE ON THE THOMAS SCHOOL BUILDING

The people of Poplar Springs, Maple Springs and Bethel communities have recently erected a new, and modern school building which takes care of their children in a most splendid way.

The work on this building was supervised by Mr. J. L. Wilson. One of the interesting things about the erection of this building is that it cost less than any other building of its kind erected anywhere in the county or state. This was largely due to the economical way in which the material was purchased and the care exercised in employing labor. If all communities would follow the example of this one we would soon have our children housed in buildings that would be adequate to the teaching needs.

The Thomas School, the name of the new building, is a Junior High School. All the grades through the 9th will be taught at this place.

Mrs. Clifford Mullins and her little daughter, Emmie Sue, of Mitchell Dam, were visitors to our city last Friday.

BIRMINGHAM PEOPLE HURT IN CAR WRECK

Four Injured Seriously When Car Struck Post And Turned Over

C. W. Gwyer of Birmingham, his wife and daughter, and his father, Wm. Gwyer, were victims of a serious automobile accident on the Birmingham highway 15 miles north of Clanton last Sunday morning. The elder Gwyer sustained the most serious injuries, his back being wrenched, and other injuries internally. The daughter was severely cut about the head and neck. Mr. and Mrs. Gwyer were painfully injured, but not so bad as the other two.

The party were coming from Birmingham. When they attempted to pass a truck Mr. Gwyer lost control of his machine. It struck a post by the side of the road and turned completely over.

The ijured people were picked up and brought to the Central Alabama Hospital at Clanton, where they received medical attention. Authorities at the hospital say they will recover in a reasonable time.

Dr. Ezell delivered a masterly address last Sunday. It should have been heard by three times as many people as were present. Don't fail to come next Sunday morning at eleven o'clock.

AGE BLEED THROUGH

COLD WEATHER IS COMING; GET YOUR CAR READY FOR IT

Flint, Mich., Oct. 22.—It's time for the car owner to prepare for cold weather. This is the reminder issued by C. W. Jacobs, service manager of the Buick Motor Company, who advises attention to batteries, oil, tires, brakes, etc., as a precaution against winter annoyance. The following suggestions made by Mr. Jacobs hold good for most cars.

1. Have the battery checked and if nenessary charged to insure vigorous cranking in cold weather. Have generator cleaned and charging rate advanced to maintain battery in proper condition.

2. Switch to lighter oil at the first indication that the starter is having hard work cranking the engine.

3. See that tires are sound. It is less troublesome to repair them now than to make emergency changes in cold weather.

4. Have brake action equalized, particularly on two-wheel brake cars. "The newer the car, of course, the less the chance of interrupted service due to cold weather," said Mr. Jacobs. "With the new Buicks for instance, most of these preparations may be omitted. Buick for 1928 is equipped with an automatic charging control which prolongs the life of the battery by preventing over charging. The charge is adjusted for winter and summer operation without any attention. Addition of water is all the new Buick's battery is likely to need for a long time.

5. Sufficient alcohol should be added to radiator to prevent damage by freezing, but not until weather requires it. "The crankcase oil in Buick for 1928 need not be changed very often. It must of course be replenished from time to time, and as cold weather approaches, these replenishments should be made with lighter oil.

"Unless they are very evidently out of adjustment, the Buick brakes will need no attention in preparation for winter But for the average car, they should be checked over carefully for icy streets and badly equalized brakes are a dangerous combination.

"Pretty neasly every one who is driving a car today may remember when the majority of owners jacked up their automobiles for winter, drained the oil and water, and deflated the tires. Today that is almost unheard of. There is no reason why, with a little extra care, the modern motor car should not go through the winter without a single interruption of service."

Keep Kidneys Active!

You Can't Feel Well When Kidneys Act Sluggishly.

TO feel always tired, lame and achy is too often a sign of improper kidney action. When the kidneys act sluggishly, waste poisons remain in the blood, and are apt to make one languid, stiff and achy, with dull headaches, dizziness and often nagging backache. A common warning that the kidneys are not acting right is scanty or burning secretions. Assist the kidneys with Doan's Pills. Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increase kidney activity. Are endorsed from coast to coast. Ask your neighbor!

Pimples, Boils, Skin Eruptions

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until [illegible] S.S.S. which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin; makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

CULP SCHOOL HOUSE

Dear Old Banner: As I have not read a piece in the paper from this place in a long time, I would be glad to see this in print.

Health of the people around here is very good now.

Our school is extra good. We have a good teacher, Miss Cora Owens, and we like to go to school to her. I am a schoolgirl in the fourth grade.

Winter time is almost here. The farmers are about done gathering their crops. Crops were good in this vicinity, except sugar cane. It has been a very dry fall.

(S. L. NORTON, Manager).

Last Sunday morning at the Congregational church during the Sunday School hour a very interesting missionary program was presented representing a scene in a Hindu home where a son had just returned from a Christian School and was relating to the family some of the things he had learned. He also expressed a desire to begin at once teaching others to speak English and to know about Jesus. Those taking part were Robert Dickson, John VanDerveer and several others boys and girls. Rev. Each preached a strong sermon from the text "Why stand ye here all the day idle." At the evening service there was a full house to see the stereopticon pictures of Utah.

Sunday afternoon Rev. and Mrs. Each and daughters, Jaunita, Lucille and Marie, accompanied by Miss Fairbank motored to Crest view, Chilton County, east of Coopers where they visited the family of Rev. A. C. Nelson, pastor of the Congregational church at that place. This church has recently taken on new life and outgrown the building in which they worship. Several additions have been received to their membership. The small Christian Endeavor Society has increased to upward of 60 members, and their Ladies Aid Society having promised to raise $100 towards paying for the new addition to the church building, secured $120. BLEED THROUGH

TON LITTER NEWS LETTER

The big problem of the hog man is the same as any other business man, a question of overhead. Carrying a sow to raise one litter of 4 or 5 pigs in a year will, in most years, mean loss. If an average of 8 pigs to the litter are raised and two litters secured per year you have gone a long way toward reducing overhead expense and, incidentally, in increasing profit.

Alabama's first ton litter show was held at Montgomery, October 5-6, with 20 entries present. Kopecky Farms won first on a litter of 10 Chester White pigs which weighed 1940 lbs. at 152 days of age. The feed cost on this litter was $5.40 per hundred and they sold for $11.35 per hundred. Shelby county had the most ton litter entries at the show and county agent, Lauderdale, was awarded the trip to the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, for his excellent work in getting his farmers to exhibit their litters at the show. This is to be made an annual event, so let's plan now to have all litters farrowed about March 1st, and be prepared to make the show bigger and better than it was this year.

The results of this year's ton litter work will be summarized and sent to you in the near future. Remember, there is still the premium money offered by the Happy Feed Mills, which will be awarded to the best state litter, regardless of whether they were shown or not. If you have your records complete on your litter, send it in so that you can be considered in awarding this money. If possible, send a picture of your litter along with the feed record.

Several significant points have been brought out during the past two years in our ton litter work, which are worth sumamrizing.

1.—Only pure-bred boars sire ton litters—Of all the litters which have successfully made the ton litter requirements in 180 days, in Alabama, every one was sired by a pure-bred boar. It does not make much difference whether it is Poland-China, Duroc-Jersey or Berkshire or Chester White boar, but be sure your litter is sired by a pure-bred boar.

2.—The most Economically Produced Litters Had Forage Crops—A study of the records of the cost of producing ton litters shows that green feed, such as oats, oats and vetch, clover, sorghum, or some suitable green feed reduces the cost of making 100 lbs. of gain from 10 to 20 percent. This will apply to hog production in general as well as to ton litters.

3.—The Auburn Ration Is Satisfactory Ton Litter Hog Feed—About 90 per cent of the litters fed out in the ton litter contest during the past two years have been fed the Auburn Ration consisting of corn, 60 lbs., wheat shorts 32 lbs., and tankage 8 lbs., together with a mineral mixture of equal parts of charcoal, lime and salt.

4.—Hogs Fed by the Ton Litter Method Can Be Produced for $7.00 Per Hundred—The average of all litters fed by this method, where accurate records were kept, show that the average feed cost is slightly below $7.00 per hundred Where good forage crops are used in addition to the grain mixture, the cost is nearer $5.00 per hundred.

5.—All Parts of Alabama Are Suited For Hog Production—Litters have been fed out and records kept on the cost of production from Mobile to Huntsville and where proper feed, care and management are used, hogs can be produced at a profit.

Ask your county agent, C. E. Stapp, about the Auburn Ton Litter Method of making pork, or write direct to the Animal Husbandry Department, Auburn, Ala.

LOCAL BOYS WIN FOURTH SRAIGHT GAME OF SEASON

The Chilton County High School Football squad added another victory to their list Friday afternoon at the High School Park by defeating the West Blocton team by the score of 54 to 0. This is Chilton's fourth straight game of the season to win. Their goal line has not been crossed by any team they have come up against this season so far.

Coach O. V. Bruner has taken a bunch of "greenhorns" and made a real football team out of them. When the High School started its term for this year only one or two of the old players were seen on the campus. He has spent much time and pain in training his boys to play this sport. He has worked with the boys and taught them the many secrets of football until he has got a football team that is worth going to see to play a clean game of this sport. He is not the only factor which made the Chilton County High School team a success but the boys themselves are due much credit for their willingness to go out and help and encourage one another.

Chilton has only four more games this season and they expect to to win them all and if possible go through the season without being scored on.

The team connects up with the Sylacauga outfit next Friday afternoon. Sylacauga is rated as having mighty good team and is going to put up a hard fight for the Chilton bunch. The game is called at 3:00 o'clock P. M. so be there to see the kick off.

The figures below show you how the Chilton boys have piled up score after score without letting their opponents cross their goal line for a single point.

The season record—

Chilton—	37	Marbury—	0
Chilton—	50	Verbena—	0
Chilton—	19	Coosa—	0
Chilton—	54	Blockton—	0

RAISES PUMPKINS AND KERSHAUS

There is a barber in Clanton that can produce something besides bumps on your face and a sore scalp; that barber is Ivy O. Blalock. He can raise pumpkins and kershaus, and he says he can raise peas and turnips. We haven't seen any of the latter, but he proved that he can raise the first two mentioned by bringing The Banner a nice sample of each. And they make good eating too.

TEACHING FORCE RECRUITED FROM THE FARMS

Sixty-five per cent of all students in the five State teachers' colleges of Missouri came from farm homes. In the Louisiana State Normal College 36 per cent, and in the four Michigan State Normal Schools 34 per cent of all students gave farming as the occupation of their parents. Even in the Industrial States of Massachuetts and Pennsylvania 8 per cent and 19 per cent, respectively of normal school students are farmers' children. Of the students granted masters' degrees in the department of education of the University of Chicago during the period 1924-1927, 42 per cent of the 197 reporting on this matter gave farming as the occupation of their parents.

DOLBY ROBINSON ARRESTED AT MAPLESVILLE, ALABAMA

ARTHUR GIBSON CHARGED WITH STEALING A CAR

Arthur Gibson was arrested Monday morning between here and the river while making his way to Coosa County. It is charged that Gibson stole a car from Latham Ellis. He was placed in jail and at the time of this writing he has not made bond.

JOHNSON ARRESTED SUNDAY

Last Sunday afternoon the Sheriff was called to the store of Jeff Best on the Mulberry Road, where there was some trouble between a man by the name of Johnson and Mr. Best. It was stated that Johnson and his son-in-law, named Henley, were at Best's store drunk and raising a lot of trouble.

Johnson and Best, we understand, engaged in a fight, after which Best shot at Johnson, and Johnson then made an effort to secure a gun with to carry on the racket.

Some disinterested parties held the trouble down the best they could until the Sheriff arrived. Johnson and Henley were arrested and placed under bond on charges of public drunkenness.

FIVE RING CIRCUS COMING TO MONTGOMERY OCT. 28TH

Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey To Bring Sacred White Elephant And Other Big Features.

Yep, youngsters, it's really true! Meaning that a rumor heard some time ago is now confirmed by the official announcement that the Ringling Bros. & Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows will positively exhibit at Montgomery on Friday, October 28.

At that time the world's first and only five-ring circus will be within easy reach of local saw-dust fans. With it will come the only genuine white elephant ever brought to America. He is "Pawah" the world famed sacred white pachyderm from Burma, which will be the foremost feature of a menagerie composed of more than a thousand animals.

The big show is now a third larger than it was when it last visited Montgomery. Enormous new displays have been introduced such as ninety zebras, camels and horses performing at one time on a mammoth pedestal. On a similar series of circular raised platforms thirty-two of the show's forty-three elephants dance, run and perform in unison with the topmost of the ponderous actors twenty feet above the ground. Prior to this gigantic display five herds of elephants appear in the five separate rings. At another time the rings are given over to five companies of liberty horses. At still another juncture of the program two hundred of the show's 900 horses, each ridden by an expert, are seen in the brilliant maneuvers.

Of the sixteen hunred people carried on tour this season more than 8 hundred are the world's foremost aerialists, bareback riders, ground and lofty gymnasts, high-wire artists and super athletes. These are not seen in extensive groups and troupes each display led by its particular champions, a new method of presentation that is in keeping with the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailty 1927 plan of extending acts in equal number over the entire length of the mammoth main tent. Little folks will be delighted to learn that the bringing of a snore of European clowns to America has increased the fun-makers to more than a hundred.

Only Buick has an engine Vibrationless beyond belief

BUICK'S remarkable freedom from vibration is due primarily to three vitally important factors. First—the inherent smoothness of the Buick Valve-in-Head six-cylinder engine. Second—rubber engine mountings, front and rear. And third—the scientific and almost perfect balance of the entire Buick crankshaft assembly.

Only Buick enjoys these advantages. And only Buick provides the silken performance—the unvarying smoothness at all speeds—the longer life and greater serviceability of an engine vibrationless beyond belief.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

All signs indicate that 1928 will be one of the most interesting political years in a decade. It is not often that both great parties approach the presidential campaign with open fields. Generally in one of the major parties there is some outstanding figurt who dominates the field, the chief executive himself, of coures if the party happens to be in power. Until a few weeks ago it seemed likely, that the fight for the nomination would be principally in the Democratic convention. But the famous message of President Coolidge has changed all this and the indication is now that both the Republicans and Democrats will go into convention with loins girded for a real struggle.

Just at present, with President Coolidge taking himself out of the running, the dominating figure so far as the control of delegates is concerned is in the Democratic and not the Republican Party, and this dominating figure is Governor Al Smith of New York. As the weeks roll by it is becoming more and more evident that Governor Smith is a Democratic factor of overshadowing importance. Of course he has a great many hurdles yet to take and will continue to incur opposition in his own party, especially from the so-called dry wing. And yet the pre-convention campaign has progressed far enough to indicate that he will be from the jump the leading contender in the Democratic convention.

There are responsible Democratic leaders in Washington, some of them not personally in favor of the nomination of the New York governor, who will not hesitate to tell you that they do not see how Smith's nomination could be headed off if the convention were held now. True it is that in the Democratic convention the successful candidate must have two-thirds of the delegates to win, and true it is that the unit rule prevails, but it is not to be forgotten that the convention can change these rules if it sees fit and there is little doubt that a great effort will be made by Governor Smith's friends to change them.

The greatest handicap which the anti-Smith forces must undergo now lies in the fact that they have no outstanding leader to rally around. Mr. McAdoo has taken himself out of the race. There is a great deal of talk of Senator Reed of Missouri, but his long, effective fight against the Wilson administration has rendered him persona non grata in a political sense with many Wilsonian Democrats. Senator Reed is a keen, forceful fighter, however, and a factor to be reckoned with in the next Democratic convention. Since the anti-Smith force is unorganized, however, it can not function effectively unless it gets some sort of effective organization. Before many weeks have rolled around the Smith men believe that it will be too late to stop their candidate.

Of course there are many anti-Smith Democrats who make light of the New York governor's chances for the nomination, but the trouble is that they are not doing anything about it. The Democrats base their hope of electing Smith on the Solid South and the liberal East. They admit that their candidate will be weak in the West but they claim they can figure out a combination of eastern and southern states which would put him over.

The Republicans, however, profess not to fear the Smith menace in the final analysis. They are unwilling to concede any of the eastern industrial states to Smith, not even New York. They declare that the East needs the protective tariff and other Republican policies and that this will outweigh the advantage which Smith would get from the support of Republican liberals.

Be that as it may it must be admitted that at this time Governor Smith is the outstanding figure in the Democratic party and that if he is to be headed off from the nomination his Democratic opponents will have to get busy pretty soon.

Woman is more efficient. She can talk for forty minutes without a pitcher of water on a stand nearby.—San Francisco Chronicle.

An optimist is anyone who believes any of the European nations really want to reduce armaments.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The British are very cordial toward any scheme of naval equality which will leave them with the biggest navy.—Dallas News.

Dr. Anna Besant says that she fears another World War. If there is one we'll bet it will be a little harder for the warriors to borrow money in the United States next time.

Speaking of more wars it's our idea that it wouldn't be good business to start another until the last one is paid for.

It's our judgment that President Hindenburg enjoyed his eightieth birthday a lot more than he did his seventieth one. At least the messages of congratulation came from a much wider territory.

REPUBLICANS ARE ORGANIZING IN FLORIDA

For several years there has come an occasional word of interest from Florida concerning efforts to formulate a real functioning Republican party in the Peninsula state. This subject has been of constant interest to many people in the South who have held on faithfully to the hope that we should some time see the day when a strong, respectable, white Republican party should be recognized in every community of the Southland.

Many great minds there are who hold that such a realization is the remotest impossibility to be imagined in the South. Perhaps such minds are spurred into such an attitude more by the hope of such an impossibility than the real facts to justify such prediction. Anyway, in the light of progress in politics and government throughout this nation, in which the interests of every part of the country are constantly drawn closer and closer together, we do not see why the Republican party can not readjust itself to conditions in the South and become a real contending factor in the government of the Southern States.

The Republican party in the South must be a white man's party. It must be owned and controlled by white men. The Republican party in the North can get along with the negro in its council; but it can't do it in the South. The Democratic party can get along in the North with the negro in its councils; but it can't do it in the South.

The following interesting editorial from the Melbourne (Fla.) Times-Journal concerning Republican organization in that state has come to our attention, and we reproduce it herewith in full:

Republicans Organizing

From information that trickles out from a conference held at Tampa last Saturday by a large group of republican leaders, the two wings of the party are getting nearly together for a contest with democracy in 1928 that will be a challenge for supremacy between the two great parties of the United States.

There has in recent years, come into existence in Florida, a strong sentiment for two party government. This sentiment has been fostered by a new element of Republicans who insist on a functioning party in county and state elections, and along lines consistent with state conditions in northern states. This new new party, that has become the dominant party, has insisted that the negro should not participate in its councils nor should they be delegates to state and national conventions. The old guard Republicans, now the minority faction, continued to take the negro into its councils and to elect colored delegates to state and national conventions.

There could not be, as pointed out through our editorial columns a few weeks ago, any effective Republican party in Florida with these divergent views. Nor can any official action be taken against the colored vote, for the simple reason that the national committee dare not recognize discrimination against the negro. Such recognition would be resented by colored voters of the North and endanger Republican states.

Under the new regime, growing out of recent conferences, however, it is possible that a united state organization will come into existence that will make a virile, functioning organization possible. By an agreement that federal office holders, whether elected or appointed, shall not be members of the state committee, one of the division walls between the two wings, has been eliminated, it is understood; in the past, the old guard party has functioned through federal office holders almost exclusively. Under the new arrangement the state committee will be elected by white delegates from the various counties. In general elections colored people may vote if they wish, but they will not participate in conventions. Not so many of them care to. This new line-up will, if carried out, make the Republican party a real contender for congressional and state offices. It will also mean that hereafter, Republicans can not participate in democratic primaries. Each party will paddle its own canoe. That this new Republican party in Florida is about to come into being, is now a pretty well established fact.

In this same connection The Union-Banner has received a copy of the address delivered by Hon. E. E. Callaway before a meeting of Hillsborough County Republicans in Tampa, Florida, Friday evening, October 7th, 1927, which we are printing elsewhere in this paper. We presume the address of Mr. Calloway and the meeting which he attended is the same one from which the information has "trickled" into the editorial sanctum of the Melbourne Times-Journal.

From reading the utterances of Mr. Calloway one would think its echo must have sounded in many of the high places of Florida; and we doubt not that many editorial sanctums felt something trickling in when it came to their attention.

Mr. Calloway is a Coosa County boy. He paused in Clanton on his way from the estate of a poor, ignorant, country boy to that of a cultured, strong and influential lawyer, long enough to give us claim to him as one of our own. He is admired very much here by many who knew him and recognized the fire that was in him for great things in life.

OUR WORLD TRADE

One of the most touching instances of modern economic diplomacy can be found in the earnestness with which European economists are now warning us that if we do not mend our ways so far as the tariff is concerned, and lower our rates, the time is soon coming when we will have no foreign trade at all.

Of course any situation in which Uncle Sam would be stripped of all his foreign trade would be greeted by his European competitors with sincere lamentations. These same European nations are now competing with us for the trade of the world. They know that if our trade falls off, theirs will gain accordingly. What a beautiful example therefore of international unselfishnesss! It is in fact so beautiful that we are at once suspicious that there may be an Ethiopian lingering near the woodpile. Europe has never been so solicitous of our welfare before.

There is of course a reason. What Europe covets is the American market. She knows it is worth more than most of the other world markets put together. If she could get it she could afford to give up a great deal of the rest of the world trade. But she knows also that this sacrifice would not be necessary. Once the European nations have penetrated our tariff barrier and captured the American market the American manufacturer will be helpless. His mills will close, and bereft of the great home market which keeps him going now, he will lose out both at home and abroad. Here is the rub. European economists do not want us to lower our tariffs so that we may increase our foreign trade. What they desire is to capture the rich American market and so cripple American industry that we will be unable to compete either at home or abroad.

The campaign method in Mexico is direct and decisive. All you have to do is kill off the opposition candidates. There is no need for ballot box stuffing.

Speaking of efficiency and mass production, the experts will have to take off their hats to the American hen who collectively lays 760 eggs per second.

SECTIONALISM PASSING

The automobile has been charged with many things, most of which probably are not true, but at any event there is something to be added to the credit side of the ledger. Figures prepared by government statisticians show that during the past fifteen years 600,000 miles of highway have been built in the United States and another million miles have been made more serviceable. There are still a great many small communities in certain parts of the country which are not on railroad lines but these are now being connected up more closely with the outside world through the medium of motor transport lines. It is now possible to travel from Maine to California and from Oregon to Florida by motor without any discomfort because of impassable roads. And the highways are being constantly improved.

Now of course all of this is costing money and the automobiles which skim over these roads are costing money. But aside from the economic benefit, which is by no means small, the roads are worth the entire cost because of the effect they are having on the unity of the country.

Northerners are motoring south and southerners are motoring to New England. The westerner tours in the East and the easterner drives through the West in his more or less trusty car. The man from one section is finding that the people in another section are a great deal like the folks at home after all. He is beginning to appreciate the magnitude and the many advantages of his country, and to see that after all, north and south, east and west we are an homogenous people. As one motor expert recently put it:

"The political effects of motor transportation are startlingly evident. If we could have visualized the United States in possession of motor transportation in 1861, can any one doubt that there would have been no Civil War? Such a political consequence, we can readily understand, would have been impossible if our people had had the facilities of travel, of business, and the social and educational advantages we now enjoy through motor transportation."

Perhaps some of our people are driving automobiles who ought to be farming, or going to school or attending to business. But this does not lessen to any extent the value of good roads and motor transportation to the country. We have always had the shiftless with us and always will have. And if these persons who can not afford to spend so much time motoring, had no motoring facilities they would probably be fishing or doing something worse to kill time.

At any rate good roads and gasoline are rapidly making us one united nation. The day of sectionalism is passing. May its departure be speeded.

SMALL POWERS LOSE FAITH IN LEAGUE

There are signs of revolt on the part of small nations members of the League of Nations, in expression of their discontent with the lethargic attitude of the League towards problems for the solution of which it presumably was created and with the tendency of dominant powers to deal secretly among themselves, ignoring the little powers and the authority of the league itself, says the National Republic in commenting on the recent sessions at Geneva. These rebellious indications cropped out at the September, 1927, sessions of the league council and league assembly at Geneva in a manner sufficiently conspicuous to worry friends of the league with fears for the continued existence of the arganization and to create a world-wide impression that the prestige of the league has not been heightened any by happenings in the last twelve months.

Of course the situation—the secret dealings of the big powers among themselves and the impotency of the league in meeting any but minor problems and controversies, is not by any means a new one. But, heretofore, the behavior of the small fry among the league membersship has been that of silent submission or, perhaps, an occasional show of soft-grumbling resentment.

When, however, in this September session of the league assembly, Norway and Lithuania joined Sweden in a demand for less passive attitude by the league council toward important international political problems, there were inumerable and distinctly audible murmurs of approval from various other delegations, and from the mixed public galleries there was an outburst of applause so surprising and so vociferous as to prompt many cranings of necks on the floor of the assembly.

The president of the Norwegian Chamber of Deputies, C. J. Hambro, according to an Associated Press report of the proceedings, told the gathering quite firmly that his "whole cabinet was disappointed in the failure of the League of Nations to agree on disarmanent principles."

The statesmen of a few great powers in the league, he continued, often settled questions in private, and the public discussion in the council afterward was a mere formality. He said that the small nations all are waiting and wondering what the leading nations are going to do about disarmament. One difficulty, he remarked, is "that there are too many diplomats at the league meting and they are not in favor of publicity."

Mr. Hambro urged that the meeting of the disarmament preparatory commission, of which the United States is a member, be held in November as scheduled and not be postponed.

Miss Grace Furr Marries.—

A wedding that came as a surprise to her many friends was that of Miss Grace Furr and Mr. J. L. Butcher which took place at the home of the groom's parents while on a visit in Knoxville, Tenn., Thursday morning, October 13 at 10:30. The bride's mother, Mrs. J. L. Furr received a telegram the same day at twelve o'clock notifying her of the marriage. Miss Furr since moving here from Montgomery a year ago has held several responsible positions in Clanton where she has made a number of friends. She is a pretty girl of the brunette type. Mr. and Mrs. Butcher will make their home in Ashville, North Carolina.

May We Present.—

It has been our pleasure through our paper to introduce the fine corps of Grammar school teachers to the public, and now we come to the last teacher in the Grammar school, and last but not least is a very apt expression in this case. Miss Watson the teacher of the sixth grade is an able and concientius teacher. Her record as a pupil as well as a teacher proves that she is most dependable to pass onto pupils the splendid training in character which she has received in her home. A teacher of this type is always an asset to any school and is fully appreciated in our community.

Miss Watson's home is Furman, Ala., where she taught three years. This fact in itself bespeaks the high esteem in which she was held in her home town. She has a most amiable disposition and is very fond of children.

One of Miss Watson's hobbies is promoting athletics on the school grounds, one of the essentials for a well rounded child. Miss Watson received her training at Alabama College.

Friends will be glad to know that Mr. P. D. Wilson, who is a patient in the T. C. I. hospital in Birmingham, is pronounced to be in a state of improvement, and it is hoped that he will be able to return home within the next ten days.

Birthday Party for Trio.—

A social affair long to be remembered by the number of guests who attended, was the dinner given by Mrs. W. M. Pool, Wednesday evening in honor of the birthdays of Mrs. W. S. Cox, her son Reedy Taylor and Mr. Tom Taylor. The dining table was centered with a huge white cake topped with candles to represent the ages of the honorees. The table was laden with a bountiful dinner typical of by-gone days when nothing was spared to make a perfect meal. At the conclusion of the dinner which the guests declared was the best they had had in years, a number of games and laughable contests were enjoyed. Among the most interesting features of the evening were the clever impersonations given by several guests.

The party was concluded at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Taylor where the radio was enjoyed. When the guests departed for their home at a late hour they were loathe to leave the scene of their delightful entertainment. With the wish for the long life and prosperity of the honorees was coupled the wish that they might have birthdays oftener so that the guests might again experience the pleasure of such a wonderful evening. The guests included Misses Etta Baker, Erin Danforth, Grace Foshee, Annie Mae Foshee, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Baker, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cox, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. W. S. County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled By C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

HOW TO CONTROL WEEVILS IN CORN

There are many species of insects that attack stored corn. Some of the most important of these are the Granary Weevil, the Rice Weevil, Angonomois Moth, and the Inian Meal Moth. Any or all of these are likely to be found in corn bins in Alabama. If each of these pests had to be treated differently the cost might be so great that it would not be wise or profitable to attempt to control them even though the damage done by them amounts to thousands of dollars annually. The facts are, however, that they can all be controlled in the same way and at a cost of only a few cents per bushel.

Carbon disulphide is the insecticide to use. Carbon disulphide or "high life", is a liquid which evaporates rapidly when exposed to air. The gas given off is heavier than air and is "deadly" to all forms of animal life, when sufficiently concentrated. This gas is very inflamable and will explode when brought in contact with any form of fire, even a lighted cigarette. But, regardless of these characteristics, it can be used safely on the farm without any danger where ordinary precautions are taken. High life can be purchased from your local druggists for about 35 cents per pound. It is cheaper in larger quantities.

Steps in Preventing Weevil Injury

Gather all corn as soon as it is mature and well dried. The first field of corn planted should be gathered first because this serves as a trap crop and most of the weevils found in the field will be in this early crop. All early corn should be stored separately so that it can be used at once or treated as soon as it can be stored.

Before storing any of the new crop of corn remove all old corn and shucks from the crib. Then all the walls and floors should be swept thoroughly. All the meal, trash and live weevils collected in sweeping should be burned. If this is done a large number of old weevils will be destroyed that would otherwise infest the new corn as soon as it is placed in storage. The floors and walls of the crib should be inspected for places that are not as near air tight as they might be. The floor and wall should be made as tight as possible. This keeps out rats and mice and also reduces the amount of high life needed for fumigation.

Fumigating with Carbon Disulphide

If the corn is gathered early, the trap or early corn is stored separately, and the crib is swept clean before the new crop is stored, this should protect the main crop from any serious damage before the following summer. A close watch should be kept however, and if weevils become abundant, carbon disulphide should be used to fumigate the corn at once.

The tightness of the floor and walls of the crib determine the amount of high life to use. In especially tight cribs, 10 to 15 pounds per 1000 cu- ft. is sufficient, but in ordianarilly tight cribs, 15 to 20 pounds will be safer. In cribs that have large cracks in both the floors and walls it is almost impossible to get the gas concentrated enough to give good control. The carbon disulphide should be placed in shallow pans on top of the corn and bin tightly closed. (The temperature must be 70 degrees or above for satisfactory results) Since the gas is heavier than air it penetrates downward through the corn killing the insects. The fumigation should last 36 to 48 hours after which the building should be opened and the surplus gas allowed to escape.

Monday night of this week, Mr. Stapp met with the farmers of Maple Springs community at the new Thomas Junior High School and discussed soil building and fertilizers, etc.

Tuesday night he met with the farmers of Cane Creek community and had a similar meeting.

Wednesday night he and Mr. J. P. Montgomery, vocational teacher at Jemison, met with the farmers of Providence community, northwest of Jemison.

Friday night Mr. Stapp will visit the night school being conducted at Irvin school community by Mr. Montgomery, vocational teacher at Jemison.

Tuesday night, October 25, Mr. Stapp will meet with the farmers and other business men at Maplesville school building.

Wednesday night, October 26 he will meet with the business men of Jemison.

Fires started in 1926 with matches cigars, cigarettes, and other forms by careless smokers distroyed property worth $37,900,000.

TIMELY FARM FACTS

A good poultry ration can be mixed at home on the auburn plan. Those farmers who are doing it are finding that it pays.

Don't cut off the low limbs on young apple trees, for they bear one-third to half of the friut right where it can be pickel without a ladder.

It is a tragedy to make corn, gather it, store it in a crib, and then let weevils riddle it when on fumigation with carbon disulphide will prevent it.

The farmer who uses his extra cotton money this fall for improving his home and adding equipment which will save time and remove drudgery from housework will be making a splendid investment.

Under the stress of nutrition work conducted by the demonstration agents more and more farmers are making their gardens produce green vegetables every month in the year.

Miss Madelyn Orr, Editor

Miss Sanders, Hostess.—

Miss Vivian Sanders was hostess to the rook party at the home of Mrs. Clay Marcus Friday evening in honor of the C. C. H. S. football boys. Those included in this hospitality were: Misses Gertie Mae Fiquette, Velma Spencer, Vera Jones, Mary Jones, Katherine Hayes, Sunset Polk, Inez Kittrell; Messrs. Johnson-Gladden.—

Of interest to their wide circle of friends was the marriage of Miss Virginia Johnson and Mr. Lee Gladden of Rover, Arkansas, which took place at tht home of the bride at Concord on October 11th. Rev. J. H. Helms of Walnut Creek performed the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Johnson, a successful farmer of Concord. She is a young lady of fine qualities who has meant much to her community. She has a host of friends who wish her hapiness.

The groom is a native of Rover, Ark., and has been in Alabama only a few weeks, but during that time has made a number of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Downs, Hosts.—

The Night Bridge Club was entertained Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Downs at their lovely home on Sixth Street. Bright hued fall flowers were used in effective arrangement in the living and dining rooms. Potted plants completed the pretty effect. At the conclunion of a series of bridge games Mrs. Downs served a delicious salad and ice courhe. Mr. and Mrs Hance Alred won the high score prizes. Those enjoying this delightful affair were: Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gerald, Mr. and Mrs C. Fenn Jones, Mr and Mrs. J. Hance Alred, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs Glenn Boyd, Dr. and Mrs. N. S. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Heard and Miss Iverlyn Ingram.

Many of the friends of Miss Roberta Curry are under the impression that she is to appear in Kid Boots in Birmingham in the near future, but an interview with her mother, Mrs. Clara B. Curry disclosed the fact that this is an error since Miss Curry is busy practicing for the Squaw Man. a splendid production which will open on Broadway about Thanksgiving

Distinguished Visitor.—

Clanton had a very distinguished visitor last week in the person of Dr. Chas. E. Burnett who stopped over enroute to St. Petersburg, Fla., a few days to be the guests of Mr. Joe M. Holiday, an old friend whom he has visited in Mississippi on various hunting trips. Dr. Burnett is one of the most famous surgeons in the United States. He was rated in the book of "Who's who in America" as one of our most remarkable surgeons. Recently he held a clinic in Indianapolis. He has practiced medicine 27 years in Fort Lauterdale, Indiana and a few monts ago he retired. Dr. Burnett has traveled all over the world and his splendid personality bespeaks this broadening influence. He is a great sportsman having attended the field trial meets at Grand Junction and other places. Dr. Burnett has received a very good impression of Alabama and especially this section and he expects to spend much of the hunting season in Clanton. His favorite dog, Amy, registered under the name of Ah-mah-quah-zah-qoash, a direct desendent of Lord Lleyelyn's famous blood line of setters, is in the custody of Mr. Monroe Baker. Mr. Joe M. Holiday of the Chilton County News owns a mate to this famous dog.

Mrs. N. S. Johnson, Hostess.—

On Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock Mrs. N. S. Johnson delightfully entertained the members of her card club. Specimen dahlias and radiance roses in baskets in bowls formed the beautiful decorations. After a series of bridge games Mrs. J. Hance Alred was presented the high snore prize, a hand made luncheon cloth. Late in the afternoon Mrs. Johnson served a tempting salad and tea course. At the 3 tables were: Mesdames. Hance Alred, John Browder, Frank Callen, Grady Reynolds, Hugh Simpson, Lawrence Gerald, O. W. Jones, Victor Heard, J. Watts Moore and Miss Kathleen Mullins. The guests were: Miss Bettie Mullins and Mrs. Norman Roberts.

Mr. W. R. West of Calera was in Clanton Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Sheppard and their daughter, Ruth and Miss Carlton Carter of Birmingham, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Mullins Sunday.

Mr. Phillip Foshee of Howard College spent the week end at home.

Mrs. Eric Hart and Mrs. Hosea Downs motored to Montgomery Friday and spent the day shopping.

Mr. Henry Martin spent Tuesday night in Clanton.

Double Wedding.—

One of the most unique weddings of the season and one characterized by great beauty and dignity was the double wedding of Miss Leslie Polk to J. G. Hendricks and Miss Mildred Hendrick to Ralph Macon, which took place at the Methodist Church at Shelby, Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, on the anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks Sr's marriage. The ceremony was performed by Dr. W. R. Hendricks who twenty eight years ago officiated at the wedding of the parents of two of the participants. The bridal party assembled before an altar banked with palms and ferns interspersed with twenty eight burning tapers. Floor baskets and tall standards of sunset dahlias completed the beautiful effect.. Preceeding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was rendered. A violin and saxaphone duet was played by Miss Leslie Polk and J. G. Hendrick accompanied on the piano by Miss Margaret Humphriers of Wetumpka. A vocal solo was rendered by Watt Jones also of Wetumpka. Felix Macon, brother of the groom and J. G. Hendrick, Jr., were ushers. The maid of honor, Miss Madelyn Troup of Sylacauga, was lovely in an afternoon frock of rose georgette with hat to match. She carried an arm cluster of sunset dahlias. Mrs. John McWilliams Jr., of Birmingham, matron of honor was attractive in a georgette and velvet gown with a French hat to match. Little Miss Jean Sanford, the dainty little flower girl wore a dress of tan georgette. Master John William Macon wore a suit of brown velvet. He carried the ring in the heart of a rose. The first bride was given in marriage by her father. She was beautiful in a smart frock of brown velvet and gold lace with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of sunset roses. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Leonard Macon. When Dr. Hendrix had spoken the last words of the impressive ceremony and the bridal party turned to leave the church, Miss Leslie Polk who had so charmed the guests with her violin selections stepped from her place by the piano and joined J. G. Hendricks, Jr., brother of Miss Mildred Hendricks at the altar and Dr. Hendrix performed a second ceremony. The marriage of Miss Polk and Mr. Hendricks came as a complete surprise to both the wedding party and the assembled guests. Miss Polk was a picture of loveliness in an afternoon gown of brown velvet and satin with accessories to match. Her flowers were sunset roses tied with yellow tulle. Miss Polk, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Polk of Clanton is a most beautiful and gifted young lady. Her former home was in Columbiana. For the past year Miss Polk attended Woman's College at Montgomery where she pursued the study of the violin. There as elsewhere Miss Polk was pronounced a musician of unusual talent. During her stay in Canton she has made a host of friends who wish her much happiness.

J. G. Hendricks is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hendricks, Sr., of Shelby. He is a young man of splendid qualities. For the past months he has been a most successful young business man in Birmingham..

Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks will be at home to their friends at 309 Fulton Avenue, West End, Birmingham.

Lett-Strock Wedding.—

A beautiful church wedding marked the nuptials of Miss Cora Lett, daughter of Mr. Joe Lett, and Mr. William B. Strock, an event which took place Thursday afternoon at four o'clock at the Baptist Church, Verbena. The altar was banked with masses of ferns and glistening smilax flanked with pedestal baskets of goldenrod. Mrs. Will Gulledge and Sid Gibson furnished a beautiful program of nuptial music. Rev. Arthur Deloach performed the impressive ceremony. The maid of honor, Miss Vesta Lett was beautiful in an afternoon frock of brown crepe Elizabeth. She carried an arm cluster of buff colored chrysanthemums tied with yellow tulle. Mrs. James Wall of Birmingham, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. She was handsome in an afternoon frock of two tone tan. Her flowers were also yellow chrysanthemums tied with a deeper shade of tulle. The dainty little flower girls, Aileen Lett and Mary Cranford wore pink georgette dresses and caried arm baskets of sunset rose buds. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Joe Lett, and was ovely in a midnight blue crepe roman dress with accessories of tan. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lillies.

They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man Dunklin Strock. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Strock left for an extended wedding trip. On their return they will make their home in Verbena.

A MAN WHO LIVES IN A LOG

Our social editor, who has recently returned from North Alabama, recounts an interesting experience. While visiting Monte Sano, a beautiful mountain a few miles from Huntsville the party of which she was a member were puzzled by the appearance of a series of unusual signs on croker sacks as they rode down the mountain side. The signs read "Visit the Croe's Nest," "Follow the Flag," etc. The party, very curious by this time, decided to explore a bit and see what it was all about.

Over rough, stony road they went, led by small American flags, until finally they discovered the Croe's Nest — a large hollow log lying on the ground had been burned out inside and smoothed until it made a very comfortable bed. At the open end of the log a small screen door had been built to keep insects out, and a lantern was hung on the outside so that the occupant might read with perfect comfort.

So, believe it or not, the following, is true:

Several months ago Mr. F. M. Crowe of New York, the man who invented Crowe's tractor wheel, in two months time lost his wife and two sons. This tragedy was followed by financial losses, and then Mr. Crowe decided to try his luck in Florida. There also a feeling of depression and discontent followed him. At last he sought solitude.

After roving around several weeks following the call of the wanderlust Mr. Crowe drifted into Huntsville, and then to Monte Sano. Having no roof over his head, he found the large log lying on the ground and made it his home for six weeks.

This unusual mode of living excited the interest of a number of people and among them was a feature man of the Pathe News, who protographed Mr. Crowe and his odd home. The Pathe people, it is said, made the statement that this was the best story they had found in six years.

Mr. Crowe now lives alone in a tiny house made by himself. It is unusual in its dual atmosphere of crudeness and culture. His plans are for a series of cottages to be constructed soon, the occupants to be artists and authors, friends of the hermit.

To Build and Maintain The Roadbed

Great trains rushing over tracks and bridges take their toll in wear and tear—rivets and bolts work loose, materials of all kinds, steel, iron and wood, are affected by weather conditions. Constant vigilance is necessary to keep the roadbed safe and comfortable. 12,400 men are kept regularly employed in maintaining the Louisville & Nashville roadway, which requires an annual expenditure of more than $22,000,000.

There are many men employed in the various departments of American railroads who never come in contact with the public, but whose work is of vital importance to the successful operation of the finest transportation system on the face of the globe.

Electric Power Lines Are Diluting Agriculture With Industry

They are solving the Economic Problems of Rural Alabama

ELECTRIC power is binding the Alabama farmer to prosperity. It is diluting rural Alabama with industry. It is bringing industries to small Alabama towns. Industries create local markets for farm products. Local markets increase per capita wealth.

That is what electric power is doing for the Rural Alabamian! Look at this table and compare the wealth and advantages of the fifteen richest counties in Alabama with the fifteen poorest. Note how the value of manufactured finished proucts distinguishes the rich counties:

	15 Richest Counties	15 Poorest Counties
Mfg. value finished products	$24,954,120	$1,152,168
Average population per square mile	73	31
Assessed value per child of school age	1,447	741
School fund available from the county	585,379	98,541
Value of school property	1,904,163	178,633
Number of school days open	148	109

The solution of the economic problem of the Alabama farmer hangs by the copper strand of electric power lines! Through that strand flow the conveniences of an advanced civilization which is diluting rural Alabama with industry—and creating wealth!

"How best can I trade in my present car for a new car?"

WHEN you are ready to trade in your present car for a new car, you naturally want full value for your present car. But most of all you want full new car value.

It will therefore pay you to consider varying trade-in allowance offers in the light of these basic facts:

1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value: i.e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2 Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your present car.

6 Remember that you are making a purchase—not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply using your present car as a credit against the new car's purchase price.

Masterful Appeal For The Republican Party

is our fundamental fight, and upon this issue the Republican party is willing to accept battle. It has been the tradition of the Democratic party that it has favored free trade, or a tariff for "revenue only". It has been the tradition of the Republican party that it has favored a protective tariff—a tariff which protects—that is, a tariff which protects the industrial life of this country from the destructive competition of the countries maintaining lower standards of living and lower wage scales.

The Birmingham Age - Herald, which is a Democratic southern daily of Birmingham, Alabama, in its issue of June 24, 1923, carried a lengthy article relative to the industrial life of Germany, and in this article the number of millions employed in the mines and factories of Germany were mentioned, and with reference to the wages these millions received, the following statement was made: "Those handling fine machinery and doing skilled labor receive only three cents an hour, and twenty-five cents a day is above the average wage of the men and women employed." Think of it! Skilled men handling fine machinery in Germany receiving twenty-five cents per day as the average wage. Do the men of this country want to work for twenty-five or even fifty cents per day? If we do not protect American industry and if we permit Germany and other countries with a similar low standard of living and a similar low wage scale to flood this country with products produced and manufactured with this cheap labor, then the American laboring man will soon have to work for a cheap wage or his employer will have to close down his plant. This is not debatable. We maintain the highest standards of living conditions and the highest wage scale of any country on earth. This is self-evident because the people from the ends of the earth are trying to come here. If there were other better places, they would be trying to go there, and we would be trying to go with them. Our standards are high in this country because the Republican Party has maintained it through the principle of a protective tariff. The masses of the people of Europe and of Asia do not know what luxuries are. They can only hope to die respectable paupers. Are you willing to open our markets to the foreign importer and let him flood this country with pauper-made goods? Are you willing thus to destroy both employer and employee? This is exactly what free trade would do. The Democrats argue that the consumer would get the benefit of cheaper goods if it were not for the Republican protective tariff. I will grant you that this might be true for a day, but when the importer has destroyed American competition, he will not then continue to sell you his goods at low prices, but he will then put the price up and take the larger profits back to Europe. The importer expects to make all the profit that he can or he would not buy in the foreign market in the first instance. Not only would we not be able to buy the goods at a continued low price after American competition had been destroyed, but the foreign importer would take the money back to Europe, whereas, under the industrial system as advocated by the Republican party, we have both the goods and the money in this country for the development of our country and for the education of our children.

I can cite you to a concrete illustration of just how this thing works. Two years ago certain brokers in fruit, mellons and other farm products up in Georgia, began to ship car loads of these different things into the city of Lakeland. The cars were placed on side tracks, the doors were opened, and these brokers who lived up in Georgia sold their products, mellons and fruits to the people of Lakeland. They did not have any rents to pay or any taxes to pay in Lakeland, and they did not contribute anything to the support of the schools or the churches of Lakeland, so they naturally could sell their goods cheaper than the merchant who lived in Lakeland and who is supporting the town and paying his part of the burdens of maintaining a first class, modern city. These importers from Georgia took their money and went back to Georgia with it. The Lakeland merchants soon saw that unless they stopped this practice, they would have to go out of business, so the Merchant's Association got together and went before the City Commissioners and had the city impose a protective tariff of One Hundred Dollars per car on these foreign importers from Georgia before they could open their doors and sell their goods in Lakeland. Suppose this had continued until the Lakeland merchants were driven completely out of business? Do you think for a moment that these importers would have continued to sell their goods at a low price, or do you think they would have then charged all the traffic would bear and carried their larger profit back to their homes in Georgia? This question needs no answer, for those of you who know anything about human nature know what they would have done.

Free trade, or a "tariff for revenue only," as advocated by the Democratic party would not only destroy the industrial and manufacturing life of this country, but it would make us a vassal state. Our industrial and manufacturing strength, fostered and maintained under a protective tariff, not only enables us to maintain a high standard of living and a high wage scale, but it has given us financial and commercial superiority which enables us to maintain a military strength consonant with the best interests of this country, and enables us, within a reasonable time, and when necessary, to convert this industrial activity into agencies of defense in case of emergency.

It has been contended by the Democratic party that there has grown up under this protective policy an industrial monopoly which is detrimental to the masses of the people, and which destroys competition. This argument attracted considerable attention some years ago, and gave the soap-box orators their opportunity to ride into office by cursing the corporations, but these arguments do not appeal to the thinking man any more. We now know that large cooperative capital, instead of being used to oppress the laboring man, is used to help him, give him better wages, better living conditions, and greater opportunities for his children. There is greater cooperation and greater sympathy between capital and labor today than ever before, and the profit-sharing system, or the mutual interests system between the employer and the employee is growing in popularity. Go to any industrial center today in this country and you will find the employees living in splendid houses, safe and healthy working conditions, sanitary and healthful homes, fine schools and churches for the employees' children, wholesome recreation, and you will further find that the employee is represented in the councils of the employer. In a majority of instances, those managing and directing big business come from the employee class. I am willing to admit that organized labor has been greatly responsible for bringing about this condition, but we must admit that it exists, and that it is the result and is made possible by a sound industrial policy advocated by the Republican party.

But our Democratic friends insist that the protective tariff as advocated by the Republican Party is detrimental to the farmers of this country. The undisputed facts are the other way. The records of the Department of Commerce, over a period of more than fifty years, show that the American farmer receives more for his products, and that his living conditions are better, under the Republican Administration than under the Democratic. Why is this true? It is because the farmers' best market is the American market. The American laboring man is the best spender in the world when he receives good money, and when he has money to spend. When our manufacturing industries are protected, the laboring man receives high wages and he buys what the farmer has to sell and pays a good price for it.

We have a concrete example of the need of protective tariff for the farmer himself right here in Florida. Florida grows tropical and semi-tropical fruits and truck, and so do Mexico, Cuba and other tropical countries near us. Here land is high. There it is cheap. Here labor receives from two to three dollars per day. There it receives from thirty-five cents to fifty cents per day. Here we have high freight and express rates to the northern and eastern markets. There they have water transportation right into our markets. Here we try to maintain the American standard of living and to educate our children. There they live like peasants and care nothing about the education of their children. What is the result of having an insufficient tariff on Florida fruit and truck? The Florida farmer has lost his market to the peon of Mexico, and he is going to lose his home, and his children will have to grow up in ignorance unless he gets a protective tariff soon. Can he expect to secure this tariff through his Democratic representatives in Congress? These gentlemen have been in Congress for a long time, and they have either known the conditions facing the Florida farmer and have been unable to secure this protection for him or else they did not know about it. At any rate they have been unable to give him any relief, and I make the statement that he need not expect any relief through these Democratic Congressmen in the future. Some of our Democratic Congressmen and Senators from Florida are now making the statement that they favor such a protective tariff and will do what they can to help secure it. The thing the farmer of this state should do before he votes for a Democratic candidate for Congress next year is that he should have that candidate state in writing whether or not he will support the general tariff bill as sponsored by the Republican Administration. This is the only way that this tariff on Florida fruit is going to be secured. There is not one of these Democratic Congressmen or Stnators from Florida who will make the statement in writing that he will support the general tariff, for if he does, he will violate the fundamental traditions of his party and he will be kicked out of its council immediately.

The Dtmocrats of Florida at the last session ofthe Legislature enactcertain legislatation providing for the drainage of the Everglades. It does not make any difference from what angle you look at this matter, in the last analysis the general credit of the state of Florida is pledged for the payment of this indebtedness. At the same session of the Legislature, when provision was made for the drainage of the Everglades, this Democratic Legislature passed a resolution asking Congress for a protective tarif on Florida fruit and truck. These Democrats, therefore, recognized the serious plight in which the Florida farmer finds himself by reason of a lack of such protection; but notwithstanding this fact they go ahead and pledge the credit of this state to raise twenty million dollars for the drainage of the Everglades in order that this body of land might be put in cultivation, when if they know anything about conditions, they must know that if every foot of this land was in cultivation today the products raised upon it could not be sold at a profit in view of the destructive competition from Mexico, Cuba and other foreign countries engaged in growing the same kinds of stuff that will be grown on this land. Until farmers secure a protective tariff that will equalize the cost of production in this state and in foreign countries, it is but a waste of time and money to drain and put in cultivation the Florida Everglades.

This district has as its Congressman one of the finest and ablest men in the Democratic Party, and I believe that he and the other members from Florida do their best to serve the people of this state, but the trouble is that they can't do anything. They belong to the minority party, and Florida is a one party state, and as long as this is true, it does not make any difference which party is in power nationally, the Florida delegation will not be able to do any real thing for the state.

If the people of this district will elect the outstanding Republican to Congress next year, it will be worth not less than half a billion dollars to this state. He will be in a position to secure a protective tariff on the things that Florida grows, and, in addition to this he will be able to secure sufficient money with which to develop our rivers and harbors and water transportation. What has the Democratic Party done for Florida? Absolutely nothing. When the Democratic Party was in power under Cleveland's and Wilson's administration, it did absolutely nothing for this state. If you will elect a Republican to Congress next year from this state, and make this a doubtful state, make it the battle ground between the two parties, it then will make no difference which party is in power, we will begin to get what we are entitled to. The time has come when people of Florida must lay aside their prejudices and vote for their best interests.

And now with reference to the friction which exists within our ranks, I only desire to say that it is to be deplored. There is no reason for it, and the leaders of both factions must strive to bring about harmony and do away with this division. We should not de designated as Republicans belonging to some faction, but should be designated only as Republicans. There is no finer compliment which can be paid any man or woman than to refer to him as a Republican. It represents the best in the history of this country. It stands for progress and prosperity. It means happiness and happy homes for the masses of the people. It means America for Americans first. It means that we do not take our dictation from any foreign power. It means the highest and the finest standard of living on earth, and the determination to keep it so. It means that the employee is equal to the employer, and that the son of the employee, through honest effort, may become the keystone of the corporation. So, ladies and gentlemen, I desire no finer compliment than to be designated as a true Republican.

We must get into a position to render to this state that service which it must have, and which our party alone can render, if we are to continue to grow and prosper. The people of Florida must have its influence and its protection. The invested capital here must have its influence, and the new capital which is waiting to be invested here, must have its security and its protection. It is apparent that the opportunity for the Republican Party to render this service to Florida is at hand, and my faith in its leaders whether heretofore aligned with either faction, will not dissipate this opportunity by lending encouragement to a continuation of this friction. If they do, the responsibility must rest upon them.

EVENING SCHOOLS FOR THE FARMERS

Two Classes Being Taught By Prof. Montgomery, Vocational Man of Jemison

The evening school program being conducted by the department of vocational agriculture of the Jemison High School is one of the largest ever attempted in the State. Two evening schools are going on at the same time, which requires work on the part of the teacher four evenings out of each week, until all the regular lessons are given.

It is not advisable as a rule for a teacher to attempt two evening schools at one time, but the demand on the part of farm leaders caused Mr. Montgomery to put on this program.

The evening school at Freeman schoolhouse is on soils and fertilizers and the marked results expected in the near future are the Auburn method of growing cotton, the planting of hairy vetch and proper cultivation and fertilization of all crops.

The evening school at Pleasant Grove is on dairying. It is the first systematic efort ever launched in the county to carry out the cow, sow, and hen program. This school is an outgrowth of last year's evening school, and while the attendance has not been quite as good as last year, the interest and enthusiasm are all that could be hoped for. The idea is to place the right amount of live stock on the farms. If only one cow has a place on that farm then we do not want that farm to have but one cow. If five cows fit into the farm program, then sour cream should be sold.

Mr. Montgomery is not trying to make dairies in the communities where he is teaching, but to place on the farms the number of cows, hogs and poultry that will pay a profit to the farmer and thus give him new markets for spare feed and a cash income the year around.

Mr. Montgomery has held more evening schools in dairying than any two teachers in Alabama. He started the first dairy work ever done in Shelby County and had marked success. Among the teachers of the State, he is considered the outstanding teacher on that subject.

We are all more or less interested in a man's history. Mr. Montgomery's grand father, Col. W. B. Montgomey of Starkville, Mississippi, was the pioneer dairyman of that State. Col. Montgomery one time owned the largest herd of Jersey cattle in the South. He introduced the clovers into Mississippi, and though he has been dead a number of years, he is still given credit for the enormous development in dairying in that State.

Mr. J. P. Montgomery was reared on a dairy farm at Starkville, Miss. His father was editor of a farm paper and a practical dairyman. If a man was ever qualified by both environment, experience and training to teach dairying, we have the man in Mr. Montgomery.

Two Henley Boys Held In Barrett Murder Case

Clarence and Fred Henley Indicted By Grand Jury Of Coosa County

Montgomery, Ala., October 24.—Charged with complicity in the murder committed five years ago in Coosa County, Clarence and Fred Henley are being held for authorities there in the Montgomery county jail. They were brought in Sunday night and are alleged to have been connected with the killing of Dewey Barrett in 1922.

In January of 1922 Barrett is said to have gone to a camp maintained by the Alabama Power company, at which were the Henley men. He was never seen afterwards. A negro claimed to have seen his body in a sawdust pile and the body was later found in a creek.

The two men refused to make any statement regarding their arrest or the crime of which they are accused.

Both have filed a writ of habeas corpus which will be heard by Judge Leon McCord Friday. Deputies Tucker and Sellers brought the men to this city. They have been indicted by a Coosa county grand jury.

COUNTY-WIDE FARM BUREAU CAMPAIGN BEGINS NOV. 14TH

The plan is to begin the campaign on the night of November 14, and hold meetings in the various sections of the county every night through November 24. Then on the 25th of November hold a county wide meeting at the Court House and organize the Chilton County Farm Bureau. Men who are familiar with the conditions in the county say that 2000 members should be the goal.

Communities desiring meetings where the objects of and many questions pertaining to the Farm Bureau can be discussed should see county agent Stapp at an early date.

Educating Boys For U. S. Seaman Service

Valuable Training Now Being Offered to Youth By U. S. Shipping Board

Calling the youth to the sea is now one of the duties of the United States Shipping Board, according to Oliver McKee, well known Washington newspaperman who writes entertainingly in the current issue of the National Republic of the sea service of the Shipping Board which is seeking to educate young Americans in seamanship as a career. Mr. McKee also tells something about the glorious days when Yankee seamen went all over the world in American clippers. In part he says:

"The sea again calls the youth of America. The call may not be as irresistible as it was in the days when Yankee clipper ships and Merchantmen swept the seven seas a hundred years or so ago, but many an American youth is answering the summons.

We came out of the World War with a merchant marine, an ocean-going fleet, in tonnage measured by the millions. Ships without men are as railroads without engineers, brakemen, tracklayers and freight agents. To man our merchant marine with crews predominantly foreign is neither good business nor a sound policy. The crews of our ships, whether commerce carriers in peace, or naval auxiliaries in war, must be loyal and dependable. Our merchant marine must be an American-manned, if it is to meet the competition of other nations and win for the United States our fair share of international trade.

"Uncle Sam has recently bestirred himself through the sea service section of the Shipping Board to interest young Americans in seamanship as a life work, not on government ships alone, but on all American flag vessels. So successful have these initial efforts been, that in the past three years, 2,500 American citizens between the ages of eighteen and twenty-three were placed as deck boys on cargo vessels, to serve their apprenticeship in a career which to many may mean a master's license before their sea days are over.

"A hand before the mast at fifteen, a mate at sixteen, and master of a vessel at twenty-five, was a record of which many a New Englander in the old days of Yankee supremacy at sea could boast. Nathaniel Silsbee commanded a fine ship, the Benjamin, with Charles Derby as his mate, both lads of nineteen, bound out of India around the Cape of Good Hope. Robert B. Forbes of Boston, a famous mariner in his day, was mate of a ship at sixteen, held a command at twenty, and at thirty-six was the head of the largest American mercantile house in China. The deck boys from Kansas, Vermont, or Texas, who sign up in 1927 on an American flag cargo vessel, propelled by steam instead of the sails that sent the Flying Cloud speeding thru the sea on her record making voyage to the Pacific Coast, may not reach the bridge as quickly as this, but they are cast in the same mould. Energy, aptitude and efficiency provide as readily today the keys to advancement as they did when Yankee ships from Salem and other New England ports carried the American flag on all the trade routes of the world. The steel successor of the clipper ship can likewise fire the imagination of youth, and enlist his loyalty."

RULES OF THE ROAD A REGULAR FEATURE

State Vehicle Laws Will Be Published In Full In The Union - Banner

The State Highway Department of Alabama has recently published a little booklet entitled "Rules of The Road" which contains a digest of all regulations governing all vehicles using the public roads and highways of the State of Alabama adopted by the Highway Commission, and as provided by the Alabama Highway Code.

Brown, was badly cut about the face, but the other lady and the two men escaped injury.

The party left Buffalo several days ago for Mobile, where they will offer a special musical and vaudeville performance for the Mobile Fair.

The wrecked car was left with a local junk dealer and the trip resumed by train.

Clyde H. Foshee

This is our regular weekly feature story about some noted Chilton County man or woman who has gone out from his or her native home and made good in the world at trade, occupation, art, or profession.

Another young Chilton man who is destined to shed laurels upon his boyhood home is Clyde H. Foshee, son of Mr. C. D. Foshee who resides in the western part of our county. Early in life he manifested a disposition to study and learn and soon he was in a primary school at Billingsley where his grades were promptly conferred and his appetite for an education so stimulated that he longed for more.

He then came to Clanton and was extremely fortunate in entering the County High School during the administration of Prof. H. C. McDonald, who is one of the most efficient instructors Alabama has ever had. In his earnestness for learing and his daily deportment Clyde made such an impression upon Mr. and Mrs. M. L. White that they invited him to make his school home with them, which he did, and they assisted and encouraged him in his work for the four years required for him to complete his course there.

During his High School course he led his class each year and finally graduated with special honors. His ambition for an education not being satisfied he made arrangements and matriculated in the University of Alabama. His first year he made such an excellent record that the Professor took special interest in his work and gave him all possible assistance. His progress was so marked that after his second year they gave him a position of assistant instructor for some of the classes for which they paid him almost enough to defray his expenses through the two more years of his course.

He completed his four year term receiving an A. B. degree with honors. He then secured the recommendations of President Denny, of the University, with which he had the honor of entering the Harvard University of Boston Mass., where he is taking the course in Medicine and Surgery, making a high grade in his work there last year. He will complete his full course at Harvard in three more years, and will then be equipped to do honors to old Chilton, no matter where he may see fit to locate.

This young man's record should be a source of inspiration and encouragement to other young people of our county. It proves that where there is a will there is most assuredly a way.

We are very happy that Chilton County has given birth to a young man of Mr. Foshee's ideals and we are sure that his life will be one of real service.

ERROR IN THOMAS SCHOOL ARTICLE OF LAST WEEK

The Union-Banner is in receipt of the following statement from Mr. B. Lawrence, County Superintendent of Education, which he asks us to publish:

"Last week a mistake was made in the account of the erection of the Thomas Junior High School building. In this article it was stated that Mr. J. L. Wilson supervised the work. It should have read that Mr. J. L. Dupree was the supervisor, because he was the one that directed and supervised the work throughout. — B. Lawrence."

Mr. Robert W. Evans, well known young man of Clanton, returned last week from an ocean trip which took him to a number of cities in the British Empire. "I had the time of my life," says Bob. "I think such a trip as I had is worth a great deal to any young man."

Bob left Clanton August 30th, going to Mobile, where he enlisted for a cruise across the Atlantic with the United States Shipping Board on the steamship Afoundrain. The boat left Mobile September 3 with a cargo of cotton and lumber headed for Liverpool. The destination was reached September 22, taking 19 days to cross the Atlantic. From Liverpool the boat went to Manchester and remained in port for six days.

While the ship was in Manchester Bob secured leave of absence and made a trip to South Hampton and London, spending one day in the latter place. The return to the United States was begun on October 2 and she reached port at Pensacola on October 22, where Bob was given his discharge and returned to his home in Clanton.

CHILTON TEAM WINS FIFTH GAME FRIDAY

Sylacauga Bows Before Sweeping Drive of Undefeated C. C. H. S. Eleven

Chilton High continued her winning streak last Friday afternoon, smothering the Sylacauga Aggies 19 to 6. Sylacauga picked up a Chilton fumble in the third quarter and ran for lone touchdown, the first score Chilton has given up this season; the extra point failed. So far as threatening to score under their own steam Sylacauga was never dangerous, while Chilton threatened to score time and time again; on one occasion O. Sanford fumbled on the 2-yard line and the ball went over. Monroe was most effective for the Aggies, his toe helping them out of many tight holes. The Aggies played a defensive game thruout.

For Chilton, the Sanford brothers kept up their flashy work, O. Sanford getting two touchdowns and Leon one; Nelson was always dependable for the needed yard or awo, and Bruner played a much better game than in former games. The line was the usual stone wall with Wade, Willis and "Jelly" Johnston putting up some of the best defensive work ever seen on the local field. Chilton completed five passes out of seven attempts, while the Aggies failed on all of their six tries.

Chilton has a blocking, hard-charging line that is hard for any back to gain over. Retherford deserves special mention; playing his first year in football, at center, he is passing them back like a veteran, having no bad passes against him so far, and, in addition, he is a very effective unit of Chilton's defensive system.

The "Tigers" take on Bibb County High on the local field tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. The season record is as follows:

Chilton—	37	Marbury—	0
Chilton—	50	Verbena—	0
Chilton—	19	Coosa—	0
Chilton—	54	Blockton—	0
Chilton—	19	Sylacauga—	6
Chilton—	179	Opponents—	6

Visitors are always welcome at Friendship at all of our services. We are glad to have visiting singers at our singings on each fourth Sunday afternoon.

CECIL PARKER PLACED UNDER BOND FOR ASSAULT

Fire Destroyed Three Homes Last Thursday

Most Destructive Conflagration That Has Happened Here In Several Years

About nine o'cock last Thursday morning the home of Mr. Sam Cox on west Fourth Avenue was discovered to be on fire, and before the flames could be brought under control the building with all its contents, and also the homes of Robert Popwell and Mr. Rawlinson were reduced to ashes. The contents of the Popwell and Rawlinson homes were taken out of the houses before they caught on fire.

We understand that Mr. Cox and Mr. Popwell had their losses practically covered by insurance, and that Mr. Rawlinson had no insurance at all.

The fact that these homes were located several blocks from the nearest fire plug doubtless created a situation where the fire fighting apparatus of the city could not do effective and prompt work in checking the spread of the fire.

By The Governor

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session held at the State Capitol has ordered an election for the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set forth and has ordered that the election be held upon the second Tuesday, next after three months after the day of the final adjournment of this session of the Legislature; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature adjourned on Friday, the second day of September 1927, and Tuesday the 13th day of December 1927, is the second Tuesday, next after three months from the date of the final adjournment of said Legislature; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by Proclamation of the Governor;

"That all that portion of Choctaw County in the State of Alabama, lying south of the Okatuppa Creek from the Tombigbee River up to the north line of Section 21, township 11, thence west to the Mississippi state line, is hereby created a special tax district. The governing body of Choctaw County shall have the right and power to levy and collect for public school purposes, in addition to all other taxes now authorized by law a tax not in excess of one-half of one percentum on all property situated within the tax district hereby created, based upon the valuation of such property in said district, as assessed for state taxation, provided such tax is authorized by a majority of the qualified electors of said district voting upon such proposition at an election called and held for the purpose of authorizing such tax. Such an election may be called at any time by the Governing body of said county, and must be called by said governing body whenever said governing body is requested in writing by the governing board of education of said county, and such election must be called by said governing body upon a petition signed by two hundred or more qualified electors of said district and addressed to the Court of County Commissioners. Why Not Enjoy Life?

New Orleans, La.—"For one year I could not stand on my feet five minutes nor do any kind of work. I suffered with sick stomach, headache, backache and pains in my sides. I went to several doctors and the only thing they could see was an operation, but I could not make up my mind to have it. My sister told me of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I felt better with the first bottle, so I kept on taking it. I only weighed 89 pounds when I started and now I weigh 141. I don't know what it is to have a pain or a cramp any more."—Mrs. Pauline Daniel, 3136 Constance St. Fluid or tablets. Any dealer.

POOR ORIGINAL

RHEUMATISM

May be relieved by rational treatment—it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs . . . . then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

(b) After such tax shall have been voted for and is being levied and collected by said Jackson School District Number 72 and the districts which have been consolidated therewith, no other district may consolidate with said Jackson District until such district so consolidating with said Jackson District shall have also voted a tax of like amount and with like expiration date, as shall have been voted by the districts which are then levying and collecting the tax provided for by paragraph (a) hereof. Forest Fires Destroy Much Valuable Timber

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 24.—Approximately fifteen hundred forest fires occurred in Alabama during the third quarter of the calendar year comprising the months of July, August and September, according to the reports and estimates of the State Commission of Forestry. These fires burned over about seventy-five thousand acres, or more than a total of three townships of forest land.

The section of the state most affected by the fires was the southern slopes of the plateau region comprising the watershed between the drainage of the Tennessee River and the Gulf drainage. The more extensive burnings occurred in Calhoun, St. Clair, Shelby, Jefferson, Walker and Tuscaloosa Counties and in northern Hale County. In many parts of this territory there are very few inhabitants, and whenever a fire is started by transients it is apt to burn for some time before it is reached by the owner of the land or others interested in its suppression.

Intermissions in the drought that has prevailed from the first of the year have been very brief, and until general rains come the danger to valuable property will continue to be very acute. With the coming of cooler weather a great many warming fires are built by people in the woods, the presence of smokers will be greatly augmented during the fall outing season and the autumnal leaf is steadily increasing the amount of inflammable litter. Only extreme care and close cooperation in all quarters will prevent very heavy losses.

BLEED THROUGH

FIRE LOSSES EACH MINUTE IS $1,066

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 24.—Each year the property loss in the United States caused by fires reaches the staggering sum of $560,548,624, according to a statement broadcast from radio station WAPI at Auburn by Chester Johnson, former state fire marshall and now with the National Board of Fire Underwriters. He said that this is equivalent to $1,066 for each minute.

In addition to this enormous property loss he pointed out that 10,000 persons are dead and 20,000 injured as a result of fires in 1926.

After presenting these figures Mr. Johnson came forward with an encouraging note saying that in the last three years fire losses have decreased 34 per cent. The loss in 1926 was approximately $10,000,000 less than the 1925 total. Due to large fires he thinks that Alabama will show an increase in 1927 over 1926.

Going into details Mr. Johnson said that matches, cigars, cigarettes, and other forms of carelessness started fires doing damage of $37,880,000 last year. Defective chimneys and flues are responsible for $27,092,000; and defective stoves, pipes, furnaces and boilers started fires doing a damage of $25,521,000. Spontaneous ignition caused losses of $21,739,000.

Mr. Johnson declared that in the final analysis carelessness is responsible for a very large portion of this enormous loss. He urged extra care and precaution in handling fire.

PUT THIS DOWN, DAME EUROPA!

At the bottom of all tariff "conversations" between the United States and any country, France or other, it might be as well for foreign diplomats, statesmen, and financiers to learn the fact that we design in this country to protect the condition of the American workman, and never, under any provocation or bribe thru exchange of manufactured wares, make him a competitor with cheap labor in other lands. — St. Louis Times.

WHITE ELEPHANT WITH BIG CIRCUS

Sacred Animal Making Only American Tour with Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Shows

Hailed as the "greatest feature of all time," Pawah, the world famed sacred white elephant of Burma is to be presented in the menagerie of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Combined Shows when the big circus exhibits at Montgomery, Friday, October 28.

Pawah is the finest of his kind to be found in more than three hundred years and the only genuine sacred white elephant ever brought to America. He is accompanied by his supreme keeper, Dr. S. D. Po Min, and attended by a retinue of fourteen native Burmese. The present is Pawah's only season in America, the Ringling Brothers being under bond to return him to Burma at the close of the tour.

Pawah is one of those rare elephants that the Budhists of today and centuries past have worshipped in the belief that in their huge bulk reposes the soul of Budha. And certainly he is as different from those elephants with which the public is familiar as day is from night. His eyes are milk white, set with sparkling pupils. His skin is soft and pliable. His body is white as a "white man" is white. To quote the French authority, M. Dussard, he is "as gentle as a kitten and as beautiful as a Greek statue."

This rarest of beasts was found eight years ago in the jungles of lower Burma, midway between Mandalay and Rangoon. Last summer he was brought to England under the protection of the British government and in the face of threats from the Buddhist priests who protested that the departure from Burma would bring dire calamities. More than two million people saw Pawah when he was presented under the auspices of the London Zoological Society. The bringing of the white elephant to America is in furtherance of the Ringling policy of constant enlargement. The arenic portion of this season's circus introduces five rings in place of the usual three. The Big Show's personnel numbers more than sixteen hundred people, and nine hundred horses. A hundred double-length railway cars are required to transport its ten thousand marvels, plus a special Pullman for Pawah and his attendants.

POOR ORIGINAL TORN

WEST WANTS TARIFF

Something seems already to have happened to the free trade scheme to conquer the West in the coming election. A few months ago we read glowing statements by free trade authorities to the effect that the farmers of the West were in revolt and that in the next election these same farmers would demand the repeal of the protective tariff and a return to the good old days when they burned corn in their cookstoves in Nebraska because it was cheaper than coal.

But of late we have heard not nearly so much about this free trade conquest of the West. Evidently the plans are not developing so rapidly as was thought possible. There is even some evidence coming to the surface to indicate that what the farmers of the West want is not less tariff but more protection!

The so-called progressive senators of the West and middle West met in conference in Washington a few days ago. These senators certainly know what the farmers are thinking about if anyone does, and what they said about the tariff at the conclusion of the conference is interesting. The following is taken from the accurate New York Times, itself a host in the army of the low tariff forces:

"It seems from the exposition of the group's plans that Senator Borah and his associates intend to assert themselves through a concerted effort to make the regular party leaders concede the right of that part of the country west of the Mississippi to obtain legislation helpful to its interests. In this connection the agricultural problem was emphaphasized in the formal statement, and to that Senator Borah added orally, in response to questions by newspaper men, that the western group would seek through the Tariff Commission's operations higher rates of duty upon a dozen or more products of the farm.

"The Tariff Commission now has before it petitions for raising the duties on the products which the western group desires to see obtain more protection. It is contended by the group that these products come in competition with similar foreign products which are able to undersell the American products in the American market. The list of these products, as outlined today, includes flaxseed, milk and cream, peanuts, soy beans, cottonseed, onions, eggs and egg products, cherries, fresh tomatoes and corn.

"Under the flexible provisions of the tariff law, the President has authority, after investigation by the tariff Commission, to raise or lower the duties on these products 50 per cent."

Evidently somebody was stringing the free traders a few months ago in telling them what the farmers wanted. Or maybe the wish was father to the thought.

OUR "IMPERIALISM"

Travelers returning from Europe tell us of the constantly changing opinions about the United States and its policies. The latest charge against us is that Uncle Sam is becoming an imperialist, that he is going to enslave Latin-America and then bind Europe in chains.

It is said that the failure of the naval disarmament conference between America, Great Britain and Japan, caused a profound sensation in Europe. The other European nations have accepted British naval superiority as something decreed by fate and have given up all attempt to compete with John Bull on the water. They expected America also to bow to the theory of Britannia's right to rule the waves and were profoundly moved when we did not accept inferiority to Britian in the matter of cruisers in the recent conference.

Now the European politicians are saying that America having the money, the great manufactories and the potential force, is about to set out on a career of world conquest.

Every American of course knows that this supposition is absurd. We have plenty of room at home for ourselves for years to come and all that we want is the right to develop in peace. The fact that we do not surrender our great American market to the cheap labor of the world and do not agree to the cancellation of all the debt owing us, is no indication that we are seeking to enslave anybody. We are only seeking to protect our own workers and our own taxpayers.

It is of course a little amusing to hear European politicians in one breath accusing us of seeking world economic domination, and then in the next warning us that we will lose all our markets outside the United States if we do not lower our tariff. The two assertions do not jibe.

We cannot blame European leaders too much for having this false impression about the United States. In the first place practically every European nation of importance, Germany, France, England, Spain, Russia and Italy has at some time in the past sought to dominate the world imperially. Now that we have become the rich nation that we are, with the potentialities that we possess, Europeans naturally assume that we will do likewise. They are only judging us by European standards and crediting or discrediting us with being about to do what they would do were they in our position.

And unfortunately they are being strengthened in their error by a number of internationalist influences in the United States itself.

CAN'T FOOL 'EM

All good Americans were pleased to read recently of the action taken by the American Federation of Labor in convention at Los Angeles, in frowning on the attempts of propagandists to interfere in the government's foreign policy in Latin America and China. A resolution hau been introduced by a New York delegate opposing alleged American interference in foreign countries. The resolutions committee of the federation condemned this resolution witn the statement that it had "no regaru for truth," and added that "concerning the general subject of relations with South America, the committee is firmly convinced that a proper adherence to the Monroe Doctrine is necessary to the best interests oi the people of both Central and South America."

It is a significant fact that a copy of a resolution similar to the one introduced by the New York delegate, critizing the United States policy, was found in the possession of Sidney Bush, who was arrested while the convention was in progress anu charged with communist activities. It is of course generally known by those who have studied the situation that a great deal of the criticism of our foreign policies is inspired by communists and in other instances aided by communist activities. And speaking further of this resolution the report of the resolutions committee declares:

"It is unfortunate that the manner in which resolutions of this sort frequently are drafted for introduction in state federations of labor and city central bodies inevitably leads to the conclusion that their authors are more concerned in pointing the finger of criticism at the government than they are in ascertaining the facts regarding the subject they attempt to discuss."

At a time when so many of our alleged "liberals" and "intellectuals" have assumed the attitude that everything Uncle Sam does in his dealings with the world is wrong, it is especially satisfactory to note that the propaganda of the communists and their brethren, the parlor bolsheviks, has been unable to fool the hard-headed leaders of the labor movement in America, who are practical men and who have come in contact with communism in its ugliest phases.

So long as the American Federation of Labor puts its faith in men like President Green communism is going to have tough sledding in America in spite of the "intellectuals" and occasional business men that it is able to fool.

A New York speculator who charged a fan $15 for a world series ticket got eight months in jail. Well, if it was for a ticket to the game in which Babe Ruth got a home run, it ought to have been worth it to a New York fan. But maybe the complainant was from Pittsburgh.

CAN OR WILL CLANTON MAKE IMPROVEMENTS

Clanton has grown tremendously in recent years. Our waterworks and sewerage system was installed perhaps fifteen years ago; we do not remember the exact date. Since that time the town has grown to nearly double in size. The waterworks system is not adequate for the town of the present day in the matter of fire protection. We do not mean that there is a lack of water, although that may be true to some extent; but what we mean is that the system does not reach into all sections of the city that need it. An example of this was seen in the case of the fire that destroyed three residences on west Fourth Avenue last Thursday. The nearest fire plug to these buildings was several blocks away.

What is the town of Clanton to do about supplying needed protection in cases like that last Thursday? is a question which has been asked perhaps many times during the past week. We do not know what the town will do about it or what can be done about it. But we venture it is a question which is of vital interest to those property owners whose homes are several blocks beyond the fire plug limits.

Unquestionably their plight is a serious one, and their interest in the matter creates a situation that is well worth the consideration of our city officials and our citizenship in general.

Can or will Clanton make the necessary extension to its water system so as to guarantee the proper protection to property owners in all parts of the town? This is a good question for serious thought.

Our town has grown to its present proportions and it is not too big. Its growth has been steady and sound. There has been no boom and no hasty development; but a steady growth year after year. In the light of these facts it seems to us the answer is: Clanton must make the necessary improvements and extensions to its water system in order to guarantee adequate fire protection to every home.

THEY'RE NOT ALL DIRTY

Dr. William Lyon Phelps of Yale University has said that when historians tell the story of our age they must of necessity refer to it as an era of "dirt." He cites "dirt" in politics, "dirt" even in religious controversy, "dirt" on the stage, and finally "dirt" in the newspapers. By "dirt" in the newspapers Dr. Phelps refers particularly to the details, sordid details, many newspapers print regarding divorce and murder trials.

Newspapers long ago ceased to be philanthropic enterprises. They are organs of business. Many papers found their business threatened by the flaming tabloids and the desire of the buk of readers in certain sections for that type of reading matter. Many newspapers followed suit. But, we say "many" newspapers, not all. If Dr. Phelps were to revise his statement today regarding the newspapers he would find that the vast majority of them are clean, so clean that any man can read them aloud before his family unabashed. The big majority of newspapers are judged too often by a few.—Manchester (Conn.) Evening News.

"THE PLAIN DEALER"

"The Plain Dealer" is the masthead title of a new paper which comes to our exchange this week from the Capital City of the State. In making its bow to the public, The Plain Dealer says: "We shall steer our ship, avoiding if possible the Scylla of overhead expense of a daily on the one hand, and the Charybodis of the mental coma of a monthly on the other. But suppose success awaits us, the subscribers come rolling in, and advertisers overwork our ad alley; the reading public is officially warned it may expect us to increase the dose six or seven fold."

Our interpretation of the above is that the publishers have it in their minds to publish a weekly Plain Dealer for a while with the hope of getting up enough steam to make it a daily. There is no doubt many people in the State who are hungry for a daily that is different from those we have; and maybe the Plain Dealer will fulfill their wants. So far as we are concerned we are willing for the people to have what they want. If the Plain Dealer can fill the bill, we say, "Go to it, Plain Dealer."

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

The amount of farm products exported during the fiscal year ending June, 1927, totaled $853,000,000, an increase of more than 13% over the previous year. And it is a noteworthy fact that the exports of grains and cereals amounted to $402,000,000 which was a 54% increase over the amount of these products exported the year before. This ought to be cheering news not only for the farmer but for the pessimists who keep telling us that the only way to increase the sale of our farm products is to lower the tariff so that Europe can buy more from us. The rest of the world seems to have bought more from us in 1927 than the year previous even if there was no lowering of the tariff. As a matter of fact Europe and the other continents buy from us just as much wheat, and other grains as they have to have.

But there is another side of the story. While our farm exports were increasing our farm imports were increasing too. Evidently what we need then is a little more tariff on certain commodities and not a lower tariff, if we are to help the farmer. As a matter of fact, the protective tariff helps all Americans, rural and urban citizens alike. Silas H. Strawn, president of the American Bar Association, on his return from Europe recently, said:

"High and fluctuating protective tariffs are acting as growing trade barriers in Europe. To the contrary the protective tariff is increasing the prosperity of the United States. The tariff laws in the United States are stable and can not be considered high in comparison with those now in effect in Europe. I have seen nothing in Europe that would change my opinion that the protective tariff makes us a prosperous nation. We are the most prosperous nation in the world at the present time and this prosperity shows that the protective tariff is good for this nation."

Mr. Strawn is right. And it is not to be forgotten that tariff principles in Europe and America differ. In Aerica we levy general tariffs to make up the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. In European nations tariffs are levied for bargaining purposes between nations. They are used for diplomatic as well as for purely economic purposes. Protecting the home worker has nothing to do with the case.

The state of Arkansas lost a splendid citizen and the Republican Party nationally lost a wise counsellor and an earnest and upright supporter in the death of Col. H. L. Remmel at Hot Springs recently. For 28 years Col. Remmel had served as Republican chairman of Arkansas and for 13 years years he had represented his state on the Republican National Committee. Three times he led the forlorn hope in Arkansas as the Republican candidate for governor, and he was the first Republican to be honored with a state appointment by a Democratic governor in Arkansas.

In Washington, where he came often to attend Republican gatherings, Col. Remmel was loved and respected by all who knew him. He had a way of making friends and holding them. At home he was looked upon as one of the leading business men of the state. Col. Remmel was the type of leader which the Republican Party needs in the South.

TRUCK LICENSES MUST BE SECURED BEFORE NOVEMBER 15

In accordance with some requests which have come to the Union-Banner concerning the time in which automobile and truck licenses must be secured from the Probate office, we have conferred with Judge Reynolds about the matter and find the following ruling to be in effect.

All parties will have until the 15th of November in which to take out license for trucks and automobiles.

Judge Reynolds cautions us to state that all business licenses must be taken out before November 1st; and after that date there will be a penalty added to all business licenses.

But business license are a thing apart and separate from the licenses on trucks and automobiles.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Prospects are that the 1927 apple crop will be the smallest since 1921 and excepting 1921, the smallest in 20 years. This was reported by the Department of Agriculture. Early frosts reduced the crop from 26,-200,000 barrels on July 1 to 24,000,000.

Ten white leghorn hens owned by Marshall Farm, Mobile, Alabama, established a new world record in winter egg production during November, December and January last year when they produced 727 eggs. This exceeded the previous world's record by nine eggs, according to an official communication received by Prof. John E. Ivey, Auburn, from Dr. E. A. Loyd, of British Columbia.

The Conrstalk Products Company of Danville, Illinois, will pay to the farmers of that county approximately $12,000 this winter for corn stalks, according to an official announcement. Owners of good fields comparatively free from weeds within five miles of the plant will be paid $5.00 per acre. The company will manufacture celluose, much of which will go into the manufacture of rayon.

The International Wool Congress is taking steps to increase the amount of cloth used in each dress. A press dispatch about it said: "The disastrous effects to the woolen business throughout the world of using less than two yards of material for a single gown has reached a point where something must be done." Prevailing styles were condemned and the arbiters of fashion urged to lengthen and to widen women's skirts.

Corn Weevils Are Killed With Gas

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 24.—Corn weevils, which are very destructive to corn after it is stored in a crib, can be killed and losses avoided at a cost of only a few cents per bushel, and this is the season for applying control measures. This brief announcement is made by W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at Auburn.

There are several species of insects that attack stored corn, among them are the granary weevil, the rice weevil, Angonomois grain moth, and the Indian meal moth. Fortunately, each yields to the same treatment, which simplifies control measures.

Carbon disulphide is the insecticide used. It is known as "high life." It is a liquid which evaporates rapidly when exposed to air. The gas which it gives off is deadly to all forms of animal life when sufficiently concentrated. It is very inflammable and will explode when brought in contact with any form of fire—even a lighted cigarette. Despite these characteristics it can be used on the farm without any danger.

For using carbon disulphide a tight crib is necessary to keep the gas from escaping. For especially tight cribs 10 to 15 pounds are required per 1,000 cubic feet; for ordinary cribs 15 to 20 pounds will be safer for this space. It is not reccommended for open cribs because sufficient concentration to get good control cannot be obtained.

This gas is heavier than air, which causes it to go downward after escaping from the open container on top of the corn. It should be used when the temperature is 70 degrees or higher, and the crib should be kept tight for 36 to 48 hours. At the end of this period open the crib and allow the surplus gas to escape.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

The progress children make in school is influenced by the kind of lights they have in their homes.

Keep in touch with your state college of agriculture for new and promising plant varieties.

The average annual cost of replacing farm machinery is halved if the implements are stored as they should be.

The unprofitable hen in the winter flock consumes high priced feed and takes profit from the profitable birds. Cull now.

Nearly every farmer in Alabama can use more power at a profit, and a good way to increase the power is to buy a good tractor.

Prof. M. L. Nichols, Auburn, says that Alabama farmers are buying more tractors and bigger tractors.

Planting winter legumes in the fall to gather more nitrogen for enriching the land is like extracting money from the air.

It is getting late to sow oats for winter grazing but oats planted even late in October should do better than spring oats.

Profitable farming requires high production per acre, but the prosperous farmer must make these high yields on a large number of acres. This is essential to high efficiency per man.

The Treasury Department of the United States Department of Agriculture has estimated that taxes can be reduced $250,000,000 by the coming session of Congress.

During the last 18 months banks in the United States have failed at the rate of two a day, and the daily amount of money involved was approximately $1,000,000.

The Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, up to October 11, had received orders for 22,324 tons of nitrate of soda for use next spring. The organization is now collecting orders for phosphate and potash.

On average quality land the pine crop at thirty-five years of age is valued at $110 per acre, according to Otto Brown, extension forester of Auburn. This is equivalent to a gain of $3 per acre per annum.

MARK TUCKER'S LETTER

Montgomery, Ala., Oct 24.—Governor Bibb Graves has directed Chief Walter K. McAdory, of the state law enforcement department, to investigate the situation in Crenshaw county with relation to the charges made by Attorney General McCall that witnesses in the "flogging" cases in that section of the state are being intimidated. Governor Graves states that his reason for not immediately giving to the press his reply to the McCall letter was because the communication was marked "confidential". Chief McAdory has begun his investigation with the assistance of several of the ablest men in his department, it is stated at the capitol. The combined forces of the attorney general's office and the law enforcement department will be used to put a stop to the alleged intimidation practices.

Statements made by opponents of the $20,000,000. bond issue for school buildings that the repair and upkeep of the new buildings under the proposed amendment would cost the state $2,000,000 per year is contradicted by educational authorities at the capitol, who assert that the state will not be required to keep the buildings in repair, but will see that the respective counties or other units do so.

It is also shown by the calculations and experience of responsible architects that an important saving in repair bills will be effected by the construction of modern and permanent school buildings. It is shown that the life of the typical four-room frame school building is not long and that it must be frequently painted and the roof and steps replaced. Replace this with a brick or tile building and during the first twenty-five years of its existence the only necessary repairs will be the painting of exposed wood work and the replacement of an occasional window pane. With asbestos shingles, the roof will last at east twenty-five years, and good steps of permanent material will last indefinitely.

There will be a further saving in insurance, and other facts and figures are given to prove that the institutions and communities acquiring permanent structures for their school work under the proposed bond issue will find it economically sound to replace temporary shacks and firetraps with buidings of the permanent types that will be adopted as the standard if the amendment is adopted January 10.

All of the automobile tags distributed throughout Alabama as new auto and truck licenses are obtained, are made at Kilby prison at the state owned plant operated entirely with convict labor. The saving already effected is estimated at $10.000. More than 300,000 tags for motor vehicles and numerous signs have been turned out by the plant for use this year.

Plans have been completed at the office of Major William Sibert, chairman and chief engineer of the Alabama State Docks Commission, for the construction at Mobile of an extensive coal and material handling plant. Additional port improvement bonds of the issue authorized under an amendment to the constitution will be sold in the near future for this purpose. The plant will be equipped to transfer coal from cars or barges to ships or to an immense storage pile where cargoes can be accumulated for foreign or coastwise shipment. The plant will also be capable of handling coal rapidly from ship to cars, barges or storage bins. It is expected greatly to increase the movement of Alabama coal through the seaport.

SENATOR HEFLIN'S LETTER

LaFayette, Ala.
Oct. 22, 1927.

The Editor:

I have had many letters from citizens of your county, saying that they did not receive a copy of my speech recently mailed into the various counties.

I used the poll list of 1924, the only one that I have, and sent a copy to everyone whose name appeared on the list. If those who did not receive the speech will send me a letter or post card to that effect to LaFayette, Alabama, I will be glad to mail him or her a copy at once.

I will thank you to publish this letter in your paper. With best wishes, I am, Yours sincerely, J. Thomas Heflin.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 13th day of December 1927, in each county in the State of Alabama, in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS whereof I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery on this the 4th day of October, 1927.

BIBB GRAVES,
Governor.

Secretary of State.

UNITED SINGING SOCIETY MET WITH OAK GROVE

The United Singing Society met in regular session here Sunday afternoon, with a great crowd in attendance. The society was called to order and prayer was offered by Prof. A. H. Glasscock. The following directors had charge of the floor with from one to three songs each: S. V. Miller of Concord, C. H. Robinson and R. M. Robinson of Providence Beat 16, W. G. Culp of Clanton, Jack Cobb of Oak Grove, Prof. Akins Collins, Gresham Lowery and Hue Sorrell of Thorsby, A. H. and E. L. Glasscock of Jemison, Marvin Campbell of Oak Hill. Organists were: Miss Hazel Mowling, musical instructor at Jemison High School, and Miss Emma Campbell, Messrs. C. H. Robinson and W. G. Culp. The class was composed of good singers from almost all parts of the county, and did some of the best singing ever rendered in this part of the county. It gave us new courage and inspired us on to higher and better things in life.

We know of nothing in this world that furnishes better food and sustenance for the soul than good sacred music. Anything that helps to advance singing helps the cause of God on earth. So let us continue to hold up our singing society to a high standard, accepting nothing but clean and efficient leadership. Let us regard our singing as we would any other sacred worship, remembering always that united with God we will stand, divided by Satan we fall.

Meet us at New Salem next Sunday afternoon, for we are expecting another good singing there.

E. L. GLASSCOCK.

Mr. Frank Mullins of Opp, Alabama spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Mullins.

RUSH FOR LICENSES AT PROBATE OFFICE

Eleventh Hour Scramble Started Monday and Continued all that Day

Monday, the last day of October, found the probate judge's office in Clanton jammed with late comers who were paying their revenue license in order to avoid the 15 per cent penalty and fees which are to be attached thereafter. The eleventh hour scramble started early in the morning and continued until the office closed in the afternoon.

There are due to be issued about 400 revenue licenses by the probate office here, and when the books closed Monday night 375 had been issued; leaving about 25 who will have to pay the additional 15 per cent.

Four hundred hunting licenses were issued Monday. This number alone is as many as were issued in all last year. Over seven hundred hunting licenses have been issued by the probate judge this year.

Auto owners have until November 15th to pay their tax and procure new tags. Judge Reynolds and his clerks urge car owners not to wait until the last few days, as the rush is so great at that time.

ANOTHER BIG PLANT FOR ALABAMA POWER

Birmingham, Ala., Oct., 29.—Announcement of a proposed development in Walker County that ultimately will involve $20,000,000 was made Saturday by the Alabama Power Company.

This project embraces the construction of the largest steam electric power plant south of New York City with one possible exception. The ultimate capacity of the plant will be 200,000 killowatt, equivalent to 270,000 horse-power.

The first unit of this plant will have a capacity of 50,000 killowatt and additions will be made as fast as is necessary to care for the rapidly growing demand for electric energy in Alabama. Work will begin at once on the plant and it is planned to have the first unit producing power within one year from this date.

This huge industrial project will be located near Gorgas in proximity to the Warrior river and will be one of the most up-to-date plants in the world. The only plant which will match it in size when ultimate plans are carried out, is one now being built in Philadelphia.

The increasing demand for power and the effort of the company to anticipate present and potential needs, was responsible for the decision, according to Thos. W. Martin, president of the company.

WALTER POOLE DIGGING POTATOES THIS WEEK

Mr. Walter M. Poole has been digging taters this week; as evidence of the fruits of his labors, he brought about half a dozen specimens to The Union-Banner office. He termed these just average size of his whole crop. We didn't weigh them but would guess that they are about 3 to 5 pounds each. Mr. Poole stated when he brought them in that he did not expect them to outclass the big one which Enoch Foshee is going to bring, but he just thought them nice average potatoes; and we agree with him. They are fine.

In regard to the Enoch Foshee potato business, several folks have expressed an interest in his promise. We are holding Mr. Foshee under obligations for the biggest potato of this season; and if he doesn't find it in his patch, he will have to borrow it from one of his neighbors.

Rucker Favors Drafting Reynolds Another Term

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your valuable paper to write briefly of the administration of Judge L. H. Reynolds, and concerning his immediate connection with the aproaching campaign. Immediately after his last election impeachment proceedings were instituted and after a long fight his opponents found that it was impossible to remove him from office and they then began to try to persecute him by every conceivable way of humiliation and embarassment. This antagonism failed to have the so much desired effects and the Judge bore it like a lamb and at all times was nice and courteous to everybody, even those who sought to despitefully use him, and has so managed affairs of the County that he has commanded the respect and admiration of the entire citizenship of the County as well as a majority of the strongest officials of the State. The people, in my opinion, have an executive in Judge Reynolds equal to if not superior in many respects, any probate Judge in the state of Alabama. He is an engineer of considerable natural ability and has been successful in organizing one of the best road systems in the state and has made such rapid strides of progress in our county in road building and improving that it has become noticeable and is being mentioned in different parts of the state. In the general classification of the various counties by the state, based on the general progress of the county, our County stands in the "A" Class with a special star, representing special honors. This speaks well of the efficient and economical management of Judge Reynolds and the people in my community are proud of him and his remarkable record. We feel sure that there is not a man in the county who has the distinction in generalship to take his place in directing the battles that must be fought from time to time to protect the common interest and rights of our people. It has been rumored that the Judge was not going to offer his service any more but he is the type of man we need and we must have him, if we have to draft him. The sentiment in this part of the County is stronger than it has ever been for him and I have been reliably informed that it is the same in all parts of the county I think the people would like for the Judge to give this matter his most careful consideration before he declines to make the race for re-election and decide to give us one more term of his efficient service which is so much needed at this time. We sincerely hope that he will make this decision at once and give us the information through the paper so that we may know what to expect concerning his candidacy. With very best wishes for all concerned, I am, yours for a greater County.—J. R. Rucker, Maplesville, Oct. 31, 1927.

JUDGE REYNOLDS SPEAKS TO EVENING SCHOOL CLASSES OF JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL

Judge Reynolds spoke to the evening school classes of the Jemison High School; one at Pleasant Grove on October 25, and the other at Irving's Schoolhouse on October 31. In each case it was the last regular fall meeting. Each year I have had at this time a special program for the evening school classes. The schools are not over but the lessons given in the future will be seasonal classes.

Judge Reynolds made a splendid talk on both occasions and the members say that his address, which was on "The Agricultural Development of Chilton County during the past 35 Years," was the best talk they have ever heard the Judge make. His address was both practical and inspirational. In reviewing the agricultural progress in the county, he said in part, that 35 years ago Chilton County farms were being washed away, the farmers were begging merchants for credit; they did not have any surplus money. Today, and largely due to the work of Mr. Conway who was county agent for years, the farms of Chilton County are well terraced. There are in the banks of Chilton county today over $1,000,000 surplus money that belongs to the farmers. In speaking of commercial fertilizers Judge Reynolds remarked that although he was ashamed to tell it, he himself sold the farmers a 10-2-2 fertilizer for 13 or 15 years and that during all those years he never did know what kind of plant food was in it or what it would pay under. The farmer did not know either. We now know that a 10-2-2 fertilizer is not the fertilizer for corn but that nitrate of soda is the only commercial fertilizer that pays with corn. For years money was thrown away on fertilizer for corn. We understand fertilizer analysis.

He touched on the Farm Relief Bill which was before Congress recently and advised the farmers that the best help they could get would come thru their own efforts and from Congress. He advised that they study and work together with the government's educational agencies that now exist for it has been thru the cooperative work of the farmer with the government experiment stations and educational forces that we have learned to terrace, to grow cotton under boll weevil conditions and to fertilize corn and hay. He suggested three things for further improvement in agriculture and they were more ispiration, perspiration and education and he hoped that the farmers would be able to understand their business thoroughly and thus demand what was theirs in every way. He claims that the cause of most failures in life is lack of training for the particular work the man is engaged in. The man does not understand his job. A one horse farmer has to know more than a Probate Judge. The law tells the Probate Judge what to do but a farmer must be forever working out new systems of marketing, control of insects, and the change of his plans due to the weather conditions.

Judge Reynolds spoke of the social position of farmers. He said that it was a strange thing that farming, the fundamental occupation of the country is a line of business that even with a one horse cropper requires more real thought and study than most lines of business. Yet the people actually engaged in it have held their heads down and imagined that socially they were not equal to the merchant and the banker. There was a time in this country when a banker would not go to farmer's meetings; it was beneath his dignity. Those days though are gone and gone forever in Chilton County.

In speaking of education he said that four or five years ago a committee from Mulberry came to the Board of Commissioners and asked for money to build a vocational building. He said they gladly gave it as it was the first school that he had ever heard of in this county or any other county as far as he knew that was not trying to educate the boys and girls away from the farm. He could hardly realize that the school at Isabella was trying to give the boys and girls an education that would function in that community and not a city school in a country community.

Judge Reynolds said he was glad that the county voted to have a county agent. J. N. Dennis figured it out, that it only cost the farmer of the county a little over 9 cents a piece to have Mr. Stapp for our county agent and a county agent can make a farmer fifty to one hundred dollars on the smallest kind of thing.

In conclusion he said that though we had made much progress in agriculture and living conditions on the farm agriculture was still in its infancy. There is more progress to be made in agriculture than in any other business in the county because it's a larger and more varied business. He urged the farmers to apply themselves to their business and master it. He congratulated the Jemison High School and the members of the evening schools in the systematic practical work they are doing in agriculture.

FOUR MEN FROM JEMISON HURT WHEN TRUCK TURNS OVER WITH LOAD OF SYRUP

News was received in Clanton early Tuesday morning of an accident which happened a few hours previous on the Bessemer Road. Mr. J. W. White and son, Ruben White, a Mr. Jackson and Mr. Sims, all of Jemison, had started on a Chevrolet truck with 150 gallons of syrup to Bessemer. Going down the second hill after they left the cement highway beyond Cahaba River, the truck gained so much speed that the driver lost control and the machine went over an embankment 10 feet high. All four of the men were injured Ruben White being the most serious.

Mr. W. T. Shaw and Mr. C. W. Denman of Fairfield passed by on their way to Clanton. They stopped, picked up the injured men and carried them to a Bessemer hospital. It was feared that Ruben White would not recover, but it seemed that the other three men were less seriously injured. Nearly all of the syrup was lost, it was reported.

COTTON GIN REPORT

The Department of Commerce thru the Bureau of the Census, announces the preliminary report on cotton ginned in Chilton County for the crops of 1927 and 1926. The total for Chilton County, 1927 crop was 14,913 and for the 1926 crop it was 13, 923.

Miss Jewel Armstrong

This is our regular weekly feature story about some noted Chilton County man or woman who has gone out from his or her native home and made good in the world at trade, occupation, art, or profession.

The twentieth century woman has made for herself a palce in the professional and businehs world and many of Chilton County's young women have joined the ranks of the new woman and are making remarkable progress in the various walks of life.

It is generally conceeded that every individual has some talent which if fully developed will fit ptrfectly into the beautiful pattern of life. There is no calling higher or nobler than that of a trained nurse. Doctors are a blessing to our country but after they have left the sick room it is the nurse who with patience, tenderness and intelligence battles hour after hour and day after day with disease.

Miss Jewell Arstrong is one of the fortunate people who have discovered her talent and her excellent record as a nurse bears evidence to the fact that she has put her whole heart and soul into her work.

It will of course be interesting to recall something of Miss Armstrong's history. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Armstrong of Clanton and was born in Calera. Before moving to Clanton in 1919 she lived in Siluria and Verbena. In 1923 Miss Armstrong graduated from the Chilton County High School. Her pltasing personality won for her a number of friends who regretted to have her leave home for Selma. On August 1, she entered the Baptist Hospital in that City and on May 18, 1927 graduated as a nurse with high honors. So proficient was she in her work that she was in great demand in the hospital even before her graduation. She went off duty at 6 P. M. and was called on duty at 6 A. M.

Miss Armstrong is at present working with Drs. John Furniss, Eugene Calloway and Massey in Selma. Each of these doctors recommend her as being one of the best on record.

This goes to show what a wonderfuture life in store for every young person who sincerely wishes to make his or her life count for something, and it is our hope that our County will send out other young women in the coming years, who will serve humanity so noble.

The Union-Banner joins Chilton County in congratulating Miss Armstrong upon her success.

BIG FOX HUNT AT SYLACAUGA ON NOVEMBER 7 TO 10, 1927

"Bring your bridle and saddle if you wish to ride. Those who want horses advise J. C. Whitley, Sylacauga, at once. Horses will be furnished at $2.50 to $3.00 per day. Entrance fee will be $2 for each dog entered. Dog feed free."

The above will make the nerves tingle in the feet of those who like so well to hear the long lonesome yell of old Whetstone and Punch as they wind over hills and hollows on the trail of Mr. Sly Fox. We don't know, but we draw from the circular letter recently received from Mr. Whitley that this is going to be a real fox hunt. Tom Helfin will speak at the Sylacauga high school auditorium on Tuesday night.

This is the event of the Annual Field Trials of the North Alabama Fox Hunters Association.

Interesting Facts About Alabama Farm Bureau

With the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation and its subsidairy organization now in their sixth year of cooperative work among farmers, the officials are optimistic as to the future. Results to date of the organization work convince them that the practice of cooperation has become accepted as a fixed policy by thousands of the leading farmers of the state, and, with this assurance the re-organization work is going forward with a view to increasing members, enlarging business, and adding new lines of service.

Figures given out by Edard A. O'Neal, president of the Farm Bureau show that during its first five years the Farm Bureau has done a business of buying and selling exceeding $50,000,000. This averages more than $10,000,000 a year, and it exceeds $750,000 a month. It also amounts to $30,000 for each working day.

Cotton sold represents a big portion of business done. During the first four years the Farm Bureau Cotton Association marketed cotton for over $35,266,287.58. The value of the 1926 crop now being sold by the association will add another $7,000,000, bringing the total for cotton to more than $42,000,000.

Next on the list is fertilizer, of which the Bureau bought in four years 261,998 tons and paid for it $8,042,334.40. Other products bought on a big cooperative scale by the Farm Bureau are vetch, clover, and soybean seeds; calcium arsenate for boll weevil control. and a few other products.

In addition, miscellaneous products such as hay, lambs, turkeys, poultry, and eggs have been sold through the Farm Buerau for approximately $1,000,000.

While doing a huge business of buying and selling, the Farm Bureau has been a big force for constructive development. It has stood squarely behind the extension service and college of agriculture at Auburn and these forces, working together, have made a great contribution to improved production of cotton, corn and other crops as well as livestock.

Accomplishments to date in a "better commercial fertilizer program" are said to be one of the biggest achievements of the organization. Following the results of the experiment station at Auburn, the Farm Bureau has thrown its entire force in favor of more commercial fertilizer of the right kind and this is said to be one of the main reasons why cotton production in Alabama has come back so strong during the last four years.

The Farm Bureau is an organization which extends direct from the individual farmer to the American Farm Bureau Federation. This requires community, county and state Farm Bureaus. It enables the organization to serve its members along local, county, state and national lines.

When compared with other lines of business the Farm Bureau officials say that this organization has been remarkably successful. It represents one of the largest business concerns in Alabama.

When all the facts are presented it is shown that cooperative work on the Farm Bureau plan is a model for efficiency and this explains why it has an outstanding success.

THREE STATIONS FOR SHIPPING OF CREAM

Southern Dairies Bidding For Cream to be Shipped out of Chilton County

With the increasing interest in Alabama the Southeren Dairies Company of Montgomery, Alabama has recently added to their already big plant, a butter making plant.

The Southern Dairies Company located their half-million dollars plant in Montgomery about eighteen months ago for the manufacture of condensed milk and ice cream. In order to give the farmers who sell sour cream another market they have recently installed additional machinery for the making of butter. Their representative, Mr. Allen F. Parker, was in Chilton County Thursday and Friday and Saturday of last week visiting cream shippers. He found more than fifty farmers in Chilton County were shipping cream and while here he arranged for shipping stations where the Southern Dairies Company's trucks could pick up the cans of cream and take same right into their plant in Montgomery. The trucks run to Birmingham daily and on their return trips will pick up the cream.

Arrangements were made with the following places to receive cream:

John T. Ellis Filling Station, Clanton, Ala.

Five Point Service Station, Thorsby, Ala.

Felix Eiland Service Station, Jemison, Ala.

BIBB GETS DOSE OF KNOCK OUT DROPS

Chilton High's Tiger pack swept over Bibb High last Friday afternoon 24 to 0. Pete Sanford was easily the star man of the scrap, hoofing over the first touchdown from his own 20-yard line from the first kick-off during the first 10 seconds of play and adding another a minute later when Bibb was held and punter to him. L. Sanfond and Nelson got a touchdown each from scrimmage. All scoring was done in the first and second quarters. Bibb came back in the last half and put up the stiffest fight Chilton has faced this season. At one time the Bibb Countians got to Chilton's 7-yard line when Sanford fumbled a punt and Bibb recovered. Bibb was forcing the fight in the last half, but lacked the ole' punch to put over a tally. Fumbles came often on both sides; Chilton suffered two 15-yard penalties and Bibb one, while both sides received several 5-yard penalties. On the defense, Johnson played rings around the opposing linesmen. Jelly Johnston looks like all-state tackle timber. Willis snagged passes far and wide. Chilton was out-weighed at least 10 pounds to the man, and had to give their all to hold the heavier squad in the last half. Bibb has the Fightenest team the locals have tackled so far this year. Chilton's record for the season is—

Chilton—	24	Cen'ville—	0
Chilton—	50	Verbena—	0
Chilton—	54	Blockton—	0
Chilton—	19	Sylacauga—	6

ELEMENTS OF PROSPERITY

Ten major elements in business which give assurance that the final 1927 record will be favorable as well as the beginning of 1928:

1. The agricultural situation with large crops being harvested except in fruit, cotton and corn. Total agricultural income is estimated in excess of 12,000,000 the average of the last five years.

2. Easy money with current rates ruling well below October a year ago due to heavy gold imports combined with substantial purchase of government securities by Federal Reserve banks giving a credit expansion of over $1,000,000,000 going principally into the stock market, but leaving plenty of credit available for commercial purposes.

3. Numerous major industries, somewhat slack this year, headed for improved conditions in 1928, for example, steel, oil, automobiles, coal, textiles, tanning and shoes.

4. Building construction. Contracts awarded the first eight months of 1927 exceeded the total for the same period in 1926. Record levels are being maintained.

5. Firmer general commodity prices, especially in farm products now on a parity with other foods, the farmers goal.

6. The favorable condition of the stock market.

7. The healthy condition of the bond market.

8. Foreign trade with exports for the first seven months gaining 5.3 per cent over the same period in 1926 and imports for this period 7.5 per cent less than last year, despite fears of foreign competition and predictions to the contrary.

9. Government finances are in better shape than for more than a decade with debt retirement around the $1,000,000 annual rate averaged since 1919.

10. Probable legislation to be taken up by Congress. Tax reduction will be bullish to business and the election bogie need not necessarily hamper next year's business.—American Bankers Association Journal.

THORSBY SUNDAY SCHOOL BECOMES A STANDARD

No doubt you have heard the cry "No use for us to try to be standard, for we haven't enough pupils or room." Some at Thorsby thought the same thing but Superintendent W. J. Billingsley thought otherwise and so did his teachers. They set themselves to work trying to reach the standard. This was months ago, but week after week standing shoulder to shoulder that corps of officers worked away and last week saw them reach the A-1 standard. Superintendent Billingsley reliazed a thing last week of which he has dreamed for fourteen years.

Thorsby lacked one point when the Unity-Chilton Sunday School Association met some weeks ago. In that meeting Superintendent Billingsley said they had the best Sunday School in the association and has proved it by putting on renewed effort and reaching the standard was a Training Course. This was put on last week. Twelve of the fourteen teachers took the book "Building a standard Sunday School." Others are expected to take the examination and send their papers in later.

Another thing that grew out of Thorsby's efforts for a standard Sunday School in Unity-Chilton association and is the twenty-seventh out of 1,828 Sunday Schools in the State of Alabama.

What Thorsby has done can be done by others. Since Alabama's aim is 50 Standard Sunday Schools for this year, who is going to be the twenty-eighth?

Don't let numbers or room discourage you. You can have both if you will to have them. Remember a Standard Sunday School in Alabama is reaching five times as many people, winning five and one-four times as many people for Christ and paying two and one-half times as much money for the spreading of the Gospel.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Replying to the proposal that the labor movement in the United States form a separate political party, the president, William Green, of the American Federatoan of Labor said: "If we attempted an independent political movement, it would mean that labor would sink in the depths of despair. We probably would wait until 'Gabriel blew his horn' before attaining results in that fashion."

All of which is true and emphasizes the difference between political and social theories in the United States and in the nations of Europe. In our own country the voters are divided into two great parties, called the Republican and Democratic. A cross section of either of these parties would be a cross-section of American life because both parties draw their strength from suporters in all walks of life. In the Republican party there are capitalists, professional men, salaried men and wage workers. In the Democratic party we find exactly the same kind of line-up.

But in Europe the situation is different. Every European county has a workers' party, a conservative party, and in some instances a party representing the farmers, the manufacturers and what not. The result is that there is a decided cleavage. The worker is in a party by himself, and he thinks and acts as his class consciousness dictates. In the United States the worker may be either a Democrat, a Republican or an independent. He may suport the theories of one party or the other or he may vote for the men whom he thinks will best represent his interests as a citizen. For this reason he looks at questions from the national rather than the class standpoint and is not more an American worker than he is an American citizen. When he goes to the polls he stands in line with the doctor, the lawyer and the banker and he knows that he is as much an all around American as any of them, that his son or his daughter granted the ability, may in the next generation easily pass the son of the doctor of the lawyer or the banker in the race for life success.

Now, which system works best for the nation and for the workers themselves? The answer is obvious and can be found in a survey of the present condition of the workers in the United States and in Europe. True, the labor party may win temporary success and control of the government in a European country but gaining such power it finds itself helpless in changing conditions. In the United States, by adhering to the two major parties, the worker is able to make himself felt constantly in the councils of the nation. He does not have to wait for a temporary and perhaps costly labor party victory.

As a result of the American theory the worker in the United States has progressed beyond anything ever dreamed of in the past. His progress has been steady and has been due to American ideas of economic procedure as well as to his own ability and the oportunities furnished him by the American republic. He is still progressing while his fellow workers in Europe, with their ideas of class consciousness, are in a less fortunate condition to say the least.

Class consciousness is the first step toward communism. It is for this reason that the reds in America fight so bitterly the "no-labor party" program of the labor leaders. They know so long as the American worker thinks as an American citizen and not as the member of a "down trodden" class, there is small chance to delude him into revolution.

IS THERE NO RELIEF FROM SKIN TORTURE?

Must I Continue to Suffer the Unbearable Itching?

Are you one of those unfortunates who are going through life suffering with a skin disease, making you uncomfortable, making you less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep? You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in many forms of skin disease. Thousands of letters of gratitude prove its worth.

"I feel so happy for what S.S.S. has done for me that I want others to know about it. I suffered twenty long years from eczema. At times the itching was unbearable. During that time, I used all kinds of salves without receiving any real benefit. After taking six bottles of S.S.S., I was cured of this dreadful disease. I recommend S.S.S. to anyone suffering from eczema, because I can not praise it enough for what it has done for me." Cleophas Forte, Soldiers and Sailors Home, Quincy, Ill.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

TREES ENDING GROWTH FOR THIS SEASON

Montgmoery, Ala., October 31—Now is the season when trees are practically ending their year's growth. The wood formed at this time is the dark portion of the annual ring. In fact, most of the growth during the middle and late summer is of this character.

Various theories have been offered to account for the difference between the autumn wood and that produced by spring growth. Two of these theories are of special interest. One is to the effect that this is occasioned by the difference in pressure during the growing season on the cambium layer which lies between the bark and the wood, annually adding to the growth of each. During the winter while the cambium is dormant certain influences tend to loosen the bark of the tree. Spring growth, therefore, under little pressure from the outside, tends to form an open and porous wood structure.

The other leading theory assumes that the denser autumn wood and the more porous spring wood are the result of various nutrition factors. In the spring, when a tree is producing new shoots and leaves these make a large demand upon reserve food stored in the stem and roots and there is little material with which to make new wood. As a consequence, the wood cells formed at this time have comparatively thin walls and large internal cavities. Later when the leaves are performing their full duty as both stomach and lungs for the tree, sufficient new food material is made available to form denser wood.

While these are not the only theories to account for the difference between spring and autumn wood, they appear the most adequate, and it is very possible that real explanation lies partly in each.

A Proclamation

By The Governor

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama at its last session held at the State Capitol has ordered an election for the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set forth and has ordered that the election be held upon the second Tuesday, next after three months after the day of the final adjournment of this session of the Legislature; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature adjourned on Friday, the second day of September 1927, and Tuesday the 13th of December 1927, is the second Tuesday, next after three months from the date of the final adjournment of said Legislature; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by Proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, therefore, I, BIBB GRAVES, Governor of the State of Alabama do hereby give notice, direct, and proclaim that on Tuesday the 13th day of December 1927, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for a vote by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form and places as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, namely:

(a) The Jackson School District Number 72, of Clarke County, Alabama, and all other school districts of Clarke County which have been or which may hereafter be consolidated with said Jackson School District may levy and collect a tax not exceeding fifty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in such school districts, for the purpose 1. of paying or refunding of outstanding bonds of the town of Jackson, Clarke County, Alabama, which have been heretofore issued for the erection and equipment of the public school buildings in said town; and 2. after the payment of such bonds then for public school purposes within such districts; provided that the rate of the proposed tax and the time it is to continue shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the combined districts affected, and voted for by a majority of those voting upon such proposition at such election. (b) After such tax shall have been voted for and is being levied and collected by said Jackson School District Number 72 and the districts which have been consolidated therewith, no other district may consolidate with said Jackson District until such district so consolidating with said Jackson District shall have also voted a tax of like amount and with like expiration date, as shall have been voted by the districts which are then levying and collecting the tax provided for by paragraph (a) hereof. YOUNG PEOPLE'S COUNCIL

The young people's council of the Baptist W. M. U., Unity Association held their meeting at Verbena Baptist church on Sunday October 23. A goodly crowd attended. The meeting began with two songs by the audience then we had the roll call and the reports. The Royal Ambassadors sang their song, "The King's Business" and they did seem to be very earnest about that great business. The girl's Auxiliary and the bright little Sunbeams sang their songs also. At this period Mrs. Dickinson the president announced that we would be favored by a solo. The music began and while we were waiting for the soloist to appear a child scampered across the room as if to find her mother. But she stopped at the piano, and lo, the strains of a soft sweet voice soaring above the music of the piano. The child? But could a child barely of school age accomplish this feat? Yes sir, Ernestine Fike could and that was the most enjoyable feature of the afternoon. But there was something else interesting too. There was the recipe for a successful G. A. and then Miss Montgomery, State Field Worker delivered a timely address on missions.

Every one went away feeling that some benefit had been derived from taking time in this great rush of life to attend this council.—Mrs. G. D. Lewis.

TO PREVENT FOREST FIRES

1. Never throw matches, cigar or cigarette stubs into brush, leaves or straw. Be sure that all fire is out before being left.

2. When hunting or camping never build a fire against stumps, trees or logs or near brush or straw.

3. Never leave a camp until you are sure all fire is out.

4. Help others to realize the importance of protecting our forests.

Less fire means more timber, more grazing, more game, better soils, clearer streams, purer water and more fish.

KNOCKING THE KNOCKERS

During a debate on "Democracy" in New York City, Will Durant, who has recently jumped from poverty to affluence through the large sales of his books to the benighted American bourgeosie, bewailed the fact that under our American "democracy" opportunity has been destroyed. Along with others of our Europeanized intelligentsia, Mr. Durant leans toward the theory that what we need here is a socialist autocracy.

In disproof of Mr. Durant's contention, his own career may be offered as Exhibit A. If opportunity had been destroyed in the United States, Mr. Durant would not be cashing such huge royalty checks. The masses of the people would not be in position to buy five dollar works on philosophy. In what other country in the world could such sales be had for works on such a subject at such a price? This ability to buy, and this interest in buying such books is evidence that opporaunity exists in this country, not merely for the few but the many, in a measure hitherto and elsewhere unknown in the world.

Mr. Durant bewails the lack of leadership under "democracy." This country was not intended to be a "democracy" using the word in the European sense. It it or was intended to be, a representative republic by the framers of our Constitution, who had studied all the experiments in government from the beginning of recorded history, and very well knew that "pure" democracy was unworkable, and would inevitably drift toward the tyranny either of a monarch or of a mob.

If there are signs of a break down in our form of government, it is because we have been drifting away from the ideals and principles upon which our republic was founded. We have developed the idea that a majority is always right, and always has the right to work its immediate will in public affairs. In the earlier years of the republic political leaders took pride in standing for their convictions and opinions through evil and good report. Today it has become the fashion for a so-called statesman to take pride in the fact that he is only a sounding board for what he concieves to be majority opinion, right or wrong, intelligent or uninformed. We have followership instead of leadership and demagagy instead of statesmanship.

This is no fault of our form of government, which is based upon the representative rather than the deputative system—in other words the theory that legislative and executive officials represent the whole country, not some class, or section, or occupation. If we have gone back to the deputative theory of public service it represents a reaction to the political conceptions of the Middle Ages. Such reaction should not be blamed upon representative republican government. Criticism of our form of government is largely based upon abuses which have arisen, chiefly because of departures from our original governmental theory, forced upon the country by demagogues and doctrinaires.

Our forefathers who framed the Constitution foresaw the chaos that would result from the system of "pure" democracy, and sought to avoid it. Now that we have drifted far from the original moorings of Americanism, theorists of the very type responsible for the drifting cry out that "democracy" is a failure.

WE'RE PROUD OF YOU, RALPH

Mr. Ralph D. Grant of Coopers was the winner last Friday in the State Musical Contest put on through the radio broadcasting station at Auburn. This is fine for this splendid and promising young man. We have known for some time that Ralph had the qualities of a real singer and musician, and now the public is beginning to find it out. The Union-Banner is indeed glad to see this advanced step of our own Chilton county product.

This will not be the last you will hear of him either. He has the makings of a real singer in his blood. Who ever heard of anybody akin to Uncle Bob Grant that couldn't sing or make some kind if music? The Grants have all got it in their bones, and the special culture Ralph has been taking will bring out the talent many fold.

We know that the recent achievement of Ralph furnishes great satisfaction to his old grandfather, who for the past half century has been contributing what he could to the musical world. Uncle Bob has just reason to be proud of his grondson. The father, Luther L. Grant, is well and favorably known all over Chilton County as one of the foremost teachers and singers of sacred music. He too is beginning to see the results of the seed he has been sowing for the past several years.

Again, Ralph, The Banner congratulates you, and if possible we will drop a word of encouragement with the hope of inciting you to the topmost point in your chosen career.

The voters of Maine voted to sustain the primary. But out of the 200,000 possible voters there were about 35,000 votes for the primary and 19,000 against. Thus the vote on the primary again demonstrates the fallancy of the primary. This is an excellent example of minority rule.

IS THERE A POWER TRUST?

Speaking recently at Chattanooga, Tenn., at the Southern Appalachian Power Conference, Hon. Josiah T. Newcomb of Washington discussed the question, "Is there a power combine?" In supporting his position in the negative he reviewed the report made last February by the Federal Trade Commission after exhaustive research. The Senate resolution directed an investigation of the activities of the General Electric Company, but the Federal Trade Commission decided that in order to fulfill the purposes of the resolution it was necessary to study all the electric light and power groups in detail.

Senator Newcomb pointed out that this investigation covered companies generating 95.5 per cent of the total energy generated by electric light and power companies. It developed the fact, as reported by the commission, that electric light and power service is performed by numerous independent concerns, none of which controls a sufficient percentage of the output to justify the belief that there is a power trust combine. The very large cities are served by independent operating companies. A few of these serve outside territory in the same state. The relatively small cities are to a large extent served by companies under the management of financing and management concerns, the largest of which number is a dozen or more. The report concludes: "From the facts presented above regarding the electric power industry, it is obvious that in 1924 neither the General Eleceric Company nor any other single power interest or group of clearly allied power interests, substantially concrolled or monopolized the generation, transmission and sale of electricity in the United States." The report added that there had been no substantial change in the situation since 1924.

Senator Newcomb pointed out that what is sometimes called super-power, long distance transmission lines, was in many instances controlled by several independent companies. The power service extending up the Pacific coast from the Mexican border to the state of Washington is owned by eight separate companies. Nor does centralization of financing result in common control of management, but has resulted in independent companies which might not otherwise have survived being able to take advantage of such service and maintain their corporate existence.

Monopolization in light and power is not so simple and easy a matter, Senator Newcomb pointed out, as is often assumed. Electric companies must compete with other forms of light and power. They must furnish it at a lower cost than that attainable by the installation of private or cooperative plants by industries afected; otherwise they will lose their customers. Their rates are controlled in most cases by public authority.

The most active attacks upon light and power enterprises, Senator Newcomb points out, are by those who are in favor of government entry into all business, the manufacture of shoes, clothing and other necessities and operation of retail establishments. Every step in government ownership is regarded as an advance toward the goal of state socialism. But electric service is cheaper, and far more generally used, under private management in the United States, than under political ownership in Europe. Regulation rather than government ownership and operation points the way out for both the public and the business enterprises which serve them.

WEST IS AROUSED

One of the most encouraging signs for the American merchant marine lies in the fact that the people of the Middle West are coming to realize the importance of this branch of our national equipment. The people of this part of the country are becoming aroused and a meeting of the friends of the merchant marine is to be held in St. Louis, November 15 and 16 to formulate an expression to Congress on this all important subject.

In speaking of the meeting and of the importance of the marine to the growers of the Middle West, Malcolm Stewart of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce recently said:

"It is tremendously important to the financial welfare of the whole midcontinent region as well as to the Gulf and South Atlantic States that nothing be done to hamper the protection of our merchant marine at this time. We must fight in order to protect our trade routes for the crops of 1927-1928, as we did in 1926-1927 else the producers and exporters will not have enough ships to move their goods to the market.

"There is no method of estimating the financial loss and stagnation to business throughout the country which would have resulted last season if the Shipping Board had not been able to step in and provide American vessels to move products to world markets. Last year the Shipping Board handled 29 per cent of the exported grain, 46 per cent of the flour, 47 per cent of the cotton, 43 per cent of the tobacco, and 12 per cent of the apples exported from the United States, and furnished 397 vessels to move American products when the British ships were taken from service because of the great coal strike in England and Wales.

"In the years during the war it is estimated that the farmers and manufacturers of this country lost more than a billion dollars on account of not being able to deliver their goods to overseas markets. There is no telling when a trade or industrial crisis may come and the producers and manufacturers of this country, particularly of the Middle West and the Gulf and South Atlantic States do not want to be left at the mercy of foreign ocean carriers."

The American people want the Merchant Marine and it is now up to Congress to perfect a plan whereby the American shipping men can keep the Stars and Stripes flying in every important maritime trade route on the seas.

COUNTRY'S HIGHEST STAKE

President Coolidge chose a bold arena when, at Pittsburgh, he stood in the presence of some of the richest men in the world, among tokens of highest material success, and told the assemblage that only a realization of their mutuality of interests can ensure lasting peace between labor and capital. Yet this doctrine is so fundamental, is so incorporated in the fiber of the American Pubilc that never has it been challenged by Americans worthy of the name. Nor does the President submit this thought as a mere abstraction. "It is fundamental principle of our institutions," he says, "that freedom, education and wealth are not to be reserved for the few, but are to be reached through equal opportunity whic his open to all. We have staked America upon potential capacity of the average citizen.

This simple statement, novel in form, but only a reassertion of the principle which has guided the United States to the greatest material triumphs of modern times, embodies the bedrock of the American creed, which the enemies of American institutions are trying to blast away. So long as America remains the land of opportunity, so long the instutions are safe. Applying it only to the relatively narrow field of capital and labor—for Mr. Coolidge was speaking of the beneficent uses of wealth—the President finds the principle justified. "Under a new realization of their mutuality of interest" he says, "an industrial peace has come which a short time since would have been thought impossible." This is the answer of American patriots to alien agitators.—Boston Transcript.

IN MEMORY OF OUR DEAR FATHER, P. R. DEVAUGHN

We miss him, oh we miss him
For our Savior called him away,
But we are praying to meet him
In a better wrold some day.

We know that he is waiting
With out Savior on high;
He's there ready to greet us
Where there's no good bye.

No more on earth we'll see his face,
His voice we'll hear no more;
But let us live to meet him
On that bright happy shore.

We loved you, dear father,
No human tongue can tell;
We said good bye for a little while
But we didn't say farewell.

His troubles in this life are o'er;
He paid the debt we'll have to pay.
But if we live the life he lived
We'll be ready in that day.

Written by his daughter in law, Mrs. Dora Devaughn.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. NORTON, Manager).

The failure to receive Thorsby News at the office of The Union-Banner in time for publication was no fault of the Thorsby correspondent. The copy was prepared and put in Thorsby Post Office at least half an hour before train No. 3 was due at Thorsby and Postmaster Bice says it was delivered to that train. This has been our regular practice for years and this also is as far as our jurisdiction in the matter extends. We regret the disappointment of our readers and hope that it will not occur again.—S. E. Norton, Manager, Thorsby Section.

The management of Thorsby Lyceum Course is to be congratulated on the upqualified success of their first number, presenting the Alpress Concert Company, consisting of Mr. Alpress, violinist and Director, Miss Abbott, cellist and Miss Dorothy White, accompanist and Reader.

In personell and performance each member of the organization was both pleasing and efficient, and the entire entertainment was of a pleasing variety of artistic merit.

Since Bates Hall burned in April, 1925, Thorsby Institute had been without facilities to hold a lyceum course, but the year having the auditorium of Helen Jenkins Hall enclosed and provided with comfortable seats an entertainment season of three numbers was provided for, and judging from the enthusiastic reception the first number received the community is glad to again have the benefit of Thorsby Institute entertainments.

Note—The books referred to were chiefly made up from duplicates that have accumulated in Thorsby Institute Library, and instead of storing them in the basement or attic it is the policy of the Institute to put them where they will be of use to somebody.—S. E. N.

Ronald Lucas of Auburn, with his friend and roommate, were week end visitors at the Lucas home in Thorsby. Mr. and Mrs. Lucas also have as their guest, Mrs. Lucas's brother, Mr. Miller, of Flint, Mich.

Prof. C. H. Williams of Camp Hugh and his daughter, Bernice, a teacher at Lock 12, spent the week end at the Williams home in Thorsby.

Miss Lorena Primm of Woman's College, Montgomery, was a visitor with homefolks from Friday to Sunday night.

Earl Mead of Birmingham came to Thorsby Tuesday to enjoy a day or two in hunting.

A CARD OF THANKS

The teacher and students of Thorsby-Rosenwald Colored School desire to express their appreciation for a gift of many valuable books from Thorsby Institute, on this date, by the hand of Mr. S. E. Norton. We have not forgotten that we received quite a number of books from the same source last year, and we wish to express our gratitude for these helps toward a library for our school. Sincerely yours,—Mabel Sistrunk, Teacher.

If anybody thinks Thorsby is a "Dead Town" they should see the movings going on here these days. Nels Peterson has bought the new house J. D. Cleckler built on Montgomery road opposite the Greenhouses and moved in on Tuesday of this week. Carl C. Peterson bought the house Nels vacated and rented it to Rev. J. H. Roberts who also moved in Tuesday. Doc. Gentry bought the Felix Eiland small house and will move soon from Mrs. Villadsen's green bungalow. Grover Bice who lived in one of J. D. Cleckler's houses adjacent to his, Cleckler's, home, has rented the G. L. Foshee building and is fitting a part of the lower floor for his home and has already moved in. Most of the rooms on the upper floor are already rented. Mr. Hugh Thompson, who has been living in Mrs. Villadsen's east cottage, has moved to the Cleckler house vacated by Grover Bice. Mr. Jeffcote and family, who since coming to Thorsby have been occupying rooms at the Villadsen home, will move at once to her cottage vacated by Mr. Thompson. Other moves are contemplated but are not a fact as yet. L. Diefenderfer has begun building a new home in Clanton which will be occupied by his family, who will move to Clanton as soon as it is finished.

Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Butler, Miss Fairbanks and Rev. J. E. Each, will motor to Stepville, near Hanceville, Friday to attend the week end State Conference Congregational churches.

Although Rev. Each will be absent next Sunday, arrangements have been made to "Carry On" interesting services at the usual hour for morning and evening worship. Sunday School and Christian Endeavor will also be held as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Goddard spent last Friday as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Willis of near Clanton.

The Congregational Ladies Aid Society will meet Thursday afternoon, November 3, at the home of Mrs. C. C. Peterson.

On Monday afternoon of this week The Congregational Ladies Aid held a business meeting at the church and arranged to have a dinner from 5 to 7 Friday, November 11, in the church and the price per plate to be 25c.

The Annual Bazaar of the Ladies Guild of Thorsby will be held on the Saturday afternoon following Thanksgiving day.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Bean of Tallassee and Mrs. Loyd Maddox of Birmingham spent Sunday evening in Thorsby, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Goddard.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Goodgame entertained at dinner Sunday Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Billingsley, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Billingsley and Mr. and Mrs. Webb Parrish.

Mrs. Louis Howard and Mrs. Edward Howard and little daughter spent several days over the week end in Fairfield, Alabama.

The Baptist Ladies Aid will meet Thursday of next week, November 10, with Mrs. Bob Davenport.

There will be English Church and Communion Services at the Lutheran Church Sunday morning, November 6.

Miss Esther Johnson spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson.

Miss Olene Mims who is teaching at Jackson Chapel near Lomax spent the week end at home.

Mr. Shannon, Uncle of Mrs. Nels Peterson, spent Sunday in Thorsby.

The Baptist Social will be with Mrs. Ben Davenport November 10th.

Mr. Pete Franklin has sold his cafe on the highway.

The Y. W. A. have planned "A Trip Around the World" to raise money for the new church, and countrys will be represented. Admission 30 and 15 cents. Eats of each country will be served free. One ticket will admit you to each country. Date and place to be announced later.

Mrs. C. C. Driskell is improving fast. She is able to sit up in a chair some.

Mrs. Sam Glass and daughter, Alice, are visiting Mrs. S. P. Franklin. Mrs. Glass has spent some time with her sons in Deatsville.

Mrs. C. S. King of Selma is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. S. C. Wood.

BLEED THROUGH

Big Real Estate Deal In Jefferson County

The Chamber of Commerce, thru its Secretary, Mr. O. L. Bunn, working in cooperation with Gewin & Co., Real Estate brokers, Exchange Building, Birmingham, has suceeded in selling to outside capital approximately 5000 acres located on the National Scenic Highway, just above Trussville, where extensive plans are being perfected, which will be of great value to business interests in the Birmingham District.

Outside capital has incorporated the company known as the Birmingham Reality Company, (a million dollar corporatitn) with Mr. John P. Shaddick as president. Among the officers and directors are Mr. Geo. T. Penny, real estate operator and financer of North Carolina, Mr. S. R. Norman of Washington, D. C., Mr. John R. Dortch of Atlanta, Mr. W. M. Silver of Kansas City and Mr. R. H. Shaddick, Attorney.

Mr. John P. Shaddick, the president of the copany has been long and favorably known in Birmingham District. For forty years he was superintendent of Mills of the United States steel corporation and subsidairies.

His knowledge of the business conditions in Jefferson County has been required thru practical experience and when he agreed to join with other capitalists in buying this land it demonstrated his faith in the future of Birmingham.

Being interviewed by the press, Mr. Shaddick expressed himself as follows:

"In my opinion there is no other city in the Southern States, possibly I might say in all America, where there are greater possibilities for sound and helpful growth in home-building and reality values as I believe the Birmingham district offers better and more staple opportunities than any other place south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Complete plans will be announced thru the chamber of commerce in the very near future, and I want to seize this opportunity of expressing the appreciation of myself and associates for the fine work being done by the chamber of commerce of this city, and the valuable date with which it has supplied us in connection with our undertaking.

It may be said, modestly speaking, that with the inside knowledge I have and which will soon be made public, that this transaction is possibly the largest and most important of its kind that has been consummated in Alabama in many years, the amount involved running into millions of dollars.

POPWELL SCHOOLHOUSE

On Friday night, November 4th the P. T. A. will put on an entertainment at Popwell Schoolhouse. Refreshments will be sold for the benefit or the school. Everybody invited.

A Proclamation

By The Governor

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session held at the State Capitol has ordered an election for the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set forth and has ordered that the election be held upon the second Tuesday, next after three months after the day of the final adjournment of this session of the Legislature; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature adjourned on Friday, the second day of September 1927, and Tuesday the 13th day of December 1927, is the second Tuesday, next after three months from the date of the final adjournment of said Legislature; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by Proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, therefore, I, BIBB GRAVES, Governor of the State of Alabama do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 13th day of December 1927, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for a vote by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form and places as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, namely:

"That all that portion of Choctaw County in the State of Alabama, lying south of the Okatuppa Creek from the Tombigbee River up to the north line of Section 21, township 11, thence west to the Mississippi state line, is hereby created a special tax district. The governing body of Choctaw County shall have the right and power to levy and collect for public school purposes, in addition to all other taxes now authorized by law a tax not in excess of one-half of one percentum on all property situated within the tax district hereby created, based upon the valuation of such property in said district, as assessed for state taxation, provided such tax is authorized by a majority of the qualified electors of said district voting upon such proposition at an election called and held for the purpose of authorizing such tax. Such an election may be called at any time by the Governing body of said county, and must be called by said governing body whenever said governing body is requested in writing by the governing board of education of said county, and such election must be called by said governing body upon a petition signed by two hundred or more qualified electors of said district and addressed to the Court of County Commissioners. Such election shall be held and conducted and the results canvassed, as now provided by law for holding and conducting and canvassing the returns of an election to determine whether or not the three mill district school tax shall be levied and collected. The proceeds of the tax hereby authorized shall be used in all respects in accordance with law governing the handling and expenditure of the three mill district school tax."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 13th day of December 1927, in each county in the State of Alabama, in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS, whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery on this the 4th day of October 1927.

Governor.

Why Not Enjoy Life?

New Orleans, La.—"For one year I could not stand on my feet five minutes nor do any kind of work. I suffered with sick stomach, headache, backache and pains in my sides. I went to several doctors and the only thing they could see was an operation, but I could not make up my mind to have it. My sister told me of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I felt better with the first bottle, so I kept on taking it. I only weighed 89 pounds when I started and now I weigh 141. I don't know what it is to have a pain or a cramp any more."—Mrs. Pauline Daniel, 3136 Constance St. Fluid or tablets. Any dealer.

The guests fortunes were told by a witch. Among the interesting games was the pinning on the black cat's tail. Ruth Gowan received a box of candy for telling the best ghost story. A delicious ice course was served by Mrs. Jones.

TWO MEN ACCIDENTALLY SHOT TUESDAY MORNING

Curry Thomas and Willie Bean were accidentally shot Tuesday morning by squirrel hunters in the swamp close to Clanton. Many fellows who were anxious to get an early start at the squirrels went into the swamp before daybreak, and it seems that none knew of the actions or whereabouts of the others. Mose Simpson mistook Curry Thomas for some kind of an animal and took a shot at him. The load struck him in the side of the face, but the consequences were not serious.

Paul Marcus saw Willie Bean's head by the side of a tree and thought it was a possum. He opened fire, and his aim was bad, or we might say in this case good. He missed his mark, which saved Bean's life. Two shot entered his neck.

It was fortunate that neither of the victims of these mistakes were seriously hurt.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

The boarding students of Thorsby Institute and the members of the Christian Endeavor had a very delightful Hallowe'en party Saturday night in the dining hall. The room was appropriately decorated with Hallowe'en witches and black cats. Under the leadership of the Misses Odie Lee Arthur, Giula Williams and Gertrude Steiner everybody had a good time. The party was more interesting because everybody was disguised. A prize was given to the best disguised person. Carlton Peebles was awarded the prize.

The Christian Endeavor had a very interesting meeting Sunday night with Miss Annie Lou Arthur as the leader. The topic was "Protestantism." Some very good points were brought out. The Installation of the Christian Endeavor officers was held immediately after the program. The officers are as follows: President, Frances Wilson; Vice President, Theresa Gibbons; Secretary, Doris Freeman; Corresponding Secretary, Lois Primm; Treasurer, John VanDerveer.

On Saturday night an open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society will be held. Every one is invited. Admission 10 cents for those not connected with the school.

It is hoped that the Thorsby people who have not paid up their pledges on the Building Fund will do so very soon. The school would like to furnish the auditorium on the inside, but that will cost probably about $1500 and the school has no money on hand for this purpose. Also it needs help on current expenses, as it needs $10,000 a year aside from tuition.

PETE SANFORD RULED ELIGIBLE FOR HIGH SCHOOL FOOT BALL TEAM

A total of 20,991,333 motor vehicles were registered in the United States in the first six months of 1927 according to data collected by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture from the various state registration agencies. This represents an increase of 1,374,578 or seven per cent over the registration during the same period of last year.

David Beecroft, of Philadelphia, recently predicted that by 1931 practically the entire population of the United States will be on wheels, and that better than 90 per cent of the population will be within ten miles of a federal highway. In 1921 there were 10,000,000 motor cars in the country. in 1926 there were almost 22,000,000, an increase of more than 100 per cent in 6 years.

TIMELY FARM FACTS

A pen of ten white leghorns owned by Lukert Farm, Salerno, Florida, was first in the national egg-laying contest at Auburn. They produced 2512 eggs in 51 weeks.

In most cases Alabama farmers are pleased with the result of this year. Average yields with higher prices have put them in much better condition than they were a year ago when they made bumper yields with low prices.

While nitrate fertilizers are being manufactured by synthetic processes in foreign countries as well as in the United States, Alabama farmers are gathering nitrogen from the air by growing hairy vetch at a very low cost and also other winter legumes.

The outlook is bright for farmers who are prepared to farm efficiently and farm that way.

VETCH IS BEST WAY TO ADD NITROGEN

Auburn, Ala., Nov., 1.—That vetch is the cheapest way to add nitrogen to the soil for cotton and other crops is revealed by an experiment conducted by the Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, at Auburn. It has been running three years and, each year, vetch has made a better showing than either nitrate of soda or manure.

The yields of the three plots during the three years have been averagd by Prof. M. J. Funchess, director. The average yield following vetch was 1,340 pounds of seed cotton per acre, following nitrate of soda, 1,092 pounds, and manure 1,284 pounds.

One of these plots produced hairy vetch which was plowed under. And another received nitrate of soda at the rate of 325 pounds per acre; and the third received manure at the rate of five tons per acre. The phosphate and potash fertilizers for the three plots were the same. The base was 600 pounds of acid phosphate and 100 pounds of potash per acre. In the case of manure this was reduced slightly, due to the phosphate and potash in the manure.

In addition to producing more cotton, Prof. Funchess said that vetch was much cheaper than either nitrate of soda or manure. He figured the vetch cost at $3.50 per acre; soda $10; and manure, $10; ($2.00 per ton) plus the cost of hauling it out and distributing.

When both the increase in yield and the decrease in the cost are added it is found that there is a big difference in favor of vetch as a producer of nitrogen for cotton.

FOURTH EGG LAYING CONTEST IS IN PROGRESS AT AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., November 1.—The fourth national egg-laying contest at Auburn is in progress. It began on November 1 with 100 pens from twenty states. It will continue 51 weeks during which the 1,000 birds in the contest will compete with each other as individuals and by pens for high honors. There are ten birds plus three alternates in each pen, making a total of 1,300 hens in the 100 pens.

Although production during the third contest, just closed, was below that of the second, Prof. J. E. Ivey and G. A. Trollope expect new high records during the fourth. Preparations have been made and every precaution is being taken for every hen in the contest to go at top speed until the contest ends next October.

While in Auburn these hens will live in concrete and hollow tile houses which are equipped with electric lights and running water. The lights will be used an hour each night during the fall, winter, and early spring.

Only four breeds are represented. Eighty-two pens are white leghorns. The other breeds are Barred rocks, Rhode Island reds and black minorcas. The states represented are Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee, Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Minnesota, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa, and Washington.

While here these 1300 birds will be fed, housed and managered alike. The goal is high egg production at a low cost. There are 50 houses, each built by the Auburn plan, and each housing two pens. A good laying mash will be kept before them all the time as will grit, oyster shells, and water. Scratch feeds, green feed and other feeds will be fed according to the best feeding rules.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

It is time to apply the first winter spray to fruit trees.

L. T. Rhodes, of Bay Minnette, made two tons of lespedeza hay to the acre this year.

Those who ought to know say it costs about two dollars a year to feed a rat, and what market is there for rats?

The amount of meat produced in the United States during 1927 will be about the same as the total for 1926.

It amounts to little to select seed in the field and store it where rats and mice have access to it.

Alabama banks are full of money, most of which came from the "fleecy staple" of the cotton fields.

An ironing board is made twice as useful if a turkish towel is pinned at one end to use when ironing over embroidery work and buttons.

A rubber apron is one of the greatest time and labor savers. To clean it simply rub it with a damp cloth or if it is badly soiled dip the cloth in a little baking soda.

CHEVROLET COMPLETES ITS SIXTEENTH YEAR OF WORK

Nearing the close of the most successful year in its history, and with its position outstanding as the world's largest builder of gear shift cars and trucks, the Chevrolet Motor Company this week rounded out its sixteenth year of existence.

Named for Louis Chevrolet, well-known race driver of an earlier decade and active figure during the infancy of the automotive industry, the Chevrolet Motor Company of Michigan was organized on November 3, 1911.

That year five cars were built. This year one million cars will be built, more than the combined output for the first eleven years of the company's existence.

That first year a handful of men worked in an obscure factory at West Grand Boulevard and the Viaduct, Detroit, to turn out mostly by hand methods those first five cars. Today more than 100,000 people are directly employed in producing, selling and servicing Chevrolet cars.

Today eleven great factories—exclusive of export operations—are running to capacity to meet the demand of Chevrolets infinitely superior to, and listing at one-fourth the cost of those first cars.

The "Royal Mail" and "Baby Grand" models brought Chevrolet wide popularity in the early days, but the "490" model, so named because it listed at $490, placed the company definitely in the field as a volume producer of motor cars. That was in 1915. That year 70,701 cars were built.

Shartly afterward the first assembly plant began production at Oakland, California, to supply the West Coast. Seven more such plants have since been erected, and one is now in process of construction at Atlanta, Ga. These are located at strategic points thruout the country to render the greatest possible service to the car purchaser.

General Motors took over Chevrolet in 1918, with wide expansion following. In 1925 for the first time volume exceeded the half million mark. The 1926 production was 732,147 cars and trucks. That record was equalled this year on August 12, and company officials look forward confidently to one million units in 1927.

On Chevrolet's birthday, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, commented upon the extraordinary production and sales records the company has enjoyed in its comparatively short life. These records, he said, reveal the confidence placed in Chevrolet and its cars by the public.

This attitude, Mr. Knudsen pointed out, is a deep source of gratification to Chevrolet, and in turn places the company under obligation to adhere rigidly to the expecting standards which the public has learned to expect of all Chevrolet products. The same policy that marked Chevrolet's 16 years of past achievement—that policy of turning back into the car the manufacturing economies resulting from volume production—will be continued, Mr. Knudsen stated.

Mrs. Renfroe Mullins Entertains.—

Mrs. Renfroe Mullins delightfully entertained the members of the Fidlis Sunday School class at the Baptist Church Friday evening at eight o'clock. The basement of the church was transformed into a spooky realm by the use of a number of jack-o-lanterns, pumpkins, ghosts and festons of black and yellow crepe paper. As the guests entered they were served punch from a beautifully decorated table by a ghost. An interesting black cat contest was enjoyed by all. Miss Aleene Lecroy was presented with the prize, a growing plant in an attractive bowl. The booby, a toy cat was awarded to Miss Omye Hand. At the close of the contest to the time of the witch march the guests were ushered one by one into a spooky room where their fortunes were told by a witch. The delicious refreshments were typical for the occasion. Peanuts, popcorn, candy, apples, eskimo pies and ice cream cones. Those who enjoyed this occasion were Misses Gladys Kemp, Gladys Willis, Omye Hand, Ruth Hand, Aleene Lecroy, Marzell Mullins, Mary Let Pyron, and Exie Baker.

Fidelia Class Gives Dinner.—

The Fidelia Class of the Baptist church entertained at a dinner last Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Mary Lee Pyron. Garden flowers formed the attractive decoration for the occasion. One of the features of the evening was an interesting contest in which Miss Beatrice Alexander won the prize, a box of candy. After the regular business meeting the guests were invited into the dining room where lovely flowers in fall shades were used in decoration. The beautifully appointed table had as its center decoration motif a basket of sunset roses. Adelicious dinner was served to the following guests: Misses Delene Williams, Aleene Lecroy, Beatrice Alexander, Kathryn Johnson, Gladys Willis, Gladys Kemp, Pat Murphy, Exie Baker, Erin Danforth, Pearl Miner and Frances Moore. The decoration were red and yellow autumn leaves, corn stalks, and many symbols lending mysticism and witchery to the occasion, added to the attractiveness of the scene. Yellow transparant pumpkins and jack-o-lanterns were special decorations. One of the most enjoyable features of the occasion, a contest, bobbing for apples, created a great deal of fun and blowing out a row of candles foretold the future. A beautiful gypsy fortune teller presented the guests with English walnuts holding their fortunes. Mr. and Mrs. Hance Alred Hosts.—

One of the most elaborate parties of the fall season was Thursday evening when Mr. and Mrs. J. Hance Alred entertained the members of the Night Bridge Club at a dinner. The Halloween idea was carried out in a unique manner. Jack-o-lanterns hung under the trees in the garden formed a weird entrance to the home. Before entering the guests were given a string from a huge spider web which led them through the drawing and living rooms past tall white spooks and lighted pumpkins, into the dining room where dahlias and chrysanthemums in rich shades suggestive of the season were effectively arranged. Halloween place cards marked the guest's places. The table covered with a Halloween table cloth was centered with a large pumpkin filled with yellow specimen dahlias. Small pumpkins served as candle holders and yellow candles held attractive Halloween shades. They were placed at intervals the length of the table. A delicious four-course luncheon was served. In the living room where the bridge tables were arranged masses of bright hued autumn leaves and chrysanthemums were used in decoration. Novel score cards bearing witches, ghosts and owls completed the Halloween effect. The ladies high score prize, a handsome pair of hose, was presented to Mrs. Hosea Downs. Mr. L. F. The guests came in costume and were ushered to auditorium where a beauty contest was held. At eight o'clock the curtain rose and revealed a beautiful setting for the occasion. Trees hung with lighted pumpkins formed the back ground for the fortune tellers tent. The entries in the contest walked across the stage one by one. They wore clever oostumes and it was difficult for the judges to decide upon the most attractive girl. The prize, a box of candy, was awarded to adorable little Bess Hayes who wore a Pierret costume with a dainty little hat to match. The popularity contest was one of the most enjoyable features of the evening. Numerous candidates were put up and then ensued about 40 minutes of exciting canvassing. After much discussion little Bess Hayes was again a successful candidate. She received a handsomely ebossed cake. At the conclusion of the contest the guests, many in wierd spooky costumes filed out and sought the various attractions among which was a unique postoffice, a fortune teller, "for men only," the weenie and sandwich stand presided over by Mrs. Hugh Simpson, Mrs. Claude Jones and Mrs. J. Report of Grand Jury In Chilton Circuit Court

THIRTY-EIGHT TRUE BILLS FOUND BY INVESTIGATION OF ALLEGED VIOLATIONS

To Hon. Geo. F. Smoot as Judge of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama.

We, the Grand Jury, empanelled for the July Term of the Circuit Court of said County immediately began our investigations of the cases for disposition on the Grand Jury docket after we had received your Honor's comprehensive and instructive charge, and investigated the docketed cases and other cases we found to be of such nature as to require our attention as Grand Jurors.

During our entire investigation we have considered 75 cases, have examined 165 witnesses and nave returned to your Honor 38 true bills.

We have investigated the offenses outlined in your Honor's instructions in so far as we had witnesses to give evidence concerning such offenses and have no special report to make with reference to this type of offenses.

We have examined the fee book of the Probate Judge and find it neatly kept and correct in so far as we were able to ascertain. We have examined the bonds of the various county officials and find that they are ample for the protection of the public and in our examination of the sheriff's account with the state for feeding the prisoners we find it being kept in accordance with the law. On our examination of the office of the ounty Superintendent of Education we find that his books, records and papers are neatly kept and in so far as we ascertained were being kept fully in accordance with the law.

We have made a personal inspection of the county jail and believe it to be sufficiently safe for the keeping of the prisoners and find that the prisoners confined therein are being well fed and cared for with reasonable comfort; Upon our investigation of the county alms house we find in our opinion that it is being managed by those in charge about as well as the accomodations will permit.

The Grand Jury wishes especially to thank your Honor for the very able charge given us when we were first empanelled as it has been most helpful to us throughout all our investigations. Sheriff Collins and his deputies were most courteous to us during our investigations and rendered us valuable assistance in the dispatch of the business before us.

The Grand Jury wishes to thank the Circuit Solicitor for his able and efficient assistance in making the investigations and in carrying out the deliberations of this body.

And now having complied to the best of our ability with your Honor's charge in investigating all matters before us, we respectfully ask that we be dismissed until such time as your Honor may feel that our services are again needed.

Foreman of the Grand Jury,

Three Negroes Escaped From Chilton Co. Jail

RAISED THE ROOF AND MADE A CLEAN GET-AWAY FRIDAY NIGHT

Three negroes made a clean escape from the county jail in Clanton last Friday night. The negroes were James Thomas, charged with burglary, Will Roden, charged with burglary and Henry McCarty charged with larceny.

By the use of steel bed railings the negroes managed to pry their way out of their cells, and in the same manner got through the large door in the main part of the jail. They then crawled up through the scuttle hole in the ceiling and up into the attic. A part of the roof was prized off, and the negroes crawled down to the ground by holding to the water pipe which comes down the side of the jail.

Blood hounds were called from Wetumpka, which were put on the track of the escapes, but they only trailed them a short distance to the railroad a quarter of a mile below the depot. The track could not be started from there. So, it is presumed that the negroes caught a freight train and went from here.

Sam Means and another negro were in jail but refused to get out of the jail after the way had been opened to them.

UNITED STATES HAS HALF OF THE WORLD'S GOLD

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—Eighteen thousand tons of gold is locked in the treasuries of all nations to back their currencies—and the United States has half of this amount, treasury experts estimated today.

The world's gold stock is about $9,000,000,000 and the United States has $4,581,000,000 in gold coin and bullion. The most gold in any one place in the world is at the government assay office in New York City, where $2,000,000,000 worth reposes.

The second largest gold stock held by the federal reserve bank which has about $1,024,513,000.

Experts said that if the nation's wealth estimated at $500,000,000,000 could be converted into gold the bullion would weigh 1,000,000 tons, and the national income of persons gainfully employed—$900,000,000,000 annually—would weigh 180,000 tons.

One million dollars gold weighs approximately two tons.

Officials said there would be a sufficient supply of $2.50 gold pieces for Christmas this year but that the larger gold coins would not be available for general distribhtion.

SHERIFF SHOT IN STILL RAID

Mobile, Ala. Nov. 8.—With both legs mangled from buckshot charges and in a serious condition from his wounds and loss of blood, Chief Deputy Sheriff Allerdeen Wade was in in a local hospital this morning following a gun battle late Monday night between sheriff's officers and two negro pickets at a still which the officers were raiding in South Mobile county.

One of the negroes, slightly wounded by the deputies, fire, was later captured. The other escaped.

Wade, with Deputy McFayden, according to the officers, encountered the negro pickets a few hundred yards from a still which the deputies had planned to raid.

Ordered to surrender, the negroes opened fire on the raiders, a general exchange of shots following.

CHILTON TEAM TO PLAY DADEVILLE NEXT FRIDAY

Chilton County High School's foot ball warriors will go to Dadeville next Thursday afternoon, and will play the Tallapoosa High squad on the latter's field Friday afternoon.

Coach Bruner has been putting his charges through stiff scrimmages all this week, and his plans called for a light work-out Thursday afternoon, signal work, running back punts, etc. As soon as possible after practice is over, he will leave with his team, 20 strong, for Dadeville to spend the night there.

This has been looked forward to as Chilton's "big game" and the team has been carefully brought up to peak form for this first meeting of the teams which represent the high schools of Chilton and Tallapoosa Counties. The Dadeville team is very confident of winning, while at the Chilton campus hard practice is being soaked up in great gobs, and Chilton's men have blood in their eyes. At any rate it will be a mean scrap.

Among those who will go with Coach Bruner on the trip will probably be L. Sanford, O. Sanford, E. Bruner, Nelson, Sims, Willis, Mims, Johnston, Retherford, S. Martin, H. Martin, Broadhead, Wade, Connatser, Simpson, Miner, and others.

It is understood that the best route is by Wetumpka and Tallassee, this for the benefit of those who will want to see the game. It is expected that the game will begin about 2:30.

Chilton beat Rockford 19 to 0, while Dadeville trimmed the Coosa squad 38 to 7 last Friday, so you can see that Chilton's Tigers will have to growl some next Friday to make it seven straight victories.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook of the "Cook Players" were in Clanton for a few hours Tuesday.

Mrs. D. L. Ward of Thorsby was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday.

A. D. HUETT PREACHED AT CONCORD CHURCH SUNDAY

Rev. G. G. Williams, being unable to fill his regular appointment at Concord church last Sunday, the pulpit was filled by A. D. Huett, a young man who is contemplating entering the ministry. The young man did well considering that it was his first time to preach.

A. D. Huett is the son of Mr. C. B. Huett of Bethsalem community. The young man is now living in Clanton and is attending the Chilton County high school. It is his desire to go to school and prepare himself for the noble work to which he claims he has been divinely called.

Mr. Huett is making a brave start, and here's hoping that he will meet with such success and encouragement along the way that he will "Hitch his wagon to a Star" and will not be content until his goal shall have been reached.

DOLPHUS RATLIFF INDICTED FOR SECOND DEGREE MURDER

An indictment was rendered by the grand jury last week against Dolphus Ratliff, charged with shooting his father, Sebe Ratliff, on April 17th of this year. The son had been under bond since the preliminary trial held soon after the shooting.

The unfortunate occurrence which brought about the death of the elder Ratliff occurred at his home near Sardis church on Sunday, April 17th.

Rev. M. J. Parrish of Providence, Beat 16, has been quite ill for the past week, but late reports say that he is steadily but slowly regaining his health. He has been troubled with a kidney ailment, which reached such proportions that his entire system was placed out of commission.

We are glad that the good old man is getting better, and like the rest of his innumerable friends, hope that he will improve fast and soon be able to be about again.

Miss Roberta Curry

This is our regular weekly feature story about some noted Chilton County man or woman who has gone out from his or her native home and made good in the world at trade, occupation, art, or profession.

To go back to the beginning of the life of the subject of this sketch, we would turn back the leaves of life's history for fully a hundred years and recall the ambitions and aspirations of those who have gone before.

Before Roberta Curry could speak, when she was barely two years of age, the child often rocked her doll babies to sleep with the most tunefui lullabie. The broad range of the baby notes trilled by the baby attracted the ear of her mother who expressed the faith that the child was destined to be the possessor of a most wonderful voice; this faith never wavered. Througout Roberta's girlhood, high school and college days she played leading roles in amateur theatricals and operettas. While a student at Brenneau when the Glee Club made its annual tour, visiting Atlanta, Macon and other Georgia cities, Roberta's voice attracted the kindly criticism of many hearers.

Roberta gladly shares the gratification of her success with her former instructors, Mr. Thos. Tinsley, formerly of the C. C. H. S., Mr George Rogers, Brenneau Conservatory of Music, Mrs. Clara Harper Steele of Birmingham and Mr. William Stickles of New York City.

After pursuing the prescribed literary and music courses in Brenneau College of Music, Miss Curry became director of music in the Jackson (Ala.) Agricultural School. Then followed two years of service as director of music in the C. C. H. S. After which plans were formulated by which Roberta's ambition to gain recognition on Broadway's stage might be attained. It was through her maternal uncle, Dr. Joe Johnson, of Chattanooga that plans for pursuing an artistic course in New York were made possible. However, when credits for Roberta's success are dispensed, "Aunt Nell," Mrs. Joe Johnson, always come in for full measure. In all probability, Mrs. Johnson will never know just how much inspiration was borrowed from her to weave into the warp of Roberta Curry's destiny.

It was five years ago when Roberta, filled with determination to make her dreams of stage-dom come true, set out for New York City. Throughout her study under Mr. Stickles the vision of playing on Broadway was ever luring this little Clanton girl.

Following two years of preparation under the eminent Mr. Stickles, teacher and composer, Miss Curry gladly embraced the opportunity to sing, gratis, old-fashioned songs in costume at the Triangle Theatre in Greenwich Village, New York, an "Art for Art's Sake" theatre. For four months she sang old time songs and southern melodies in Uncle Tom's Cabin. Miss Curry was then given the opportunity of playing on Broadway in "Princess Ida." A Gilbert and Sullivan opera work with the "Wealheroft" Opera Guild was her next undertaking. In the meantime attention was given to the continuance of daily practice under the guidance of Mr. Saickles.

Then came an epoch in the life of this young singer when she had the chance of singing for John Murray Anderson, one of New York's famous producers. She accepted a part in his musical show, "Dearest Enemy." This show played for a year in the Knickerbocker Theatre on Broadway, and elicited nation-wide press comments on account of its historical and beautiful stage settings, its gorgeous costumes, and its colorful climaxes.

During that time Miss Curry gave a concert for the Studio Club, members of which belong to New York's exclusive set.

After playing more than 6 months in "Dearest Enemy," Miss Curry resigned to accept a position with the Frank Wilcox Stock Co., and played for 24 consecutive weeks in Syracuse. Returning to New York from the Syracuse trip, Miss Curry became married on the 8th of October of last year to William Latta Darnell of New York City. Mr. Darnell is a geologist by heritage, it would seem, as well as by choice; he will finish the course in geology in Columbia University in the class of 1928.

Marriage, however, did not interfere with Miss Curry's career. Introduced to Jacquet of the conductors of Roxy's Theatre, Miss Curry was engaged to sing in that theatre and filled engagement for 5 months, resigning to take part in "The Squaw Man," and has been in rehearsal for this play since August 1. "The Squaw Man" is a musical version of which Milton Royal is the author. The music for the opera is composed by Rudolph Friml. Miss Curry plays the part of an English girl. She is also on understudy of one of the leading characters. "The Squaw Man" will make its initial opening in Montreal on the evening of November 12, and will continue to play in that city for two weeks, after which the troupe begins an engagement on Broadway, beginning December 5.

Then, reviewing and reading between the lines, one can not fail to be impressed with the many experiences that Roberta has crowded into five years of New York life. Then, admiring friends, and they are a legion, know that whatever ambition she may cherish Roberta has the determination to attain.

Miss Curry possesses a lyric voice of rare sweetness to which her extensive training has added remarkable volume.

She is Clanton's own Roberta, and she is not only loved, but adored by everyone who knows her. There was never a personality more lovely, and her cordial manner toward everyone, regardless of his position, bespeaks her true worth and nobility.

Over 3,000 Road Men To Meet in Cleveland, O.

ALL COUNTIES IN UNITED STATES WILL BE REPRESENTED BY DELEGATES

County Highway officials, representing each of the 3070 counties of the United States, will assemble in Cleveland on January 9 for the first annual meeting of the national association of county highway officials. The meeting will be one of the most important ever held by those connected with the construction, maintenance and operaton of county highways.

The meeting was called following the organization last June of a new County Highway Officials' Division of the American Road Builders' Association, of which Thomas J. Wasser of Jersey City, N. J. is president.

The sessions will comprise the reports of various standards committees, the objectives of which are to draw up standards for county administration, finance, legislation, construction, maintenance and operation of county roads. The reports will consist of a summary of the best practices as now in force in the various counties of the United States, together with recommended standards.

The convention which will be held in Cleveland is the world's largest good roads convention and in connection with it will be held a road machinery and equipment exposition of over 300 carloads of road building and maintenance equipment, covering more than four acres of floor space. In addition to the county officials, approximatey 25,000 other persons directly connected with the highway industry will attend.

The annual business meeting of the county highway officials will be held on Thursday, January 12, with President Wasser presiding. Reports of various committees will be given and general routine business transacted.

The Convention and Road Show is expected to give new impetus to the construction of county roads on a new economical basis designed to eliminate waste of county funds and increase the efficiency of county roads. Every county official directly or indirectly linked with highway operation, construction or maintenance is urged to be present. Reduced fare has been granted by all railroads to those who attend.

In addition to the gigantic machinery exposition and convention, estimated to cost over $3,000,000, there will be a large number of exhibits presented by the United States Bureau of Public roads, the Department of Commerce, various states of the Union and the nations of South and Central America.

Sunday School Annex Is Now Going Fine

"The Sunday School annex is going fine." This is a pet expression which we borrow from Dr. Ezell, because it so completely expresses the progress that is being made on the Sunday School annex of the Clanton Baptist Church. The third floor has been reached, and within another week the top of the walls will be reached and the roof begun.

It has been intimated that dedication services for the annex will be held the first Sunday in December. We do not know whether that will be definitely announced or not; but it looks like it may not be far from possible. Everybody is pleased with the appearance which the new building is putting on. Its interior arrangement is going to be excellent for the accomodation of many classes of the Sunday School.

Spright Dowell Resigns As Head of Ala. P. I.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 5.—With an 8,000 word statement in which he reviewed the progress of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute during his seven-year administration and analyzed the factors entering into the present discussion, Dr. Spright Dowell, president whose removal was being sought by a group of students, rested his case with the board of trustees when they met here, November 5, in the office of Governor Bibb Graves for final action upon the charges preferred by the students.

Dr. Dowell tendered his resignation as head of the college, which resignation was accepted by the Board. Dr. Dowell, however, was completely exonerated of the charges of incompetency, etc., placed against him by a majority of the students of the college. Dr. Dowell's resignation is to take effect July 1st, 1928. Until then he will still have full charge of the executive part of the institution.

After a review, in which he sets forth 67 achievements showing progress in the College, Dr. Dowell declared that "The real and fundamental issue in the final analysis is whether constitutionally created authority and its agents shall determine the policies and program of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, or whether civilian residents of the village of Auburn, disgruntled alumni and football fans, and misinformed and uninformed students shall determine the policies and program of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"More specifically, whether the institution shall be administered primarily for the welfare of the people of Alabama and the nation, or in the interest of a local community and under local pressure; and still more specifically, whether your agents the President of the institution and those who are associated with him shall stand for high standards of conduct and of scholarship, for law and order, and for social decency; or whether they shall wink at or ignore poor work, unsportsmanlike conduct, the use of liquor, and social immorality."

Dr. Dowell referred also to charges that he has been "playing politics" in the administration of Auburn. His reply was that "No living man who respects the truth and has intelligence can say that I have ever played politics in the critical sense in which the phrase is commonly used. The only political office I have ever held was given me without opposition and with practically a unanimous vote. The only method of procedure I have ever followed has been and always will be to try to discove, with the best light available, just where the path of duty lies, and to travel it in the right spirit."

Mention was made also of statements made purporting that William F. Feagin, whom he succeeded as state superintendent of education, and Prof. L. N. Duncan, director, extension service, have exercised undue influence over him. He declared the reference to Mr. Feagin is "An attack upon the board of trustees and I respectfully leave the answer to you." He said that he has seen Mr. Feagin infrequently and that while Mr. Feagin has been loyal to the institution "he has tried neither directly nor indirectly to meddle with the policies of the institution nor to interfere with the work of its president."

Regarding Mr. Duncan, he pointed out that the extension service has given its full support to the entire work of the college and that "Outside of the sphere of the Extension Service, the director has not received and, so far as I know, has not expected any special consideration. Any statement, therefore, that the executive head of this institution has been improperly influenced by the director of the Extension Service is absolutely false and, in my judgment, grows either out of pitiful ignorance or purposeful meanness." He said also that the high standing of the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, based upon organization and efficiency, is a matter of record.

Among other achievements Dr. Dowell pointed out that during his seven years as president there has been an increase of 60 per cent in the student body, despite the elimination of special courses and also vocational students, of whom 227 were at Auburn when he became president in 1920. Despite meagre appropriations, debts hanging over when he became president have been removed, new buildings erected, and many other advancements made, together with an enlargement of the faculty.

His concluding statement was, "This year marks the transition in the life of the institution from a station of comparative poverty to one of relative financial comfort. With the added srength, the more thorough organization, and the wise expansion that are now possible and with the quality of support that you are prepared to give in translating such possibilities into realities, I am confident that Auburn's best and brightest days are ahead, that a better Auburn will mean a better Alabama, and that all those who have the real Auburn spirit and the true spirit of Alabama will work together wholeheartedly to give the boys and girls of Alabama the best possible advantages to prepare for the largest life careers. In that spirit I have worked for these years and on that record I now stand."

Real Facts on the present tire situation

MICHELIN TIRES & TUBES

You are practically certain to get more mileage by changing to Michelins

Both this year and last, written reports (secured from several thousand motorists picked at random from the great army who are trying out Michelin Tires) showed that more than 80 out of every 100 motorists who changed to Michelins secured more mileage by the change—and only 9 out of every 100 secured less mileage.

This increase in mileage averages 36%

Records covering millions of miles prove that Michelins go 36% farther than the average tire. That means 4,000 or 5,000 miles extra per tire.

The finest construction thruout

Only the best of the world's materials are used in Michelin Tires. For instance, Michelin rubber comes from selected plantations and costs 2c more per pound than the market price. Moreover, the most advanced design and manufacture are employed thruout the tire. For example, Michelin has pioneered in the development of high-twist fabric; and Michelin Tires have always been made of rubber-saturated fabric, now widely advertised.

You don't pay for Michelin's extra mileage

Tho they are better, Michelin Tires cost no more than standard tires. That is possible because, unlike other manufacturers, Michelin concentrates on making only one grade—the best—and thus is able to produce the highest quality more economically.

Michelin Tires and Tubes Cost No More

		Casings	Tubes
30 x 3½ regular	Cord	$7.90	$1.60
30 x 3½ oversize		$10.15	$1.60
29 x 4.40 universal		$8.95	$1.95

We carry a full line of Michelin Balloons, Oversize Cords, Heavy Duty Cords and Ring-shaped Tubes, all at prices just as attractive as the above.

Michelin Ring-shaped Tubes are also supreme

Because Michelin Tubes are made ring-shaped, instead of being made straight like other tubes, they fit better and outlast all others. And because they are compounded with a special kind of antimony, they keep the casing as much as 20° cooler, thus increasing its life considerably.

LOCAL INDUSTRIES BRING PROSPERITY TO GENEVA, ALA.

$250,000 In Payrolls Produced By Five Home-Owned Plants In Town Of 2,500

Completely exploding the fallacy that the small community is unable to finance and operate its own industries, that the Coastal Plain is not a suitable location for textile plants, that the native labor of the upland sections is superior to that of the Coastal Plain, and that climatic conditions in that region militate against the successful operation of industrial plants, Geneva, Alabama, a small town of only 2,500 people located almost on the Florida line, lifts its head above the horizon of industrial progress and proclaims, "It can be done!" And it has been done, as an investigation of Geneva's remarkable achievement by a representative of the Gulf Electric Company discloses.

And thereby hangs a tale of community enterprise and industrial progress probably unparalleled in the South.

Geneva has achieved prosperity through the promotion of five locally-owned industries yielding a payroll of $250,000 annually. Her five industries, all of which are electrified and every dollar of the capital for which was furnished by local citizens, include a cotton mill, an underwear mill, a modern 8-stand cotton gin, a combination ice and cooperative cold storage plant, and a wholesale gasoline and oil distributing plant.

Entire Community Benefited

New jobs have been created for approximately 400 people, the value of taxable property of the city and county has been increased by several hundred thousand dollars, the population of the community has been increased, a new market has been created for the products of the farmers in the surrounding territory, and the business of every merchant, business and professional man in the community has been increased in some instances as much as 40 per cent. And what is more important, all profits, which are said to have been most satisfactory, have been distributed at home, further contributing to local prosperity. That is the record of Geneva's five home-owned enterprises

"How did you do it?" one of the bell-wethers of the town was asked.

"Well, it was like this," he said "One of our young fellows was getting a shave one day. The barber was probably not very talkative and our friend was doing some thinking. He asked himself the old question. 'What's the matter with Geneva?' If we had a good cotton crop everybody paid his bills and business was fairly good in the late fall, winter and early spring. But we didn't always have a good crop. The result was that business was spotty and we never knew what to count on, and business can't thrive on uncertainty.

Payrolls Needed

"Our friend came to the conclusion that his business and everything else in Geneva would never amount to anything as long as it depended entirely on agriculture for its prosperity and that the farmers in the contiguous territory would never be prosperous as long as Geneva afforded no better market for their products. He knew that there was but one road to increased prosperity for his and other businesses, and for the farmers in that section, and that was to create some industries with payrolls.

"He knew this section had all the requisites for a successful textile plant but realized that it had little opportunity to compete wtih more favorably known sections for outside capital. So he went back to his office and dictated a subscription list to his stenographer, and taking the main street a few minutes later, in less than two hours he succeeded in getting about sixty local citizens to subscribe sufficient capital to finance a small cotton mill.

"Of course, there was but one thing we knew about a cotton mill, and that was that we didn't know anything about one. The first thing textile men told us was that a cotton mill didn't do so well in the Coastal Plain. But we couldn't see why, because we knew we had everything in our favor. So we employed a competent mill architect who designed and built the mill from the ground up. And then we hired a good man to run it.

"The mill has been running continuously, night and day, for nearly four years on narrow heavy sheeting and it has made money from the day it started.

Home Financing Simple

"That's the way be started the cotton mill; and the underwear mill, gin, oil and ice plants were started in about the same way. Altogether there are probably 100 people in town who own stock in one or the other of the enterprises. There's nothing complicated about a town financing its own industries. All it takes is a self-starter, a little money and a little common sense. That's about all there is to it."

To all appearances, Geneva isn't any different from a hundred other towns in Alabama or a hundred thousand in the United States. It has the regulation "Main Street," a broad, paved and white-way lighted thoroughfare, on which abut the town's business houses. Its paved sidewalks, waterworks, sanitary sewerage facilities, public school building and five churches are such as one would find in any town of 2,500 people. Its power service is obtained from Gulf Electric Company. Its "folks" are of the same ancestry as the majority of Southerners and do not appear to be any different from those in any Southern small town. And to complete the picture, a mayor and five councilmen rule Geneva's destiny.

Geneva Pulls Together

But it is Geneva's "folks" that make it different. Somehow Geneva has rid of that small town pettiness and jealousy that is the curse of so many communities and dooms them as water-tank towns until they rise above it. This is evident even to an outsider. It is Geneva's history that her people pull together on anything for the town's good. Of course there are leaders in Geneva, as there must be in every town, and these men are largely responsible for its remarkable industrial development. Prominent among them are Messrs. W. O. Mulkey, D. H. Morris, Jr., J. J. Johnson, Sr., James Johnson, C. D. Chapman, Watson Brothers, Jenkins & Early, Malcolm H. Harper and others.

Conditions Favor Alabama

The chief advantages of Alabama communities, outside of the industrialized areas, for the textile industry are lower taxes, more intelligent and efficient labor, lower living costs, and low cost power, according to C. C. Cobb, Superintendent of the Geneva Cotton Mills.

The cotton mill plant is modern and contains 6,720 spindles and 208 looms. All equipment is of the newest high-speed type. It manufactures narrow heavy sheeting, using 5,000 bales of local cotton annually, and gives employment to 250 workers, approximately 80 per cent of whom are women. All are employed on a piece-work basis. The 60 workers' houses, adjacent to the mill, contain every modern convenience, and each is provided with a flower plot in front and a vegetable garden in the rear. In the recreation center provided by the mill are a playground and a club house, in which is housed the vocational training school supported by the Federal Government, the State and the mill. Here the three "R's" and domestic science rekindle the spark of ambition in many men and women beyond school age who had long since given up hope of obtaining an education. Most of the male workers were formerly tenant farmers or laborers, and some of the women chopped and picked cotton, or performed other laborious farm chores. Here in this village they have found less arduous duties, shorter hours, a greater income, an opportunity to obtain an education, more pleasant and healthful living conditions, and altogether more happiness than they have ever known in their lives. Nearly 50 out of the 60 families have their own cars.

South's Labor Superior

Intelligent and efficient labor is the hobby of T. F. Trimble, superintendent of the Geneva Underwear Mill, who attributes the superiority of the South in textiles primarily to its more intelligent and therefore more efficient labor and to its higher speed machinery.

The underwear mill is what the old Westerners would call a "dude outfit." Among its 130 women workers are 4 college and 40 high school graduates, and all have completed the seven primary grades. Several are ex-teachers, who now earn more and find their duties lighter than formerly. They average slightly over 20 years in age, and work strictly on a piece-work basis. All are natives of Geneva County, a goodly number residing in Geneva and others on farms within a radius of ten miles. Many have their own cars, in which they ride to and from work every day, picking up their neighbors en route. There are many cases of the daughters earning more than their farmer fathers. Only those of the highest moral, educational and physical standards are employed. The result is that many are from the best families in that section. The whole enterprise is much like an old Swiss Guild.

The plant is a new, modern, well-lighted and cooled building housing 108 individually motor-driven sewing machines of the latest type and highest speed. Men's and boys' athletic underwear of several grades and styles and men's handkerchiefs are manufactured, 300 to 350 dozen garments being made each day. These products are sold to the jobbing trade through a New York sales connection and shipments have been made to practically every state.

The new and modern 8-stand cotton gin of the Geneva Gin and Storage Company; the wholesale gasoline, kerosene and lubricating oil distribution plant of the Geneva Oil Company, and the Geneva Ice and Fuel Company's ice plant and cooperative cold storage plant, used principally by nearby farmers for curing meat, are Geneva's other locally-owned enterprises, all of which bring her payrolls of something like $250,000 annually. Every dollar of the necessary operating capital is also furnished by Geneva.

Payrolls Help Business

But perhaps the most interesting phase of this unique case of local development is the direct effect of the distribution of these payrolls upon every business, trade and profession in the community, and the surrounding agricultural territory. The whole country has felt the stimulating effect of this new money. Something like fifty new homes have been erected in the past three years where a new house was once a rarity. Bank deposits have increased materially. Merchants, motor car dealers, filling station operators, building material dealers, drug stores, boarding houses, lawyers and doctors all report an increase in their business from 25 to 40 per cent. And Geneva now affords a better market for truck, dairy products, meat and other products grown by farmers in the surrounding territory than ever before.

Though now connected with Gulf Electric Company's system, the capacity of the power line serving Geneva will shortly be increased. With the promise of more power, Geneva is turning her thoughts to increasing the capacity of her cotton and underwear mills. The taste of prosperity which these payrolls have given her people have only whetted their appetite for more. She has the capital, the labor, she will shortly have more power, and her people have that indomitable courage which make for community success. Geneva has already pointed the way, and the indications are that her people will be enjoying the fruits of their foresight and courage years before many other Alabama cities which are now idly waiting for someone to spread industries in their lapa

"The Legislature is authorized to form or to provide for the formation of public road districts in Baldwin County, Alabama, for the establishment, purchase, construction, betterment and maintenance of public roads, bridges, causeways and ferries; and for levying and collecting annually a tax not exceeding one per centum on the value of the taxable property in such districts, in addition to all taxes that are now or may hereafter be allowed under and by the constitution of the State of Alabama, or any other amendment thereto, such tax to be applied on account of the expense of such improvements in such districts; also to provide for advancing by said County of monies for such improvements and for the return to the County from the proceeds of the said special tax of all money so advanced; also to provide for the borrowing by said County upon its credit of monies to be so advanced by bonds or warrants without a vote of the electors of said County; all indebtedness so created to be in addition to that which is now or that may hereafter be allowed to be incurred by said County under the Constitution of the State of Alabama or any other amendment thereto; provided that the rate of the tax, the time it is to continue (which shall not be for a period longer than twenty years from the date when such tax becomes effective) and the purpose to which it is to be devoted shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the district and voted for by a majority of those voting at such election; provided further that the levying of a less rate than that authorized by this amendment shall not preclude additional levies not exceeding in the aggregate one percentum on the value of the taxable property in the district; provided further that if any tax is levied for a period less than twenty years, or if a part of the period for which such tax was originally levied has elapsed, then in either such event the period during which such tax is effective may, with the approval of a majority of the qualified voters voting at an election called for the purpose of voting upon the extension of such period, be extended for a period of twenty years from the date of the election by which such period is extended; and provided further that the debt authorized hereby to be incurred by the County, together with six per cent interest per annum thereon to the date of payment, shall not exceed the estimated amount of such levied taxes computed on the basis of the last assessment of the taxable property in such districts. The powers herein conferred are in addition to and not in conflict with the powers conferred by the amendment to the Constitution proposed at the 1923 Session of the Legislature (Acts of Alabama 1923, page 593) and ratified at the General State election of November, 1924. Any laws enacted by the Alabama Legislature of 1927 shall be valid and have effect under this amendment to the same extent as if such laws had been enacted subsequent to the adoption of this amendment."

WHEREAS, the Legislature adjourned on Friday, the second day of September 1927, and Tuesday the 13th of December 1927, is the second Tuesday, next after three months from the date of the final adjournment of said Legislature; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by Proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, therefore, I, BIBB GRAVES, Governor of the State of Alabama do hereby give notice, direct, and proclaim that on Tuesday the 13th day of December 1927, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for a vote by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form and places as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, namely:

(a) The Jackson School District Number 72, of Clarke County, Alabama, and all other school districts of Clarke County which have been or which may hereafter be consolidated with said Jackson School District may levy and collect a tax not exceeding fifty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in such school districts, for the purpose 1. of paying or refunding of outstanding bonds of the town of Jackson, Clarke County, Alabama, which have been heretofore issued for the erection and equipment of the public school buildings in said town; and 2. after the payment of such bonds then for public school purposes within such districts; provided that the rate of the proposed tax and the time it is to continue shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the combined districts affected, and voted for by a majority of those voting upon such proposition at such election. (b) After such tax shall have been voted for and is being levied and collected by said Jackson School District Number 72 and the districts which have been consolidated therewith, no other district may consolidate with said Jackson District until such district so consolidating with said Jackson District shall have also voted a tax of like amount and with like expiration date, as shall have been voted by the districts which are then levying and collecting the tax provided for by paragraph (a) hereof. (d) The tax hereby authorized shall be in addition to any and all other taxes now authorized by law, and its collection shall in no manner affect the right of the districts in which it shall be levied to share in the school monies heretofore available for such districts, nor shall any reduction in such shares be made by reason of the tax hereby authorized.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 13th day of December 1927, in each county in the State of Alabama, in a newspaper published in said County.

"COLLECT PINE SEED NOW," SAY FORESTERS

Now is the time to collect pine seed for direct sowing or for raising seedlings in beds, says the Alabama Commission of Forestry. The cones or burs should be collected before they are opened, otherwise the seed will have been already shed and lost.

The best place to gather the burs is at the logging front of some lumbering operation. They should be picked off the felled tops, placed in sacks, and afterward spread out on a floor or large piece of canvas where the sun can reach them. If the weather is dry they will open in a few days. The burs may then be placed in a barrel, or even heaped in a pile, and beaten briskly so that the seeds will fall out.

If the burs are already partly open, it is sometimes feasible to separate the seed quite readily by beating the burs when gathered so that the seed will fall back into a sack or bucket held beneath. The wings usually remain attached to the seed and ordinarily no attempt should be made to break them off, since they add little to the weight or bulk.

Persons desiring pine seed should take advantage of every good seed year, since these usually occur at infrequent intervals. The long leaf pine, in particular, bears seed only once in from three to seven years, and if a seed year is allowed to pass by without collecting, it is apt to be a long time before another opportunity will occur.

THE MAINE VOTE

But the direct primary is a failure and the figures of the Maine election give one of the reasons why it is a failure. Of the 200,000 normal vote in the state but a little more than one-fourth was cast for and against the repeal proposal. It may be presumed that every voter of radical tendencies was present at the polls to vote against repeal; that every citizen whose interest demagogues could awaken was there to assist in rolling up a two to one majority against repeal. But the mighty three-fourths was inarticulate and inert.

In such an election as that, and the electorates of the forty-eight states are much the same, no device for popular rule can be a successful one. The direct primary, as well as the initiative and referendum, presupposes intelligence and alertness on the part of the people, it was strikingly demonstrated last Tuesday that nearly three-fourths of them were not alert.

It may, however, be said in their behalf that the proponents of repeal did not allow them much of a choice—between the continuance of the direct primary and the old corrupt system.

More than a year ago the Republican suggested a middle ground—a system which would leave us free from the evils from which we flew so far, and which on the other hand, would modify the evils which we have found in the direct primary. We would retain the primary and restore the convention. Instead of selecting candidates at the primary we would select delegates to the convention. The primary for this purpose would have all the official character and safeguards which are thown about the present primary, and the delegates so chosen to county conventions and the state convention would be neighbors of the dates.

The delegates chosen to the convention wiuld be neighbors of the voters who should choose them; they would be men of standing in their several communities; they would have the opportunity to study the qualifications and fitness of candidates for nominations, which the electorate at large does not have in the direct rimary.

There would be avoided the bitternerness which the direct primary engenders, and we should have more capable nominees for office. On the one hand the bosses would be held in restraint, and, on the other, the field of the demagogue would be greatly restricted.—Arizona Republican.

Referring to the naval conference Loyd George asks: "If either Great Britian or America had said 'war between Great Britain and the United States is so inconceivable that we will agree to any proposal so long as it reduces armaments' what would have happened?" That's an easy one. John Bull would have said to Uncle Sam: "All right, Sam, you reduce first."

The fact that a number of Democratic leaders are insisting on cutting taxes below what the treasury experts call the danger point, may mean that the Democrats don't expect to have to pay the running expenses of the govenrment even after next year.

KNOCKING THE KNOCKERS

Free trade newspapers, always taking the foreign side of controversies with the United States, seem to get much comfort out of the recent effort of the French government to increase tariff on American products from three to four hundred per cent above the "most favored nation" level. This effort seems to have come to nothing for the time being because of the vigorous protest of the State Department against this discrimination, the reciprocal increases of tariff on similar French products under our tariff law, and the realization that the President is authorized in such cases to hoist the tariff rates, or impose an embargo against the imports of nations which discriminate against American exports.

We are told that such discriminatory action by the French government is the natural result of our "prohibitive" tariff, French imports into the United States are greater than in any pre-war year. France buys one per cent of our exports; the United States buys ten per cent of the exports of France.

Besides the American tariff rests upon the justification that production costs, especially labor costs, are less abroad than at home. In Europe as a whole labor costs range from one-fifth to one-half the American level. Our tarif, which only inadequately seeks to equalize this difference in production costs, imposes no handicap on the foreign producer. It merely puts him on something like an equal footing with the American producer. The amount of foreign commodities on the shelves of American merchandising concerns shows that this tariff is by no means prohibitive; but that on the contrary the amount of foreign goods now imported may have something to do with such unemployment as we have in this country and whatever slackening of retail trade has resulted.

There is reason to believe that the French effort to restrict American imports was only a trial balloon of European industrialists, in close combinations which reach across international boundaries. Because we have higher labor costs here than prevail abroad, American manufactured products sold in Europe must have superiority of quality or better adaptation to their intended uses than the articles with which they compete. America cannot compete on a low production cost based on low wages for workers.

In the case of France the balance of trade dealings with the United States is heavily on the French side. For there must be taken into account American tourists' expenditures of a quarter billion dollars annually, and also the vast amount of goods brought into this country duty free under the exemption of one hundred dollars per person. Moreover the valuaitons for customs purposes of articles imported from abroad by no means represent either their wholesale or retail value when they are put into circulation in this country. The bulk of our exports to Europe consists of raw or partially finished materials which are completed at a profit. When we export soil exhausting grains, oil and minerals we are selling off what cannot be replaced; it is to be subtracted from the sum total of our natural resources. Europe buys of the United States only what she requires from us under a high tariff or a low tariff. To ask that we subject our industries to the unfair competition of underpaid alien producers is a demand the American people do not intend to grant, despite the protests of foreign industrialists and their mouthpieces in the United States.

FUTURE BUSINESS

During the past two or three weeks there has been a liquidation in the stock market. Prices in important stocks have gone down and some people have adopted the pessimistic attitude regarding the future of business in the United States. Just how much of this liquidation has been due to the professional traders and how much to a recession of activity in the steel industry cannot of course be accurately estimated. It can be safely said, however, that we are not on the verge of any industrial depression and that it is still important to keep in mind the fact that it never pays to sell Uncle Sam short.

There are many favorable signs in the business horizon. First is the indication that the farmers are gradually overcoming their depression and coming back into their own—which means of course an increase in the buying power of the country.

The annual survey of the nation's trade by the National Association of Manufacturers indicates that industries as a whole are only a shade less flourishing than in the peak of 1926 and that the indications are for better business now rather than poorer trade. Of the replies received in the survey more than 91 per cent reported favorable business, 11 per cent declaring business to be excellent, 36 per cent good and 43 per cent fair. So far as prospects for the winter are concerned 92 per cent reported as favorable. The condition of the labor situation is indicated by the fact that 99 and 7-10 of the replies received in the survey indicated that there were no labor troubles of any kind.

No set of men are in closer touch with business conditions than the national advertisers. In opening the annual session of the National Association of Advertisers in New York recently, S. E. Conybeare, president of the association declared that it is the concensus of opinion among business men nearly everywhere that 1928 is going to be a prosperous year. Thirty per cent of the members of the association, he said, plan to increase the amount of their advertising next year.

Taken all in all, it would seem that most of the signs point to a good winter's business in the United States this year. The holiday season is approaching and it ought to be a good one. The up-to-date merchant will prepare of course by having the right kind of line, and one which can be sold at the right price. Then to assure him that he will get his share of the general trade, he will advertise consistently and effectively in his local newspapers.

TAX REDUCTION

The season of tax reduction is at hand. Congress is about to come into session and in the meantime the important Ways and Means Committee is considering the question of finances. We will hear a great deal about tax reduction in the next few months and some sort of tax reduction there will be. This year it seems that Republican and Democratic leaders are pretty generally agreed on the kind of tax reduction we ought ot have. They feel that the corporation tax ought to be reduced and some of the surtaxes cut down. The difference of opinion is not so much on the kind of reduction as on the amount of it. Some of the leaders want a reduction of $400,000,000 or over while others, and this class includes most of the administration leaders, think that the cut ought not to be more than $250,000,000. Their argument is that we cannot estimate the financial condition of the country a year hence and that any reduction over $250,000,000 may imperil the present program of debt reduction, a program which by all means ought to be continued. It would seem therefore that those who advocate a more moderate reduction have the better of the argument.

It might be well to call attention to the fact that while the American people are taxed to the extent of $7,500,000,000 each year, the greater part of the money goes not to the federal government but to the state and local units. The national government collects a great deal less than the smaller units.

It is the local taxation which is now the real burden on the ordinary consumer. Local taxation is one of the conditions which has handicapped the farmer, While the federal government is steadily reducing taxes the local governments are making no such moves. After all the people are themselves to blame for this. They vote the taxes on themselves. It is the people's business and they do the paying and suffering. But attention cannot be called too often to the importance of reducing local taxes. Economy and efficiency are as necessary to local as to national government.

A Pile Of COAL 4·7 Miles High

IF ALL of the coal handled by the L. & N. Railroad during 1926 were dumped into one pile, the base of which occupied an entire city block, the top-most lump would be 4.7 miles up in the sky. If this enormous mass of coal could be moulded into one solid jet-black shaft, size of the Washington monument at its base, it would pierce the heavens a distance of 83 miles. This represents but one year's coal business handled by this Railroad.

The importance of coal to every household and to every American citizen can not fully be determined or appreciated unless the supply were shut off and the transportation lines stopped. Coal turns the wheels of industry; warms the schools and churches; makes possible the operation of a thousand-and-one different factors in the health and happiness of the American people.

The L. & N. is one of the great coal carrying roads of the Nation, transporting these "black diamonds" from the mines of Illinois, Kentucky, West Virginia, Alabama and Tennessee to every part of the South, North and Northwest.

Last year the L. & N. Railroad handled 71,400,000 tons of freight and 9,723,000 passengers ---- the freight being transported at average cost, per mile, to the shipper, of less than one penny, while the passengers journeyed an average of 68 miles. Railroads of America are affording most efficient transportation service ever known in the world's history.

Without American steam railroads, the coal mines of this Nation would all be shut down. Rail transportation makes possible the distribution of coal. Rail transportation is one of the most vitally important things to your community. Remember this; and remember also the fact that the steam railroads of America pay into State, County and local treasuries, the total of $1,000,000 (in the form of taxes) a day, every day in the year. Steam railroads deserve both your freight and traveling patronage.

POOR ORIGINAL

With the Vocational Teachers

(By J. P. Montgomery)

Luther Fowler, editor of the Shelby County Reporter and A. A. Lauderdale county agent of Shelby county, talked to the evening school farmers at Pleasent grove. Both men were coworkers with me during the time I was a vocational teacher in shelby county.

Mr. Fowler attended the first evening school that I evertaught and encouraged me in starting the evening school on dairying, which was the first work of that kind ever developed in the county and which developed into a county-wide project.

To have them at Pleasant Grove on Tuesday evening of this week carried me back to the old days when we fought so hard to put the milk cow on the farms of Shelby county where they belonged, and together with all of the old jokes between us revived, the evening was a real success at least it was for one and that I, myself.

A. A. Lauderdale fresh for with the memories of the recent state fair at Montgomery where Shelby county ranked first in numbers of hog-ton litters shown told how Shelby county farmers produced a ton of pork from one litter of pigs in 180 days.

Shelby county had more ton litters shown at the state fair than any county in the state and loaded with ribbons and cash prizes, besides selling their porkers at a nice profit.

Lauderdale reviewed the raising of hogs from the time the sows were first purchased on thru until sold. The farmers used sows from large litters of pigs. These sows in true produced large litters. He advises the slaughtering of all sows that produce as few as five pigs per litter. His goal is 8 to 10 pigs per litter and two litters per year. The pigs were farrowed in a simple hog house but so constructed so common everywhere. These pigs had grazing crops from the time they were born until sold.

The sows were bred in November, the pigs born in March, and soon turned on a patch of oats and vetch.

The first of June these pigs were turned on a patch of essex rape and peas and the first of August they were turned on a field of mammoth yellow soybeans and corn.

They remained in this field until sold at Montgomery. Portable fences were used and the corn and soybeans grazed thoroughly and then a new area used. In addition a ration consisting of 60 lbs. of corn, 32 lbs. of shorts and 8 lbs. of tankage was used almost thruout the life of the animal. Skim milk was substituted for all of the tankage with the cream shippers. This is the Auburn way of growing hogs and from the figures obtained charging all grazing crops and feed fed, Mr. Lauderdale advises that a farmer can expect $100.00 profit per litter. That takes into account the cost of keeping the sow and with two ton litters a year a farmer can expect $200.00 net profit per year at present prices. Most concentrated feed was fed in self-feeders, most of the grazing was done on sowed fields. The harvesting of the crops was done by the hog, thus labor was reduced to a minimum. In addition a mixture of equal parts of weight of salt, air slaked lime, and charcoal was kept in a box before the hogs all the time. Some of the men were fortunate enough to have running water thru all of the grazing patches. Such men had quite an advantage.

Mr. Fowler, editor of the Shelby County Reporter, a man who, thru his paper and thru his ctive personal work has, in the opinion of Mr. Lauderdale and also myself, exerted a greater influence for better agriculture and better schools in Shelby County than has any other man, was the next man on the program. Mr. Fowler reviewed a few of the things that Shelby was doing. In 1923 Shelby sowed 1000 pounds of vetch seed. In 1927 they sowed 50,000 pounds. In 1923 there were in Shelby County a few scattered men selling milk products. Today one of the major agricultural enterprises is the selling of whole milk and sour cream. Mr. Fowler advised the selling of sour cream over whole milk. He said a few cows, 3, 4 or 5, according to the size of the farm, with the sale of sour cream and the feeding of skim milk to calves, hogs and poultry, together with the production of cotton and other staple farm crops was real diversification. The selling of whole milk requires a larger number of cows and the man grows into a one crop system like all cotton, the thing that we do not want.

In 1924 Shelby county was the laughing stock of the state and when they put on their first agricultural exhibition at Birmingham the people joked and laughed and wanted to know where their main product "white lightning" was. In 1927 Shelby put on the most complete agricultural exhibit perhaps ever put in a southern fair, won first prize and the old uncomplimentary feeling toward Shelby has turned to one of dignity and respect. People now realize that it is a county good to live in.

In 1925 Shelby was filled with one-room, six months schools. Today it has under construction the most complete school building and school program of any county in the state. In the consolidation of the grammar schools Shelby takes this attitude: Leave the grammar schools where they are if the school is large enough to have three teachers, that means 90 pdpils. That gives one teacher two grades Unless the school is large enough for that it is consolidated with other schools. Mr. Fowler says they prefer to leave the grammar schools in the communities dhere thye have always been; but where the school is so small as to just have one teacher for six grades, it is an injustice to the pupil and to the teacher. He says there is not any teacher that can teach six grades thoroughly, even with a small class of three or four pupils; it kills the iniative in a teacher, takes all the pep away and six months is too short for a pupil and does not give the teacher employment enough to enable her financially, to get the training in the summer that she would like to have.

In speaking of vocational agriculture, Mr. Fowler said that Mr. Stone had perhaps the largest class of vocational boys in the state. Mr. Stone is feautring dairying with his evening school and poultry with quite a bit of interest on broilers with his boys.

We were all convinced that Shelby County is one of the most progressive counties in the state, and we told Mr. Fowler that were it not for Chilton County we thought that Shelby might become the best county in the state.

A few words about Chilton county. The program for consideration in Chilton is the same as it is in Shelby. The same is true of Montgomery County, the leading county in school development in the state.

HUDSON-ESSEX CARS VAPORIZE FUEL EFFECTIVELY

How effectively Hudson-Essex cars vaporize fuel, and extract from it every unit of energy, is indicated in reports to the Hudson-Essex factory from the Pacific Coast, where sensational tests have just been completed with an Essex Super-Six.

These tests—conducted by the Walter M. Murphy Motors Co., distributors for Southern California—proved that an Essex Super-Six car can travel at over 60 miles an hour using kerosene as fuel; in fact the Essex ran at faster than a mile-a-minute clip on a still lower grade fuel, or distillate. With the kerosene, the car ran about two miles an hour faster than with distillate.

"These tests," in the opinion of Mr. H. M. Bates, Hudson-Essex distributor in Clanton, "prove that the Essex motors are perfectly designed from the standpoint of vaporizing fuel. Unless the carburetion and the manifolding systems were of exceptional efficiency, the motors would miss and function imperfectly. When standard gasoline is used, of course, the performance of the cars is still more outstanding.

"The unusual feature of these experiments is that the Essex Super-Six is a high compression motor. It employs in fact possibly the highest ratio of compression in any standard motor car. There has been a mass of propaganda in high compression motors designed to make the average motorists believe that they require special fuels. Such is certainly not the case with Hudson-Essex. Either of these cars will operate on any old fuel at all—even fuels which are far below the standard of regular gasoline. They will not simply 'get by' with regular gas; they will perform very efficiently and pleasingly indeed. This is a feature of superiority built into their design.

"Similar tests have been conducted at many points in the county, so that the abilities of both the Hudson and the Essex have been amply proved. With the autumn and winter coming on, this ability to use fuels effectively is a most important item of design."

May We Present.—

It has been our pleasure during the past weeks to publish a brief sketch of the grammar school teachers in order that the patrons of that school might appreciate more fully their good fortune in securing the services of such able teachers and women of such high ideals.

And now before we pass on to the C. C. H. S. teachers we wish to present Miss Mary C. Hobdy, the principal of the Clanton grammar school.

Miss Hobdy makes her home at Camden.

Clanton has never had an instructor who is better trained for the work than Miss Hobdy. She is a graduate of Shorter College and has a B. A. Degree from the University of Tennessee. She has received further training at Peabody, Cornell, Harvard, and Columbia Universities. For a number of years Miss Hobdy has taught as principal in the high schools of Alabama. As a proof of her efficiency it is needed only to say that for years she was principal of the Carbonville school, Dallas County and that pupils who went from this school to colleges of the state ranked among the most efficient students. Miss Hobdy comes to Clanton very highly recommended from the various schools in which she has taught, among which are: Snow Hill, Tuskegee High School, Demopolis, Corbanville and others.

Those who have kept in touch with our grammar school this year realize the splendid system Miss Hobdy has established and appreciate the spirit of cooperation between the faculty members, which can be attained only through the inspiration and efforts of an able principal.

Miss Hobdy is not only educated in the sciences and arts but is cultured, refined, dignified, energetic, agreeable and a most lovable Christian woman of the highest type.

During her brief stay in Clanton Miss Hobdy has won the friendship of every one with whom she has come in contact. Clanton appreciates an instructor of Miss Hobdy's type and we hope that we may be able to keep her. As a token of our appreciation let's assist her in every possible way to make our grammar school one of the best in the state.

Latin in the Schools.—

The P. T. A. held its regular monthly meeting at the Chilton County High School, Monday afternoon at 3:30. The much discussed supject of Latin in the high school was fully explained by the principal, Mr. Ellis. In his talk he stated that Latin or languages are elective in the high schools of the Southern Association and that the lack of a Latin course in the Chilton County High School, or any other high school does not bar them from the Southern Association. Mr. Ellis, however, very anxious to have a course of Latin in our Chilton County High School, at the close of school, asked the pupils who wished to take Latin the following session to sign up for it in order that he might select a teacher who could teach the subject at that time. Only three pupils signed up for Latin but regardless of this small percentage, Mr. Ellis selected three teachers who were qualified to teach Latin. At the opening of the school still the quota of six pupils required by the state for a Latin cclass could not be obtained so Mr. Ellis made out the schedule for the year in keeping with the courses selected by the pupils. Recently some of the pupils deciding upon their life profession found at this late date that Latin was essential in their work but it is only reasonable to understand that Mr. Ellis could not rearrange his whole schedule in the middle of the term. With these in mind it behooves the parents in the future to make a cereful study of the courses selected by their children so that they may receive the full benefit of the advantage that Mr. Ellis is so eager to give them.

On December 2, the P. T. A. will sponsor a Fiddler's Convention at the Chilton County High School. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

R. M. SORRELL MOVING FROM THORSBY TO BIRMINGHAM

Mr. R. M. Sorrell, prominent farmer of Thorsby, has sold out his farm and moved to Birmingham, where he will go into the real estate business. For some years Mr. Sorrell has been growing potato plants for commercial use, which business he has conducted very extensively with a marked degree of success

We regret that Mr. Sorrell is leaving Chilton County. He is a good man, a hustler, and it is a loss to any community to have such men as Mr. Sorrell move away. We wish him much success in his new field.

SEWELL BROTHERS IN WRECK

The famous Sewell brothers, Luke, Joe, and Tommie, well known baseball stars, with Joe's son, Joe, Jr., announced their presence in Clanton with a bang last Saturday morning. The first thing they did when they arrived was to get into an automobile wreck.

The Sewells were driving up the highway in a Nash sedan; in front of Dief's Service Sation they spied Jack Hayes across the street and began hallooing to him. A Miss Pierce was driving down the highway, and turned into First Avenue between Dief's Service Station and the Post Office. When the driver of the Sewell car noticed Miss Pierce's Ford it had already cut in ahead of him and he was unable to prevent the smash-up. Witnesses said that the driver of the Ford was at fault for cutting in to the left ahead of the Nash. Nobody was hurt.

This is one of the most dangerous corners in the city, and several auto wrecks have occurred there.

Mrs. Arthur Watson and Miss Celestia Maddox returned home Sunday after a delightful visit to friends and relatives in Birmingham.

GOOD SINGING AT PROVIDENCE LAST SUDAY AFTERNOON

Singing was opened by the chairman, R. M. Robinson, and the following sung two songs each: T. E. Wyatt, Rube Miller, G. C. Powell, C. H. Robinson and Jasper Robinson. Pianists were C. H. ALABAMA FARMERS SELL MORE HOGS

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 5.—The Alabama hog crop this season is much larger than that of a year ago. A questionnaire sent to county agents in the hog producing section of the state and answered by seven of them estimate that these seven counties will sell hogs cooperatively this season for $985,106 as compared with $565,806 last year—a gain of $419,-300 in seven counties in one year. The number of carloads to be sold during the 1927-28 season is estimated at 707 as compared with 390 one year ago. The counties are Houston, Henry, Hale, Conecuh, Choctaw, Crenshaw and Clark.

Houston County is expected to be the leader this year. J. H. Witherington, county agent, estimated that 450 carloads will be sold as compared with 200 last ear. The values are placed at $675,000 and $300,000.

Dale County is to be second. G. W. Ray, county agent, says that sales last season brought to farmers of that county $183,606, and that the same amount is expected this season, although a 25-per cent increase in the number of hogs sold is expected.

Henry County farmers expect to receive $40,000 for hogs as compared with $22,500 last year, according to W. F. Murphy, county agent. Reporting for Crenshaw County, W. T. Cheney, who is now county agent in Covington County, places the present value at $52,500 as compared with $37,500 last year. P. R. Pettis, Conecuh, gives the figures for this year and last at $24,000 and $18,000. C. L. Hollingsworth, county agent, thinks that Clarke County farmers will sell 10 cars this year as compared with three last. The money comparison is $7,000 and $4,200.

Alabama turkeys are going to market in carlots by cooperative sales again this season. The sales will be conducted by the Farm Bureau and the county agents, and the Thanksgiving price will be higher than that received last year.

HOME PRODUCTS ARE NOW BEING SOLD

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 8.—A state headquarters for products produced by farm women and girls of Alabama has been established at the department store of Loveman, Joseph and Loeb in Birmingham. It was done unler the auspices of Miss Isadora Williams and other representatives of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, and Dr. M. F. Jackson of the T. C. I. Company in order to make these products available to the Birmingham buyers who constitute the biggest consuming center of the state.

Products were gathered from 24 counties for the opening exhibit. It showed variety and the rare quality. The products were made by farm women and girls in their clubs under the direction of their home demonstration agents. In the list were clothes, belts, purses, cigarette cases, bedspreads of several kinds, handkerchiefs, rugs, canned goods of many kinds, and many other products to tempt discriminating buyers.

Miss Williams said that the establishment of state headquarters is another step in the direction of providing a satisfactory market for what women and girls produce. Splendid talent has been discovered and there is a desire to produce provided products can be sold at satisfactory prices.

In the progress of the curb markets, of which 18 are functioning in Alabama, it has been discovered that many artistic products are offered for sale on the smaller markets without finding a buyer. With a permanent display and sales service in Birmingham it is thought that many sales will result, and each sale will stimulate production.

T. J. HUBBARD LIKES HAMBURG

Editor Union-Banner:

With your kind permission I will give your readers a brief review of my recent visit to my daughter, Mrs. T. I. Ward at Hamburg, Alabama. I have been visiting Hamburg for several years and the more I visit there the better I like that locality. And could I recall some of the past years I would doubtless make Hamburg my home. The level land there is just charming. Everything looks lovely. No need for terracing like we have to do up here in the hill country. Mr. T. I. Ward gathered 140 bales of cotton this year. Ira is still hustling just like he used to do when in the mercantile business at Randolph. I found Mr. and Mrs. J. Clint Veazey located there. Mr. Veazey is now erecting a fine new residence for Mr. Ward, which when completed will be a beauty. I also found Mr. and Mrs. Veazey engaged in the same work as they followed when they lived up here at old Macedonia, that of leading the people musically. So it was a great pleasure to be with Mr. and Mrs. Veazey again.

I learned that just previous to my visit that my nephew, Rev. W. D. Hubbard of Birmingham had delivered a wonderful sermon to the pleasure of the people. All the older people here remember Will Hubbard. His father's old home is up here just south of Center Hill church. Will came up under the leadership of Rev. A. E. Burns of Jemison back in the Eighties and made a great preacher.

My old friend, Y. O. Freeman, accompanied me en route as far as Selma. There he stopped off to visit relatives. This visit will never be forgotten by me. Hamburg is ideal. Mr. Ward's business is ideal too with his new residence going up in close proximity to his store. So we cheerfully look forward hoping for more such visits in the future.—T. J. Hubbard.

(S. L. NORTON, Manager).

The largest and most successful money raising entertainment ever held by Thorsby Public School was given last Saturday night. The main feature was the third annual Fiddlers convention, but there were other attractions such as the most popular girl contest and the ugliest man.

The attendance was large and the audience enthusiastic. Fifteen prizes were awarded among the musicians, mostly contributed by Thorsby merchants. Fonzie Smith won 1st prize; J. C. Price 2nd and Kent Abbott 3rd. In the popular girl contest Miss Mary Nell Goodgame of Clanton won over Miss Ruth Martin of Thorsby. The prize was a supper cake of much artistic merit, donated by Miss Gladys Maddox. In the ugly man contest, Cout Williams was given the doubtful honor of winner. Some smaller parts, but quite interesting, especially in effective performance were put on by the boys and girls of the school, showing that these young coming citizens are in training to be heard from when they are older.

Prof. J. M. Massey of North Carolina, known as "The Blind Musician" was present and gave some appreciated numbers, but would not compete for a prize. Prof Massey will give a concert at the public school auditorium beginning at 7 P. M. on Friday of this week. Admission 15c and 25c to be divided fifty-fifty with the school.

Mrs. Ada Powers of Los Angeles, California, mother of L. E. Diefenderfer, was a visitor in his family from Thursday to Sunday afternoon.

H. Wilson, where he visited kinfolks until they returned Monday when he came as far as Birmingham with them.

A very interesting feature of the Conference was the presence of a man and wife who are spending their first absence from a missionary field in Africa where they have been located for the past 18 years. They gave many interesting accounts of their work in that far away land.

Next Friday night from 5 to 7 o'clock the Congregational Ladies Aid Society will serve a dinner at the church. The object being to raise money. There will be a charge of 25c per plate, and it is hoped that all friends of the church will attend and enjoy not only the edibles but a social hour which will follow the dinner.

Services at the Congregational church Sunday morning were conducted, in the absence of the pastor, by Misses Ruth Gerald and Odie Lee Arthur, who after the opening exercises gave an interesting account of what they saw and learned at the Christian Life Conference for young people, held annually at Blue Ridge, North Carolina. They received close and appreciative attention of an audience that filled the house.

Sunday evening after Christian Endeavor there was the usual monthly song service.

Mrs. Wilder and Miss Jean Collins spent Saturday in Birmingham.

Carlton Peoples, a student at the Thorsby Institute spent the week end in Birmingham with relatives.

Thorsby, Ala., Nov. 10.—Getting in at the Fiddlers Convention at the Thorsby Junior High School last Satusday night was not merely a matter of thirty-five cents, but just whether or not you could get a place to stand. Prof. W. T. Bean and the members of the P. T. A. were very much pleased to see the auditorium packed to capacity.

The "Ugly Man" Contest was won by Mr. Herbert Williams of Thorsby, but a close contestant was none other than one of Clanton's best, Rev. Reece Rogers. But Mr. William's supremacy in this race was evident it cost his friends only $6.50 to prove it.

The fight for the most beautiful girl present was a different matter. Misses Ruth Martin and Mary Nell Goodgame were nominated, and it seemed that neither side would accept defeat. Supporters for each girl sped over the room with unusual rapidity, collecting bits up into greenbacks, and bringing them foward, each minute mounting higher their score. When, finally, the time was limited and the fans grew tense, two pretty girls tingled with excitement, till—"The cake is awarded to Miss Mary Nell Goodgame." She won by only a few small votes over the half-way score.

Comedy songs and dances were given by students in the school, which was very good.

The entire musical program was excellent. Sixteen good musicians presented their best, not only for prizs, but to add to the happy spirit of the time. Mr. J. M. Massey, of Charlotte, N. C., a non-contestant, gave interpretations of country life on the violin. Mr. Massey is a blind entertainer, and unusual, too.

The income from the cake was $56.48. Receipts from tickets was good, but was not announced.

Prizes were awarded to all the fiddlers, as follows: First prize, $5.00 to Fonza Smith; second, $3.00 to J. C. Price; third, $2.00 to Kent Abbott. Gifts had been promised by almost every business man in Thorsby, which were awarded to the following fiddlers: Henry Cleckler, J. T. Abbott, Joe Terrell, Jim Courtney, Joe Langston, L. L. Courtney, A. J. Cole Elbert Langston, Luncy Matrin, Jim Collins, Grover Bice, Rube Williams and Herbert Williams.

Mr. John Allen of Birmingham spent Friday in Coopers.

Mr. Maxwell Smith, accompanied by his handsome little son, Allen, returned to his home in Clanton after a two weeks stay in South Carolina.

Bus Line Headquarters To be Established Here

NEW BUSSES WILL BE PUT ON BEGINNING FIRST OF YEAR MR. LANGLEY SAYS

Mr. A. B. Langley, of Birmingham, manager of the Birmingham-Montgomery Bus Line was in Clanton on Monday of this week. While here he disclosed some very interesting facts about the future plans of his business, chief of which is his intention to establish headquarters in Clanton beginning the first of the next year.

A suitable location for temporary headquarters will be secured which will be used and occupied as a terminal point and the big busses will be operated from Clanton to Birmingham and Montgomery and return. In this connection Mr. Langley will establish adequate garage repair facilities for keeping his equipment in first class condition at all times.

With the establishment of headquarters in Clanton, Mr. Langley stated that he will have ready for operaion a complete new fleet of new busses specially built and equipped for maintaining the best transportation service of the kind in Alabama. The new machines will be delivered to Mr. Langley's company in a short time, and will be ready to start operation on January the first.

"We take the utmost pride in the Birmingham-Montgomery line" said Mr. Langley, "and we are determined that nothing shall be left undone in keeping this service and equipment up to a standard that shall be recognized by the traveling public as the best bus service in Alabama. The Birmingham-Montgomery bus line is the most important of its kind in Alabama, connecting as it does the two main cities of the state, and we are proud that it is our privilege to serve the public in the operation of this service. We are going to keep our service on this line up to the highest standard in the state if we do not make a penny out of it above our expenses."

The Birmingham-Montgomery Transportation Co., has been granted a certificate of convenience and necessity by the Alabama Public Service Commission for the operation of this line, and its regulations and control will pass under the direction of the Public Service Commission on January the First. This will insure its operation in conformity with the rules and regulations of the Commission just as all common carriers in the state are operated and controlled.

The new busses which will be put on will meet the requirements of the Public Service Commission in every detail. To aperate as a common carrier under the Public Service Commission the busses will have to take care of both white and colored passengers. The construction of the new busses is being done to meet this requirement. They will have two separate and distinct compartments with separate entrances for white and colored passengers.

The place of the Birmingham-Montgomery bus line has already been firmly established in the confidence of the traveling public. Under the management of Mr. Langley the business has always been conducted upon a high plane which has won the confidence of the public. It has won and merited and we predict will maintain the utmost confidence of an appreciative traveling public. The future plans are for a bigger and better service.

Clanton is indeed proud to have the headquarters of this splendid organization established here. Everybody will acclaim Mr. Langley and his associates the most hearty welcome. Operating the busses from a terminal in Clanton will in itself alone facilitate the matter of rendering better service on the part of the operators. And their coming here will add much to the importance of Clanton in the vast current of life and activity that is pulsating daily between our great Magic City of Birmingham, the industrial wonder of the South, and the Capitol City of Montgomery, the civic and political center of our great State.

Welcome to Clanton Mr. Langley. You have made a wise choice in selecting the heart of Alabama as the home of the best bus line in Alabama. The people of Clanton are interested in your business. They want to see you prosper, and you will find them ready and willing to lend a helping hand in any way that a friendly people at home can be of service to a home business of great and growing and valuable public service.

WANT ROAD FROM Mt. MANNING UP RIVER TO MITCHELL DAM

A delegation of citizens from the Corinth community, including P. M. Jones, E. L. Jones, K. W. Underwood, and Alphus Jones, were in Clanton last Monday morning to go before the Commissioners Court Their object was to get the Court to consider building a road from the Mt. Manning Road up the river to Mitchell Dam.

In conversation with Mr. E. L. Jones, he pointed out that such a road would enable the mail carrier on Verbena Route 2 to serve about 25 more patrons. As it is, the carrier has to retrace himself from Mitchell Dam back to the home of Rev. E. A. Norris. With this new road built which would be only a couple of miles long, the mail carrier would make a look around by Corinth church, on down the Mt. Manning road and up the river to the Dam. He would then come out the road toward Verbena without retracing himself any.

Mr. Jones stated that it is now possible for an automobile to go up the river from the Mt. Manning road up through near the Falls on to the Negro Quarters and from there on into the main road. He says that it would not requre a great deal of work to put the connecting road in fair shape. The county, not long ago worked up the road to Mt. Manning so that it is like a highway.

It will be a great help to the people of the Corinth community if the commissioners can see fit to build this road for them.

CONVENTION OF BAPTISTS BEING HELD IN BIRMINGHAM

16,000 Additions to State Churches and Large Increase in Contributions are Reported

Birmingham, Ala., November 15.—With approximately 1,000 delegates in attendance, the 106th annual session of the Alabama Baptist convention opened at the Ruhama Baptist church Wednesday morning at 10:00 o'clock. Every county in the state was represented by pastors and laymen. Hundreds of Sunday school leaders were also attending.

Dr. J. H. Hobbs, pastor of the First Baptist church of Birmingham, president of the convention, presided. Election of new officers was a feature of the morning session. Dr. Hobbs insisted on the convention electing a new president this year. He has served only one year.

Secretary D. F. Green, of the state board, delivered a stirring address at the forenoon session. He declared that Baptists of Alabama have made rapid progress in education during the last few years. Howard, Judson, Newton and other institutions supported by the Baptists have had a remarkable growth, he said. Contribution during the year, Mr. Green said, showed a large increase over the previous year. There were nearly 16,000 additions to churches, he added.

Alabama Baptists have adopted a program calling for the raising of $528,000 during the coming year. "We can attain our goal easily if every association will do its part," said Mr. Green.

Ralph Grant Directing Music

Mr. Ralph Grant, who recently won the prize at Auburn radio station, and a member of the Howard College Glee Club, is music director for the Convention. This is a strong point of recognition for the excellent musical ability of Mr. Grant, and will be of much interest to his many friends in Chilton County.

Several preachers and other church workers from Chilton County were in attendance.

Several people from Clanton went to Montgomery Monday night to hear the address by Senator J. Thos. Helfin at the City Auditorium.

FIRE DESTROYS EIGHT STORES AT EVERGREEN, ALA.

$150,000 Loss from Sunday Flames In Conecuh County

Evergreen, Ala., Nov. 13.—Early Sunday evening eight of the principal business establishments of Evergreen were burned. The devasting blaze raged for nearly three hours Sunday night causing a loss and damage of approximately $150,000.

Starting from an undetermined source in the rear of the Mixon Mercantile company about 7:30 o'clock the flames gained headway rapidly spreading to adjoining buildings. Every available fire-fighting resource of the town was called into the battle with the blaze and calls for assistance were answered by neighboring towns.

Business houses destroyed by the fire were: Evergreen Motor company, C. R. Taliaferro warehouse, Mixon Mercantile company, Evergreen Paint shop, Pipkins meat market, Braxton Shoe shop. Buildings partly damaged were, Reynold's Wholesale company and the Evergreen hotel.

For an hour and a half after the start of the flames the Evergreen fire deparment, with what volunteers could be mustered, battled the flames unassisted. Later fire equipment and men from Greenville, Andalusia and Brewton arrived and lent valuable assistance in forcing the blaze under control.

FOUR MEN ARE KILLED IN GUNFIGHT IN OPP, ALABAMA

Two Policemen and Father and Son Shoot it Out in Fatal Affray in Square

Opp, Ala., November 11.—A pitched battle between police and two reputed bootleggers resulted in the death of four men here tonight about 6:45 o'clock. The shooting affray took place on the main street just opposite the depot on the corner occupied by the Whaley Drug Store.

The dead are: Ed Nix, 36, city policeman; Lee Clark, 45, city policeman; Cleve Dauphin, 40 reputed bootlegger, and O. C. Dauphin, 18, son of Cleve Dauphin, also reputed to be a bootlegger and law violator.

Miss Effie Davis, of Andalusia, supervisor of intermediate grades at the Florala School was struck by a bullet as she was crossing the street with her sister's baby in her arms. The bullet entered Miss Davis' leg but the injury is not considered serious.

Grady Paul, a youth of about 17, who was passing near the scene of the battle was also struck in the leg by a random bullet. He was taken to an Andalusia hospital where his injury was described as not serious tonight.

The trouble is said to have originated when young Dauphin drove down the street in his car yelling and creating a disturbance. The police called for him to halt and when the youth failed to do so, two shots were fired at him. The youth went for his father and the pair came back downtown with their pistols. They took their stand on the corner occupied by the Whaley Drug Store opposite the depot and when the police reached the scene the Dauphins began firing. About 25 shots were fired by the four men. The two Dauphins and officer Clark died on the spot. Officer Nix died about 15 minutes later.

Ed Nix is the youngest brother of Dr. H. M. Nix of Maplesville and is a first cousin of the wife of Sheriff Collins. He is survived by his wife and several children.

CHILTON COUNTY MINUTES READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

The Union-Banner has just completed the minutes of the 1927 session of the Chilton County Association. The minutes will be turned over to Mr. William Billingsley the last of this week. If anyone wants their minutes before Mr. Billingsley takes them away they may get them at the Banner Office.

Mr. Evans Edwards

This is our regular weekly feature story about some noted Chilton County man or woman who has gone out from his or her native home and made good in the world at trade, occupation, art, or profession.

Prominent in the list of Clanton people who have made good in other cities is Evans Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Edwards of Clanton.

Evans, as a child, showeded a keen interest in marhinery and electricity and his selection of a profession as electrical engineer did not come as a surprise to his family and close frinds.

Mr. Edwards was born one mile east of Clanton in 1902. He attended the Clanton Grammar School and in 1920 graduated from the Chilton County High School. The following year he entered Auburn, where, following his life's ambition he studied electrical engineering. During his four years at Auburn, Mr. Edward's record as a student was an enviable one. And on the campus as well as in the class room he was highly esteemed. In 1924 Mr. Edwards graduated from Auburn in electrical engineering with high honors.

In 1925 he served his apprenticeship with the Bell Telephone Company at Atlanta. In a few month's time the Company realizing his unusual ability assigned him to a position as electrical engineer at Jackson, Mississippi, which position he still holds. This responsible position takes Mr. Edwards all over the State of Mississippi where he makes estimates of costs of constructions.

December the 2nd, 1926 marked one of the most important epochs in Mr. Edward's career, when he married the charming and talented, Miss Irma Moore of Gulfport, Mississippi.

Chilton County takes exceptional pride in Mr. Edward's record and we feel that thru this son we have a part in the big enterprise of our nation.

Mr. Edwards Will be remembered as a gentleman of the highest type. He is always most polite and his reverence for the higher and nobler things of life is the keynote to his success. He is studious and energetic and needless to say he is rewarded fully for his efforts.

REYNOLDS WILL BE GOVERNED BY WISHES OF THE PEOPLE

Clanton, Ala., November 5, 1927.

Editor Union-Banner:

In your issue of November 3, 1927 there appeared an article of Mr. J. R. Rucker, relative to my candidacy for Probate Judge for the next term, and Mr. Rurker desires me to state whether or not I will be a candidate. Before making this statement, I must express my gratitude to Mr. Rucker for the commenditory remarks in his letter, for these always help a public official to render better service, and also for the sentiment of his people in that community and in other communities that I have heard from within the past few months, and I must express my appreciation to the different voters and leaders of the party over the county, who have come to me requesting that I enter the race again for Probate Judge.

In looking back over the history of Chilton County, watching its progress, I have done, at all times, what I thought was best for the general affairs of our County. I have done my best in assisting the commissioners in financing the affairs of the County in an economical yet progressive manner in order that no citizen or no part of Chilton County would be slighted or overlooked in enjoying and having advantages which the County has afforded, and in order that all its citizens might have a just share. In the past I have done what I thought best for my part, and have always been guided by the wishes of the majority, and I have been ready at the call to make any sacrifice for the party, and I hope it is firmly understood by my party that whether I am a candidate or whether elected or defeated, that I will always, as long as I hope any power within me, go down fighting for the people who have stood by me.

As I stated, it has always been my desire, and I have abided by the wishes of the majority, and if a majority of the Republicans of Chilton County are in favor of me making the race for another term, and that I can be of assistance and a help to Chilton County and the Republican party, it is my duty to abide by their wishes. If my party, after considering what service I have rendered in the past, and that I am in a position to render more and efficient service in the future, and I can benefit the general welfare of Chilton County and be of assistance in crystalizing a greater party in Chilton County and Alabama, then I am willing to serve and give the very best that I have within me. Mr. Editor, I would like also to express, through your paper, my deep gratitude to all my friends who have stood by me in the past, and assure them that should ever my services be needed by any of them, they will find me as willing to give in return the favors they have shown me.—Very sincerely yours, L. H. Reynolds.

Rev. Goss has a host of friends in Chilton County, all of whom will join with the Banner in extending congratulatons and best wishes.

DEMAND HEAVY FOR AUTOMOBILE TAGS ON LAST DAY

Courthouse Offices Jammed by Eleventh Hour Callers Monday

A large crowd packed the office of the tax assessor and the probate office at the courthouse Monday, spreading into the corridors and waiting in line to secure automobile license tags. With Monday the final day to secure the tags without a delinquent fee the crowds mounted in proportions through the early hours of the afternoon.

A heavy corps of clerks in both the tax office and the probate office worked at top speed and although many were attended to, the size of the throng did not dimnish.

For each one that secured a tag it appeared to those waiting as if several others arrived in line and indications were that it would be impossible to issue all of the licenses by closing time Monday.

NEW SALEM

There will be preaching at New Salem next Sunday, November 20. Rev J. H. Roberts is our pastor for another year and will preach on the Third Sunday, Saturday and Sunday. We urge everybody to come and cooperate with us. Let's make our Sunday School grow. Come one and all. We are always glad to have visitors. Don't forget the Third Sunday in each month.

Chilton High Lost To Dadeville Last Friday

LOSE FIRST GAME OF SEASON AFTER WINNING SIX STRAIGHTS

Chilton County High School's football team lost its first game of the season last Friday afternoon to the Tallapoosa High eleven at Dadeville, 31 to 0. The Chilton lads didn't look like the Chilton team of previous games, playing far below their usual form. In addition to this off-day, our boys were outweighed at every position on the team from 10 to 20 pounds. Dadeville did most of her ground gaining through passes, but much yardage was gained as the much heavier Dadeville line tore into the light Chilton front wall. An off day coupled with the effect of a 90-mile ride told in the play of the Orange and Blue.

Several Chilton boosters followed the team to Dadeville, and seemed only too well pleased with the way the locals held out against the heavy squad, considering everything.

Chilton plays the Marbury High eleven on the latter's field next Friday afternoon, and go to Greenville to tackle the highly touted Butler High eleven on Turkey Day. And, speaking of this "Turkey Day" game, folks that's going to be a stemwinder, no fooling. So if your football hankering don't run as high as the Alabama-Georgia game in Birmingham, or the Auburn-Georgia Tech scrap in Atlanta on that day, you are urged to go to Greenville and watch the fine 1927 Tiger machine in action for the last time.

The Chilton record now stands with six victories and one defeat—that's a record lots of high schools would be proud to boast.

STAPP HOLDS DISTRICT MEETS

Last Friday Mr. Stapp held meetings at Verbena and Maplesville. Saturday he held a meeting at Clanton and Monday he held meetings at Thorsby and Jemison.

At the above places Mr. Stapp discussed the need of organization in Chilton County. Following the discursion at each place, those present voted unanimously that a County-wide meeting be called at the Courthouse for Friday, November 18 at 10 A. M.

RENFROE MULLINS ERECTING FINE BUILDING ON 2ND AVE.

Last Monday morning Uncle Bill Mullins and his trusty negro, West, were seen scraping around on the corner of the block next to where Uncle Bill lives. Not much was thought of it until they began tearing down the fence and driving up stakes around over the lot. Upon investigation, it was learned that the lot, which is located on Second Ave., and Fourth Street, was being cleared for Renfroe Mullins' big fine new residence, the work on which is now in its beginning.

The building we learn is to be built of hollow tile and stucco English type, and is to be among the nicest in Clanton. Okel & Cooper of Montgomery are the architects and Mr. Watson of Miami, who is building the annex to the Baptist church contracted for the job.

Mr. Mullins says that he is going to put up a nice house and that the work will be pushed to completion as quickly as is consistent with good work.

COUNTY-WIDE MEETING OF FARMERS TO BE HELD NOV. 18

Mr. Stapp is calling the meeting for the purpose of discussing a very important agricultural question confronting the farmers and other business men of Chilton County. Mr. E. A. O'Neal, president of Alabama Farm Bureau Federation will be the principal speaker.

FIRE IN FROG LEVEL ON LAST SUNDAY NIGHT

A negro shack in the Frog Level District of West Clanton was destroyed by fire about eight o'clock Sunday night. When the alarm was sounded is caused a considerable interruption in the services at the Methodist church, where all denominations of the city were engaged in a union serrvice of welcome for the new pastor, Rev. L. B. Green.

TWO ARRESTED FOR HUNTING WITHOUT A PERMIT

Deputy Sheriff Loss Robinson reports the arrests of Ivy Matthews and Lassie Northcutt on Clear Creek up near Wessington last Friday, charged with hunting without a permit. The two men were brought before Justice of the Peace, J. L. Wilson, who assessed damages of $15.25 against each of them. They paid off and went on their way rejoicing.

Nurse (in next room) He wants—'

Mother—Well give him what he wants.

The baby howls louder.

Mother—Why didn't you give him what he wanted?

Nurse— I did. It was a bee.

So this baby is a girl? beamed the rector, as he walked round the baby show.

The proud father assented.

And this other one—is of the contrary sex?

His wife's eye was on him, but with no thought of the wrath to come, he replied blithely, Yes she's a girl too.

Teacher—Joseph, what are you going to give your little sister for a birthday present?

Joseph—I dunno; last year I gave her the chicken pox.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARM OUTLOOK FOR ALABAMA IMPROVES

Auburn, Ala., November 14.—With the advance of the season the situation for the farmers of Alabama has improved this year. Last Spring when farmers were planting they were discouraged. The price of cotton was low and they anticipated a price this fall lower than which has prevailed. But the size of the Alabama cotton crop has increased; and the government estimate made public on November 9 as of November 1 placed the crop at 1,180,000 bales, this being 110,000 bales more than the estimate for October 1.

In announcing this figure F. W. Gist, federal and state agricultural statistician, Auburn, pointed out that an increase of 110,000 bales is equivalent to increasing the value of the crop by $11,000,000 on the basis of 20 cents per pound. He said also that Alabama appears to be the third state in cotton production this year. Only Texas and Mississippi have exceeded Alabama. On a basis of 20 cents a pound the Alabama cotton crop this year is valued at $118,000,000 plus the value of the seed.

The fine showing made by Alabama is attributed to the use of better seed, more and better fertilizer, and improved methods in soil preparations and cultivation. These have been demonstrated throughout the state under the direction of the county demonstration agents who are guided by results of experiments conducted by the experiment station at Auburn.

As a result of the last three years farmers and agricultural leaders are more convinced as to the safety of making cotton in the presence of boll weevils, provided modern methods and the results of scientific experiments are practiced.

MILK BY THE CARLOAD

Shipment of milk by tank-cars instead of in ten gallon cans loaded into express or special cars has increased in the last five years. More than sixty tank-cars handle milk in Chicago. Each car includes two steel tanks of 3,000 gallon capacity, glass lined, cork insulated, and protected by a steel jackett. One tank car will transport more milk than two of the more common milk cars.

The easiest way to feed hens milk is to put the dry powder in their mash.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The last government estimate places the Alabama cotton crop at 1,180,000 bales compared with 1,070,000 on October 1. This increases the value of the Alabama crop $11,000,000 on a basis of 20 cents per pound.

From Sydney, Australia, a press dispatch says that 90,000,000,000 rabbits have been killed in Australia this year, "but agricultural ravages continue." The rabbit has been branded as the most undesirable immigrant that ever landed in Australia.

Capital and brains pay big dividends in farming.

Neglected machinery and lower incomes are farm companions.

Officers and members of the executive committee of the Alabama Press Association voted to go to Havanna and other points in Cuba for the 1928 convention. R. B. Vail president, Bay Minnette, and Jack M. Pratt secretary, Carrolton, are arranging for the trip. The tentative plan is to make the trip during April.

The Bureau of International Revenue, Washington, announced that the 117,000,000 persons in the United States had in 1926 a total income of almost $90,000,000,000 which was an increase of approximately $27,000,000,000 (more than 43 per cent) in the five years since 1921. It is said to be the highest standard of living ever attained in the history of the world.

Richard T. Ely, of Northwestern University, says that there never was a time when it took so small a portion of the population and such small percentage of our resources to get the food and raw materials that we need as at present. Man has progressed constantly in his struggle with nature. One English Author, Sir Daniel Hall, estimates that in the future only 15 percent of the population will be needed to produce food and raw material.

Sauerkraut juice is being fed to college athletes.

After all is said pro and con the fact remains that the farmer himself is responsible for his success or failure.

November is a good month for the planting of sweet pea seed.

Thanksgiving will find Alabama farmers truly thankful for what they have received this year.

It is just as reasonable for a motorist to make top speed with two cylinders of his car not functioning as it is for a farmer to make big profits on poor land.

Muskrat farming is becoming a more important industry in Maine. Bogs and flats in that state are being flooded to make muskrat farms, says an official report.

IN MEMORY

On the night of November 12 the angel of death visited the home of Mrs. Julie Glasscock at 9:20 o'clock and bore her gentle spirit back to the One Who gave it.

It is sad to part with her, but we know from her life and testimony that she is gone to live with Jesus, where there will be no more pain, tears, nor death. "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh. Blessed be His name."

She was a faithful mother, a true friend, and a devoted Christian. She had been a member of Union Grove Baptist Church for over 30 years.

She was born May 27, 1864, and leaves 2 sons and 1 daughter, and a number of grandchildren, 2 brothers, and 2 sisters to mourn her loss. But let us not weep, dear ones, for God knows best, and if we will do His will we can go to her some day.

Her remains were laid to rest in Union Grove cemetery. Funeral services were conducted by Bro. W. P. Lowery, in charge of Mell Martin.—Mrs. G. L. Glasscock.

RHOADS - ROBERTS

A marriage of cordial interest throughout the state was that of Miss Merrie Helene Rhoads, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Rhoads, and Mr. Raymond Roberts, which took place at the home of the bride in Sheffield last Friday morning at 8 o'clock.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Roberts motored to Clanton with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Roberts who attended the wedding.

The bride, a beautiful young lady of semi-blonde type, is the daughter of a prominent family of Sheffield. She is very talented and has a most delightful personality. She will add much to the social life of Clanton.

Mrs. Roberts graduated at Woman's College in Montgomery in the class of 1927. During the summer months she was athletic director at the girl scouts camp at Coleman. She taught the first part of the school year near Sheffield, where she was also athletic director.

Mr. Roberts, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Roberts, is a young man of sterling qualities. He went to school at the Chilton County High School, after which he went to Auburn. He is now associated with Clanton Real Estate & Insurance Company. He has a host of Clanton friends who wish much happiness for him and his lovely bride.

Circle 1.—

Mrs. Paul Ousley was hostess to the members of Circle 1, at her home Monday afternoon at three o'clock.

Autumn flowers in attractive arrangement formed the decorations for the occasion. The devotional was led by Mrs. Arthur Willis. An interesting program was given by Mrs. P. D. Party For Bride.—

One of the most brilliant social events of the week was the bridge party given by Mrs. Norman Roberts Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. N. S. Johnson honoring Mrs. Raymond Roberts, a recent bride. Baskets of roses, dahlias and chrysanthemums added charm to the spacious rooms. At the conclusion of the bridge games, the high score prize, a novelty vase was presented to Mrs. J. W. Hayes. The consolation prize, a novelty tape measure was awarded to Mrs. John VanDerveer. The guest prize, a sugar and and cream dish, was presented to the honoree. CITY WATER ON THE BLINK

The water supply of Clanton has been somewhat below par for the last week, owing to some kind of a mishap with the machinery at the pumping station. We understand that a new pump is being installed, and may expect better water conditions in the near future.

As a rule, Clanton has mighty good water and plenty of it. We feel sure the variations of the past week were unavoidable on the part of those who have the operation of the water system in charge.

RED CROSS FLOOD RELIEF IN SOUTH COSTS $17,000,000

Greatest Disaster of History but One of 111 Operations in Year of Calamity.

Tornadoes headed the list of disasters which struck the United States in the past year, the report of Red Cross relief operations for the year ending June 30, showing 29 great storms. Floods were second on the list, 24 being recorded for the same period.

This record does not include the St. Louis tornado which occurred in the current fiscal year, as did a number of other storms and disasters since, in which the Red Cross provided relief.

Included in the list of 111 disasters covered by the record of the past year's relief operations of the Red Cross, are earthquakes, explosions, mine disasters, a cloudburst, a hailstorm, fires, floods, hurricanes, a railroad wreck, a scarlet fever epidemic, typhoid epidemic, tornadoes, and a typhoon. The latter occurred in the Philippines, but is included in the operations at home. In all, the Red Cross extended its services in 77 major disasters in the United States and in 20 abroad, including a hurricane over Havana, Cuba, and the Isle of Pines, one in the Bahamas, and others through various West Indian regions, fire in Porto Rico, another in Haiti, earthquakes in Armenia, Japan and Albania, floods in Jugo Slavia and Mexico.

The organization conducted refugee relief operations in Syria, Bulgaria and China, the latter largely due to factional wars fought over various parts of China the past year.

The two outstanding disasters at home were the Florida hurricane and the Mississippi Valley flood. Rehabilitation operations of the latter disaster are still in progress under the Red Cross. A national appeal for funds was made in both disasters, resulting in contributions for relief amounting to more than $20,000,000.

The Mississippi flood is the outstanding disaster in the whole history of the Red Cross disaster relief service. In this one catastrophe the organization raised through subscriptions by the people of the country and foreign nations approximately $17,000,000 for relief use. Aided by this fund it fed, clothed, sheltered or otherwise assisted more than 600,000 human beings, fed and cared for approximately 200,000 head of livestock and established 149 refugee camps. The flood inundated approximately 20,000 square miles and affected 174 counties in eight states. Some 330,000 homeless persons were sheltered in Red Cross camps. When the emergency was at its height the Red Cross was serving more than a million meals a day.

So vast was the work imposed on the Red Cross and allied agencies conducting rehabilitation that this phase of the flood relief task is expected to extend well into the coming year. Up to September 15, 104,441 families in the flood zone had been given rehabilitation assistance by the Red Cross, and 1,700,000 acres of flooded crop land in seven States had been replanted with Red Cross aid. There had been expended or committed for expenditure in connection with this relief and rehabilitation work a total of $15,660,000.

The appeal for a nation-wide membership increased to 5,000,000 adult members, it was pointed out, is based on the realization that demands on Red Cross service such as occasioned by disaster relief are increasing each year. For that reason especial importance is lent to the Eleventh Annual Roll Call of the organization, to be held from Armistice Day, November 11, to Thanksgiving, November 24, during which this membership will be built up.

14 Disasters at One Time Call for Red Cross Work

The great size of a disaster does not necessarily mean that it has the stage to itself.

The American Red Cross relief forces were impressed with this fact during the Mississippi Valley flood in recent months. While the relief forces were struggling with this greatest of all disasters in United States history, from April to June they were obliged to furnish relief in 21 other emergencies, including 11 tornadoes. In one tornado approximately 17,000 persons were assisted.

At one period the Red Cross was conducting relief operations in 14 disasters simultaneously, scattered over a wide territory.

Citing the continuity of demands on the organization's resources, Chairman John Barton Payne of the Red Cross has announced the need of 5,000,000 adult members as a result of the Roll Call, Nov. 11 to 24.

The Tenth Anniversary of America's entry into the World War in 1917, is an appropriate time to join the American Red Cross and participate through membership in its peacetime services. Join during the Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 24.

Girl Shot Herself at Calera Monday Night

Rather than be exposed to the public by arrest on a charge of violating the prohibition law, and after a sensational race with Calera motorcyle officers Monday evening, Miss Louise Montebarro, age 24, of Berlin, Ala., sent a bullet crashing through her brain, according to Chief of Police, H. F. Blake, of Calera. The young lady died four hours later in the Fraternal Hospital at Birmingham, where she was carried by Martin's ambulance from Clanton. She never regained consciousness after the shooting.

Probate Judge L. B. Riddle, of Shelby County, acting in the absence of the coroner, visited the scene of the tragedy five miles north of Calera on the Birmingham Highway, and stated that in his opinion the young woman had committed suicide.

The following account of the fatal incident is taken from the Montgomery Advertiser of Tuesday morning:

Chief of Police Blake, who was in the girl's car when she fired the fatal shot, stated that she had just emerged from a barber shop in Calera when his attention was called to a Star coupe, driven by a girl, which was traveling at an illegal rate of speed.

Mounted on the same motorcycle with Officer W. D. Farmer, of Calera, he set out in pursuit of the car, which was headed toward Birmingham. The girl, Miss Montebarro, became aware of their pursuing her and sped on ahead, he stated.

Drove 55 Miles An Hour.

At times during the five-mile chase before they caught the car, she drove 55 miles an hour, he said. As the officers overtook her, he related, she swerved from one side of the road to the other seeking to prevent their coming ahead of her.

Five miles from Calera she threw a bottle from the car, which Officer Blake said he thought contained liquor. The bottle crashed on the pavement. A quarter of a mile beyond, she pulled to a stop.

Miss Montebarro, whom he described as a young woman of attractive appearance, treated him with courtesy when he left the motorcycle to accompany her is her car, back to Calera, he said.

In the car with her, he continued, he observed that Miss Montebarro was drinking heavily. At the spot where the bottle was thrown from the car they stopped while Officer Farmer brushed up the broken glass from the highway. The place smelled strongly of liquor, Officer Blake said.

"What charges are you going to make against me?" he said she asked while they sat there.

"I'm afraid, mam, I shall have to arrest you for violating the prohibition law, speeding and driving while intoxicated," he replied.

A few minutes later, while they were still parked, she asked, "May I lower the window." Chief Blake replied in the affirmative.

Shot Self in Head.

She lowered the window, and a few seconds later he heard a shot. At first he said, he thought one of the tires had blown out. The girl's body slumped. "I saw blood streaming from her right temple," he said.

Miss Montebarro was taken to Calera at Once. First aid was given her and an ambulance, in which she was taken to Birmingham, was summoned from Clanton.

Chief Blake said that the right side of the girl's forehead was powder burned and the lashes on her right eye singed. The bullet he said, emerged from her head above the left ear and struck a bow in the top of the coupe, which it dented, but did not penetrate. The gun, which is in his possession, is a .32 caliber Remington automatic. He has been unable to find the bullet, he said.

Miss Montebarro died shortly after her arrival at the Birmingham hospital.

Visited School Chum

Miss Eason stated last night that if Miss Montebarro was drinking, she did not notice it herself. She said that she had known Miss Montebarro for five years. She met her, she said, at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, where both studied.

During her acquaintance with her, Miss Eason said that she had found her to have a splendid character. She said that she had never known Miss Montebarro to drink or carry liquor. Miss Montebarro, she said was accustomed to carrying a gun with her on trips through the country.

Mirs Montebarro was employed in the office of the Singer Sewing Machine Company of Selma.

She was in an automobile wreck near Selma several weeks ago, it was said, but was not seriously injured. She is known there it was learned, as an athletic type of girl, who faced risks and danger cooly.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Mabel Montebarro, of Selma; her grandmother, Mrs. Tubbs, of Berlin, with whom she made her home; and an uncle, Alvin Tubbs of Berlin.

Her mother, Mrs. Mabel Montebarro was in Carrollton, Ga., at the time of the tragedy.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 13th day of December 1927, in each county in the State of Alabama, in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS whereof I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery on this the 4th day of October, 1927.

THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

Westerville, Ohio, November 14.—Although conditions in the United States are not perfect under prohibition, they are far superior to the best conditions in the old days under licensed saloons, according to reports being prepared by officials of the Anti-Saloon League of America for presentation to the 35th annual convention of the organization to be held in Washington D. C., on December 5, 6, and 7.

The Washington convention will elect a legislative superintendent to succeed the late Wayne B. Wheeler, and will lay plans for the election next year of a president and congress favorable to the Eighteenth Amendment.

Further governmental restrictions on the manufacture and distribution of medical whiskey will be one of the chief topics of discussion, as will stricter imigration measures for the deporations of aliens convicted of violation of the prohibition laws.

The convention is expected to go on record as opposing certain prospective Republican candidates for the presidency whose officials and personal records are opposed to prohibition. Only one prospective Republican candidate, Dr. Nichols Murray Butler, so far has been declared "unacceptable," although several prospective Democratic candidates have been placed in that class,, notably Gov. Al Smith of New York, Gov. Albert Ritchie of Maryland and Senator James Reed of Missouri.

Speakers at the convention will include Senator Borah, Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the Treasury, William G. McAdoo, Evangeline Booth, Prof. Orving Fisher of Yale, Orville Wright, Dayton airplane inventor, Harvey Ingham, Des Moines newspaper editor, Rev. Billy Sunday, Bishop Hughes of Chicago, and the Anti-Saloon officials.

Mrs. Arthur Watson and Miss Celestia Maddox returned home Sunday after a delightful visit to friends and relatives in Birmingham.

When Women Look for Perfect Health, They Think of Dr. Pierce

Fitzpatrick, Ala. — "I suffered eight months with backache, headache, swelling of feet and a cold, chilly feeling. I also had functional disturbances and a catarrhal condition. When I wrote Dr. Pierce I was suffering night and day. I was taking medicine but it did not seem to do me any good. After I received Dr. Pierce's kind letter I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' also using the 'Lotion Tablets' as directed, and I am able to say I am a well woman again." — Mary Bell Tellis, Route 2, Box 38. If she is mentally tired, she cannot help but convey her fatigue to those out in front and the result is a form of ennui on both sides of the footlights. I have found a sure cure for such fatigue, on the part of the player, is a good cigarette. For years I have smoked Lucky Strikes and the mental balm and real enjoyment I have derived from them have helped me marvelously. In addition they have protected my voice. I use no other brand."

One of the most patriotic demonstrations we know of is the glee expressed by certain free trade newspapers when some foreign country threatens to raise its tariff against the United States.

Remember the good old days before they discovered germs and you could go swimming in the river without worrying about stream pollution.

Next to crossing a busy street on Saturday evening without looking both ways is the most dangerous thing we know of except running for president of Mexico.

One statistician estimates that 204 tons of hair have been shorn from American women since the bobbing craze started. And still the prices of mattresses hasn't gone down any.

Mr. William Patterson has moved into his house on Second Avenue between Second and Third Streets. The house has formerly been occupied by Mr. W. M. Pierce.

Walter Teel is building a new front on his home on Second Avenue East. He will make a brick front of neat appearance.

One southerner now claims that Barbara Fritchie's flag story was a myth and that Barbara was actually a Confederate sympathizer. Next thing we expect to hear is that she was also in favor of the League of Nations, and that she thought the Revolutionary War was a mistake.

It is said that Italians eat more meat than they did before the war and that they are healthier. Is this another knock at the spinach and mixed carrot and pea diet?

Lots of fellows get credit for being hard-boiled when they are only dumb.

The League of Nations met and adjourned without doing anything. There is a tip for a lot of our state legislatures.

We don't know anything about it but we'd be willing to bet that Uncle Sam wouldn't be able to slip any American propaganda into the histories used in the British schools. You have to give John Bull credit for looking after his own.

WHAT ABOUT WEEVILS IN YOUR CORN?

Last summer corn was a good price in Clanton. Many farmers had corn to sell, but they could not get the market price because their corn was eaten up by weevils. At one time good No. 1 corn was marketable at $1.30 a bushel, and at the same time many farmers brought their weevil eaten corn here and sold it for 80 to 90 cents a bushel.

There will be as many weevils in corn next summer as there were last summer unless the farmers take measures to prevent them. Now is the time to look after that matter.

If you do not know how to keep weevils out of your corn, ask Mr. Stapp, county agent, about it. It means a difference of perhaps 50c a bushel in your corn next summer. This is just as important whether you intend to sell your corn or use it on your own farm. If good corn is worth 50c a bushel more on the market than weevil-eaten corn, it will be worth 50c a bushel more to you on your own farm to feed to your own stock.

WHY IT DOSEN' PAY

The glee that was manifested in certain quarters when an Indiana farm was offered to President Coolidge in an attempt at sarcasm on his refusal to support some of the radical farm relief measures has been short lived.

The farm was offered the President as a gift to be held until such time as the measures he opposed become law, the idea being that he should try to make it pay in the meantime. There was in that a tribute to the Coolidge prudence, ability and thrift, but the proffer carried the conviction that despite that advantage the farm would not pay for itself.

But, a writer for a Chicago journal has just investigated the farm in question and also the surronding farms, finding that the one offered the President as a "white elephant" has been allowed to run down thru tenant operation, that it is no different from farms in the immediate neighborhood upon which farmers are prospering and that if proper attention were given in the way of necessary repairs and fertilization the farm would be as profitable as the others.

Then, as one observer notes, is another reminder that good management is needed on a farm as well as in any other business. The lack of it really constitutes one of the nation's chief farm problems.—Clarksburg, W. Va., Telegraph.

EUROPE CAN GET RID OF OUR TARIFF

Europe can obivate the necessity for the American protective tariff without expensive propaganda and without the creation of any international ill will, at the same time benefitting her own people, according to the National Republic which says in its current issue:

"Europe can destroy the necessity of the American protective policy by raising the standard of wages and living for the worker. Upon such a basis of equality the American people would be ready to assent to a free trade or tariff for revenue policy. The loss due to displacement of American products at home could be made up by efficiency and skill in foreign markets whose absorptive power would be immensely increased through a higher wage scale and therefore greater purchasing ability. So long as cheapness based upon low wages is the European weapon of offense in foreign markets we must merely choose between down to that level of life, or protecting our own level.

The ill will which has grown up in Europe against the United States is due primarily to no sins of omission by our government and people. The balance of the ledger between the continents is heavily in favor of America. The European politican finds the exciting or prejudice against the United States, the blaming of all European evils and misfortunes upon the United States. a convenient weapon of demagogy which helps obscure the realities of his own failures. That ill will cannot be abated, since it is based upon favors and benefits conferred rather than upon injuries done. It must be frankly recognized as a factor in the economic situation. The policies of the United States will not be controlled from abroad as against the American people. The present emergency offers an opportunity for demonstrating this in so certain a way that the delusion will not spread. It may require an increase in tariff rates on all French imports, or a complete embargo to prove the case. This would be an unfortunate necessity, but nevertheless a necessity for which the American government and people cannot be by any reasonable person held responsible.

We are wondering if the present trend in women's styles keeps up, whether the dressmaker won't have to give way to the fellow who does fancy frescoing.

Hon. S. J. Bowie Urges Support of The Proposed School Bond Issue

The following article, which is remarks from the speech made by Hon. Sydney J. Bowie, before the Rotary Club of Birmingham, on November 2, 1927, in reply to the Hon. Hugh Mallory of Selma, on the proposed school bond Issue, is published by the Chilton County supporters of the Twenty Million Dollar Bond Issue, and gives some important facts and figures, especially in that the proposed school bond issue is for erection of school buildings thruout the state. Read the article, which follows carefully:

What is this question, and what does it amount to, that we are discussing? The estimated value of the tangible wealth in the United States in 1922 was something over $320,000,000,000, as made by the United States census bureau. For that year the estimated tangible wealth of the State of Alabama was $2,913,467,000. The estimated annual income for Alabama in the year 1921 was $763,989,000. Considering the estimates for the previous years, and assuming the same relative growth, the estimated total wealth of Alabama in 1927 is, in round figures $3,500,000,000' and assuming the same proportionate increase in income at the present time the estimated total income of the State of Alabama is about $900,000,000, or 25 per cent of the total values.

And we are asking authority for a bond issue of not more than $20,000,000 for the purpose of supplying a deficiency now existing in our public school system in the matter of buildings and seats for pupils and for equipment. $20,000,000 is one forty-fifth of the annual income of the State of Alabama for one year, and is one half of one per cent of the wealth of Alabama at this time. In comparison to our annual income the whole of the $20,000,000 could be paid out of an appropriation of about 1-2 of 1 per cent of our property values.

These figures are obtained from the United Census Bureau. So it is not such a large matter after all. Mr. Mallory estimates that this bond issue would cost the people of Alabama in principal and interest, and other charges, at least $3,500,000 a year for eternity; and as a matter of fact, at that rate we could pay back the principal of it in less than six years, and pay back the principal and interest in about seven or eight years. If, as he assumes, it would cost $3,500,000 a year, which it would not, under any circumstances, he is bound to include, and he mus have included in his estimate expenses for maintenance and operation of the schools which are to be paid for out of a separate fund already provided for under the existing law, and having no relation to the question of buildings. By no possibility could he have arrived at the figures of $3,500,000 on any other basis. He is thus duplicating his estimates in dealing with an entirely different subject than the one at hand. This bond issue is only for buildings, and not for maintenance. I could say that the interest is not even a proper item to be considered, because while we are retiring the issue and paying the interest, meanwhile, on the outstanding bonds, the people are getting the use of the buildings for necessary public purposes, and the values of the use of the buildings, which he does not refer to at all, greatly exceeds the amount of the interest. But, let us consider this interest on the true basis, and I first call attention to the fact that on a twenty-year basis, not one of perpetuity, of a million dollars a year, sinking fund, he is woefully wrong in assuming a million dollars a year interest meanwhile, for if we provide a million dollars a year sinking fund to retire the twenty million dollars, the debt will be paid in twenty years, and the last years' interest will be only on a million and not on twenty million. As a matter of fact, as he should have known, and does know, if he had carefully considered his statement, the amount of interest charged on the twenty year basis would decline fifty thousand dollars for each year until the interest upon one million dollars the last year would be only fifty thousand dollars, and the actual average interest which would be actually paid during the entire twenty years would amount to less than one-half of what he assumes, for the bonds would have been retired within the average period of ten years, and not of twenty years, by the payments of one million dollars a year.

But the law does not require that there shall be one million dollars paid on the sinking fund a year. The requirement is that the bonds shall be issued as needed only, and shall be paid back in such period of time and at such rate of annual payments as may be deemed best by the authorities handling the situation. Of course that would mean that they would use ordinary in-

KNOCKING THE KNOCKERS

In a widely syndicated article Robert Quillen writes, discussing the topic, "Conservatism:"

The truth is that one group of mankind consists of those who who have, and the other group consists of those who have not. Those who have are conservative. They desire no change, because they are sitting pretty. Any change might disturb their graft. They believe in government by the well born because they are in that class; money makes their families superior. They believe in centralized government because localized government tends to encourage democracy. Those who have not, desire change because they think any change would be for the better. They believe in government by the common people, and very little of that, because hard experience has taught them to hate authority and especially the authority assumed by the superior. They oppose centralized government because it tends to get out of hand and become tyrannical."

While the author of this paragraph describes others who have undertaken to define the difference between a conservative and a radical as "superficial" thinkers, he has himself produced a specimen of superficial and grossly inaccurate analysis.

We have no such hard and fast alignment between the haves and the have-nots as this writer describes. The circustances of Americans are in a constant process or readjustment. Such class felling as he describes, as growing out of wealth and hereditary social position, is a rarity. Nor does conservatism or radicalism in the individual depend upon extent of possessions. Most of the radical propaganda in this country today is financed by rich "pinks" and "reds." Mjllions of people having no great amount of property at stake are conservative in thought, knowing that the panaceas of radicals are fake remedies for social ailments.

The cry of the self-constituted champions of the have nots is not for less, but more government; not less, but more bureaucratic centralization.

Theodore Roosevelt said:

"The vital lines of cleavage among our people do not correspond and indeed run at right angles to the lines of cleavage which divide occupation from occupation, which divide wage earners from capitalists, farmers from bankers, men of small means from men of large means, men who live in towns from men who live in the country; for the vital line of cleavage is the line which divides the honest man who tries to do well by his neighbor from the dishonest man who does ill by his neighbor.

"It is a man's moral quality, his attitude toward the great questions which concern all humanity, his cleanliness of life, his power to do his duty toward himself and toward others which really count; and if we substitute for the standard of personal judgement which treats each man according to his merits another standard in accordance with which men of one class are favored and all men of another class discriminated against we shall do irreparable damage to the body politic.

"I believe our people are too sane, too self-respecting, too fit for self-government ever to adopt such an attude. This government is not and never will be government by a plutocracy. This government is not and never shall be government by a mob.

Bowie Urges Support of Proposed School Bond Issue

telligence in fixing the amount to be paid each year.

I hold in my hand an estimate made by the most competent of authorities, showing that in 1928-29, which would be the first year in which the matter would be in operation we would mature $500,000 of bonds, and not $1,000,000. We would pay interest upon the bonds outstanding at that time of $425,000 a year, making the total payments for the bonds maturing, and the interest, $925,000, and the estimated revenue of the one mill tax devoted to the purpose would be $1,115,000 in that year, or an excess of revenue over disbursements for that year of $190,000.

Now, as a matter of fact, this authority under-estimates the revenue for 1928-29, because he used the tax values for the last year of 1926 and not this year on which taxes are being presently paid. The sum is now $1,153,000. It would be more for 1928-29 as the increase is about $42,000,000 annually for the total state, or the estimated revenue for the year 1928-29 would be $1,200,000 and not $1,115,000, an the excess revenue collected in that year would be $275,000, and not $190,000.

So that this estimate is entirely conservative. The maturity as for 1929-30 be fixed at $400,000 because then we would pay interest on a larger sum. The interest accruing that year on the bonds then outstanding would be $828,750, the largest we will ever have and the total disbursements of $1,228,000, leaving outstanding at the end of that year, bonds to the amount of $19,100,000 The estimated revenue from the one mill tax, plus the excess for the previous year would leave, according to this estimate, $121,000. As a matter of fact, it would be nearer a quarter of a million, again showing the conservativeness of the statement.

And so it goes, for a period of twenty seven years, assuming no increase of tax values for that last seventeen years of that period an ultra-conservative assumption, the disbursements maturing being gradually extended as the maturities increase from $400,000 to $500,000; from $500,000 to $600,000; from $600,000 to $700,000; from $700,000 to $800,000; from $800,00 to $1,000,000; from $1,000,000 to $1,100,000, and from $1,100,000 to $1,200,000 in the last year and the total interest payment for the last year being $51,000, against the highest year which is $828,000. Thus, the bonds would all be paid, according to the statement, by the year 1954-55, and there would be a surplus in the treasury at that time from this source of $5,225,750; and if we used the surplus in the years in which it matured, and also if we corrected the estimated revenue to its true amount, we could retire all these bonds in less than twenty years, out of the one mill tax, and restore the proceeds of that tax to the general funds of the state. The total amount paid in interest would not be even twenty million dollars, but less than ten million, or less than one per cent of the total income of Alabama for one year.

That is a statement made up from the census bureau of the United States, and is absolutely reliable, so that these figures should not frighten so much.

Now I am not defending, and I am not called upon to defend, the revenue bill passed by the present legislature. I did not write the bill, I did not in all respects approve the bill, and the educational interests of the state did not write the bill, and had nothing more to do with it than you did. Their fight was made in the legislature after that bill had passed and become the law. And their bill was passed unanimous vote of our state senate, including the senator from this county, who was endorsed and elected by the conservative interests of this county; and it was passed in the house of representatives by the vote of every member of that body with one exception, so that out of the total number of state legislators of the house and senate, only one vote was cast against this measure. You may not think that is conclusive, but I think it is a matter worthy at least of some attention, because it is known that a large portion of that legislature, both in the house and the senate, was not under the control or influence of the governor of the state, but were conservative at heart, and in principle, and strongly opposed the revenue bill, or at least many features of it.

Now, if we have got any fight to make on the governor of the state because of the revenue bill, he is a man, like the rest of us, and we ought to fight him, and not our neighbor's children. They at least, are innocent. If we are going to do anything, let us be men enough to fight the man who procured the passage of the revenue bill, and not men who procured the passage of the educational bill, that is now up for your consideration.

Now, as to more taxes, Mr. Mallory, and his treasurer of his campaign committee, Mr. Melvin, in the early stages of this campaign flooded the state with circulars claiming there would be an annual surplus of between four and five million dollars from the current revenue bill, which would be available for building purposes for schools, and thus, in a period of five years at most, we could build all the necessary buildings on the pay-as-you-go plan, and without the payment of a single dollar of interest.

I hold in my hand a statement from the Selma Times-Journal, of Sept. 22, 1927, which was reprinted by them in thousands of copies, and sent to the people all over the state, and you, no doubt, with the rest of us, received it, and you may have cast it aside, or you may have kept the statement, I don't know which. This statement says:

"It is predicted by experts that the large increase in taxation that was imposed upon the people by the recent legislature through the revenue bill will result in a surplus over and above appropriations of around five million dollars. If this be true, all of the school houses and everything contemplated by this twenty million dollar bond issue could be accomplished in an orderly fashion within a period of five years without any bond issue, and with a saving of a million dollars a year in interest. Surely if this is a fact, it would seem the part of folly to fasten this bond issue upon the people of Alabama."

This same statement was substantially made by Mr. Mallory in your presence last Wednesday. The facts as referred to in the Times-Journal are true to this extent—some of the most conservative and prudent members of the house and senate, while the revenue bill was pending did claim that there would be a surplus of four or five million dollars a year, instead of about an even break, and urged the defeat or at least the drastic amendment of the revenue bill upon that assumption. Now, they were making merely an estimate. They were no doubt honest. They certainly were well meaning men and not opposed to the interests of the taxpayers of the state. They were taxpayers themselves, and were protecting their own interests, as well as yours in putting forth their contentions. Now, I have never known just exactly on what they based this estimate, because I never saw the details, but this much is certain, the administration in estmating the revenues to be received from the tobacco tax upon which the members of the house and senate alike agreed placed it at one million dollars a year, whereas, Mr. John D. McNeel, president of the Alabama State Tax Commission, in a statement made only a few days ago, based upon the result of the first figures received, as the result of this tax, increased the estimate of the receipts from that source to two million dollars, or double what had been previously estimated.

Now, it does not follow at all that the other estimates of the administration leaders as to other items of the revenue bill, would be doubled when we come to the actual results, but it is probable that the receipts from other items will be somewhat more than were estimated by the administration leaders at the time the revenue bill was pending, and we might with reason believe that the surplus would be considerably more than one million dollars.

Now, this would not be sufficient to build the buildings which we need, or build them now when we need them, but it would dispel any idea from any source that we are going to have a deficit that will have to be met or made up by an increase of taxes, or increase of valuations upon property. If we have a surplus of receipts over disbursements of either one million, or two million, or four million, or five million, we haven't got a deficit. That is certain. We cannot have a surplus and a deficit at the same instant of time, and whether we take Mr. Mallory's estimate or the administration estimate, or the opposing leaders of the state house of representatives and the senate, there is every indication of a substantial surplus, and no indication whatever of a deficit.

So that if we issue these bonds and pay for these buildings out of bonds, it will not mean the increase of a single dollar of taxes, or a single dollar of increased valuations, but will mean in that event, that we will have available a surplus from which we can accomplish a reduction of taxation at the next legislature, which we will elect two and a half years from now, unless in the meantime there should be an adjourned session of the present legislature, from which we could expect if there is a demonstrated surplus, immediate relief. But if we have to pay this whole sum, in the next four or five years in cash, as Mr. Mallory proposes, instead of gradually over a period of twenty or twenty-five years as we propose, we will be confronted by a deficit which can only be met by an increase of taxes. So that Mr. Mallory is proposing a plan by which the taxes must be increased, while we are proposing a method taking a longer time to cover these expenses and distributing it over a greater number of years, under which we will be able to do what we want to do, and that is, reduce the present taxes of this state.

Now, this is not all. Four million one hundred thousand greatly needed are going to the colleges and normal schools from the general fund whether this bond issue is voted or not. If the bond issue is voted this amount is cancelled, and reverts to the general fund and should there be a deficit, which there will not be, will be at once available to take care of any such deficits in the general fund. Moreover, one and a half mills now will produce double what two and a half mills did a few years ago owing to increased valuations

Now, being a tax payer myself, and conservatively inclined in all my thinking, the reduction of taxation is something I greatly desire, but although it is true as I believe beyond any possible doubt that by distributing the amortization of this issue over a period of twenty or twenty-five years, that we will be able presently to reduce the taxes instead of increasing them, there is still another source of added revenue to which we can justly look for a still further reduction of our taxes. There is nothing better established in the history of America, and I might also add, in the history of the world, than this; that education pays its own expense, and leaves a balance above it in the increased efficiency and power of the men educated. It is a matter of vital importance to this county, as well as the state, and it can be proved by absolute demonstration that such has been the history of the rest of this nation.

Now, speaking from the standpoint of the natural resources of the state, we live in one of the richest states of the Union. Neither the census bureau of the United States nor any other competent source has ever or can ever estimate the value of the ore and coal in the ground, or the waters with which our state abounds. We know this fact, however, that the holdings of the United Steel Company in Mesaba ore range have been estimated at one dollar per ton in the ground, and in Alabama they have been estimated at ten cents per ton in the ground. Now, I think it is true that the ores in the Mesaba range are more valuable than here, because of the greater metallic content therein, but I assert without fear of successful contradiction and I confidently believe that it is by no means ten times as much. It will take about two and one half tons of ore in Alabama to make a ton of pig iron, whereas in the Mesaba range, probably two tons of our ore will make a ton of pig iron, but this by no means justifies us in accepting the view that the ore in Minnesota in the ground is worth ten times what it is worth in the ground here, and particularly when it is remembered that the Mesaba ores have to be transported one thousand miles, in order to reach their destination in Pittsburg, whereas, the Alabama ores reach their destination, by means of a downhill pull in less than five miles In fact, it is said that while it costs something in the way of power to carry empties from the furnaces back to the mines, the loaded cars can go from the mines to the mouth of the furnaces practically without cost, by the law of gravity.

We have in this state more miles of navigable streams than any state of the American Union, and the man does not live who can, or has, with any degree of accuracy, estimated the value of the power that flows from our rivers in this state. We only know this, that we are in the very infancy—in the morning of our development, along this line, and we have untouched resources in our rivers alone that in the not distant future will stagger the mind of man. A few years ago the Alabama Power Company was a small and struggling company which had to be aided by special exemptions from taxation, which was all right at that time, and a policy in which I sincerely believed, and advocated, but that necessity no longer exists, as we all know, and the mind cannot compass, let alone truly estimate, the value of the wealth which this one company owns in the undeveloped water powers which they control in this state.

We, therefore, have a rich state, and yet, though it contains about the average of population in the United States, it has less than one per cent of the estimated wealth of the United States. And why is this? Our state is not poor. It is our people who are poor, and the reason our people are poor can be defined in one word, and that word is "ignorance", and the reason why they are ignorant can also be stated in one word, "neglect." If we educated merely our negro population—and not for a moment would I, or anyone else propose that—the value of our farm lands in what we know as the Black Belt, and in other counties of the state where negroes live in considerable numbers, would increase as if by magic. If we adequately provided facilities for our more than 800,000 school children of this state, sixty per cent of whom are white, the increase of our own power of educated men over the uneducated men will almost pass belief.

Let me give you some figures which cannot be gainsaid, because they are official, and they represent past experience and not theory at all. The five states of the Union which have paid the most for educations in proportion to their population are California, Wyoming, S. Dakota, Montana and North Dakota, and not, as we have been taught to belive the rich and populous states of the East. In 1925, which furnishes us our last figures, California expended per capita of population, $25.30 for school purposes; Wyoming expended $24.49 per capita; S. Dakota, expended $23.92 per capita; Montana expended $23.55 per capita and North Dakota expended $23.19 per capita.

Now, of these states, all of them, except California, are much smaller than Alabama, and four of them to-wit, Wyoming, South Dakota, Montana and North Dakota were admitted into the Union within the last thirty or thirty-five years, starting from scratch, not much more than three decades ago, while we have been a member of the Union for more than a century. The savings banks deposits per capita in California are $363; in Wyoming, $111; in South Dakota, $154 and in Montana, $78, and in North Dakota, $129. Contrast this with the five lowest states in expenditure for education per capita fo population, to-wit, South Carolina, the highest, $5.54 per capita; Alabama, $5.34 per capita; Mississippi $5.24 per capita; Arkansas $4.91 per capita, and Georgia, $4.55 per capita. And savings in the banks, in South Carolina, the highest, 53 per capita; Mississippi, the next highest $41 per capita; Alabama, next or third from the bottom, $35 per capita; Georgia, $32 per capita, and Arkansas, $29, per capita. Alabama though an average state in population, and though one of the richest in natural resources, is one of the very poorest in savings banks, and in banking resources, in the total value per capita of its wealth, and in every other test which goes to make a great state. What is the difference? I can answer—ignorance. Why, neglect.

Let us take another comparison. The states of Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas are typical agricultural states. They have no mineral wealth to speak of. Both Kansas and Nebraska were in the school geographies of my day included as a part of the Great American Desert, and indeed, they are so included at this time, as to a great portion of their territory. The population of these states is less than Alabama. The total population of Nebraska is less than the white population alone of Alabama, and the total population of Kansas is but little more than the white population of Alabama. Although these are strictly rural populations, depending mainly upon agriculture, as a basis for wealth, in 1922, the estimated wealth of Iowa—with no large cities—was $10,494,918,000; in Kansas, whose total population is about the same as our white population, it was $6,234,560,000; and in Nebraska, whose largest city except Omaha is smaller than Montgomery and whose total population is less than our white population, it was $5,302,454,000, against Alabama's total wealth of $2,913,467,000. In other words, Nebraska, with a population of less than our white population, having been admitted into the Union some forty years later, with no large cities, and depending almost entirely upon agricultural resources, had nearly double our estimated wealth, and Kansas which is not greatly different from Nebraska, had more than double our wealth, and Iowa, without any large cities, and without much manufacturing resources, or water power, had over three and a half times our wealth. What made the difference? It was education—and that alone. Their citizenship was intelligent, and their earnings from the soil created this enormous difference. These states show that the white man, when educated, will work on the farm. Take the case of Colorado, with less than half our population, admitted into the Union in 1876, and starting at scratch, and it has over $200,000,000 more of wealth, and expended for school purposes in 1922, without including anything but their elementary and secondary schools, and omiting altogether their colleges and higher institutions, seven million dollars more than we did.

When we consider the income of these states we find that Alabama's income in 1921 was $763,989,000; Iowa's estimated income was $1,431,000,000; the income of Kansas was $1,133,000,000 and the income of Nebraska was $834,902,000, and the income of Colorado, was virtually the same as that of Aabama.

We can carry the illustration into every state in the Union, if time permitted, but this is true, that in every state, without exception, the states with the largest income have been those which spend the largest sum per capita and in the aggregate, for educational purposes So that I am fully warranted in saying that while it will never be necessary to call upon more than the one mill tax proposed in this constitutional amendment to pay off and completely retire these bonds in twenty years or less, I am entirely warranted in saying that the increase in earning power of the boys and girls living on the farms of Alabama, if we give them adequate facilities will, without resort to any other source of revenue, pay off these bonds, and create a surplus themselves before the last of the bonds are due. Education pays. It pays for itself in dollars and cents. So that I could count nothing in reality for the repayment of these bonds with interest on them, except the increased earning power of our own people.

Another source of revenue without increasing either rates or valuations, I will now state:

Herewith I present the tax values of the State from the first year of Governor Comer's administration in 1907 to the present time, covering a period of exactly twenty years.

TAX VALUES—1907 to 1927

1907....	$ 450,288,000	1917....	$ 670,167,000
1908....	467,784,000	1918....	699,732,000
1909....	484,356,000	1919....	730,071,000
1910....	508,568,000	1920....	912,628,000
1911....	541,764,000	1921....	952,602,000
1912....	566,807,000	1922....	943,516,000
1913....	580,588,000	1923....	985,731,000
1914....	615,380,000	1924....	1,020,308,000
1915....	626,158,000	1925....	1,069,413,000
1916....	664,220,000	1926....	1,111,087,000
		1927....	1,153,435,000

From this will be seen the growth in tax values of the State from that time. The actual amount in 1907 was $450,288,000. In 1927 it was $1,153,435,000, or a gain of $705,147,000. This is a gain of 156 per cent in 20 years, or about 8 per cent per year. How does this compare in growth with the statistics of wealth prepared by the United States Census Bureau? Now the census estimates are made from the best available data, from a perfectly non-partisan source, and is the best we can get. The Census Bureau estimate of the true wealth of Alabama in 1907 was $1,358,750,000 and in 1927, $3,495,500,000 or a gain in that period of 157 per cent, practically the same percentage as the tax value gain, though slightly more. The ratio of tax value to real value was about 35 per cent during all this period. Allowing for exemptions from taxation in Alabama, such as bank deposits and solvent credits, the true relation of tax values to real values was about 40 per cent and not 60 per cent, as required. The average yearly gain has been about $35,000,000, and for the last five years has been about $40,000,000. Now, Governor Brandon was a conservative governor. He was elected on a platform of tax reduction. He did not reduce taxes nor did he seek unduly to increase them. The gain from 1922 to 1926 was $41,893,000 per year, and the gain in the first year under the Graves administration was $42,348,000, or virtually the same thing, showing no undue tendency to increase. We thus have an annual increase of thirty-five or forty million dollars, which with all reason we may expect in the future, without adding anything at all to our tax rate, or tax valuations. Indeed, as already stated, our tax valuations are only about forty per cent of our real valuations as disclosed by the Census Bureau, and such it has been for twenty years, establishing the essential conservatism of our tax authorities during all administrations. Now, I not only do not want any increase of property valuations above sixty per cent, but I am well content for it to remain forty per cent where it is now, and when we consider the normal annaual increase, it will never be necessary I believe, to increase the rates or the valuations above the present forty per cent level.

But why do we need this amount now? Why not wait five years as suggested? The answer is we have no certain assurance that there will be a four million dollar surplus available for this purpose for the next five years, and secondly, the need is now. To illustrate, the problem of rural education is principally the problem of the first six or seven years in the elementary grades Each year one sixth of the children of those grades would become too old and pass out of the picture. The same thing would happen in each year thereafter, and in five years, almost an entire generation of children would have gone from all possible help from this quarter. Have a whole generation of children, from six to twelve years, no rights? Shall that part of them who are denied opportunity this time no rights? Have they not waited long enough? Has not the neglect of fifty years which has been visited upon their fathers and grandfathers been sufficient without shuting them too out of hope and opportunity?

Do we need this bond issue? That, really, is the important question. I refuse to think that the question of some increase in taxation is conclusive. If the need is there, that ought to end the argument, without bringing in other questions. Well, do we need it? In 1926, which is the last date we have, our school population was 871,701, a little more than one in three of our total population. Roughly speaking, but using the best approximation I can, there were fifteen thousand class rooms in the state, housing an average of approximately thirty-nine pupils per class room. In these class rooms—and I am referring now to all the state, including this county, and city—there were about five thousand modern class rooms, fit to house and equip less than two hundred thousand of our more than eight hundred thousand school children. There were another five thousand that we could endure; that is to say, they are less than they should be, but we can get along with them some way for a while longer. There were two thousand class rooms utterly unfit for any purpose—unfit because they are old and worn out, and because they were never fit when they were built, and have deteriorated with the years and many of them now are hardly fit habitations for our animal population, let alone the boys and girls, the children of our own fathers and mothers.

The estimate cost of of a class room, fit to teach and to house a child in Alabama, and by that I mean the estimated cost of class rooms located in other than the county of Jefferson, throughout the state, is around four to five thousand dollars, built on the most conservative principles. The amount the state would have to limit this cost to on the basis of using $13,200,000 in the other counties of the state, not speaking of Jefferson, to take care of the children in the five thousand rooms totally unfit, we would only be able to expend $2,680 per school room for that purpose, or much less than needed for that purpose now, counting no other considerations, but there are other considerations that count. Mr. Mallory as one of the items in his three and a half million dollar alleged annual expense, which would have to be paid by this state forever, included in addition the maintenance items which are provided for from a different source, and in a different way. Also the statement that there would be more children that would come to those schools if we supplied the facilities for them. That if true is a maintenance charge which cannot be properly considered in deciding this issue, but it is true. He virtually says that there are in Alabama many children not going to any school for any time in the state. I ask you aren't those children entitled to the same consideration as those who are going? I cannot only admit but I do avow that there is a material problem here which upon our consciences we must decide.

The total school population last year was 871,701; 107,507 were in Jefferson county, or about one eighth of the whole. The total enrollment in Alabama exclusive of Jefferson county was 505,736. Inclusive of Jefferson county it was 590,405. Thus, there were in the whole state, inclusive of Jefferson county, 281,296 children not in any school. Now, not all of them may have passed the usual school age, and a few of them may have gone to private school, but when all allowance is made for these considerations, not less than 200,000 of the potential school population of this state predominantly white is unable is unable to go to school because there is not a seat or class room fit or unfit to receive them. Our Constitution guarantees every person the eqal protection of the laws. Those are the noblest words, and the most important in the constitution. Freely translated they mean that every person in the United States shall have equal rights before the law, and also equal opportunity before the law. The school enrollment is not the true figure. The average of the school attendance is the true figure. Our average school attendance in this state inclusive of Jefferson is 416,521, and exclusive of Jefferson, or in the other sixty-five counties, is 349,354. * * * * * *.

Criticism has been made of the fact that each county is given $200,000. That is because the irreducible minimum in every county of the state requires at least $200,000 to bring it up to the present needs. And $200,000 per county is not all that is needed throughout the state. Far from it. The enabling act to provide for the expenditures of the twenty million dolars provides among other things, that it shall be the duty of the state board of education before assigning a dollar to any county of the state to require first a comprehensive survey in every county of the state to show the exact needs of each county in this matter. It is further provided that in those counties which show a need in excess of $200,000 to provide for the present school population, it shall be the duty of the state board to require the local boards in the several counties to secure "additional funds by making appropriations from the county or district school taxes, or by the sale of county or district school warrants or by the sale of county or city bonds approved by the majority of the votes in an election called for this purpose, as now authorized by law, or from donation from the county board of revenue, or body of like jurisdiction, or from city boards of education or city councils or commissions, or, from private donations, subscriptions, and gifts, or from any other source, from which may be secured funds for the erection of buildings or additions to buildings."

These additional funds required from the local counties of the state to make up the deficit that will still exist after the $200,000 is expended is required of every county in the state, in order that the present needs of the state will be properly met everywhere, either by the $200,000 furnished by the state, or from local sources.

Now, Mr. Mallory says this defeats the constitutional provision, allowing each county $200,000. It will not. The act of the legislature is subordinate to the constitution and must be read in connection with it. The sum total of the power of the state board of education is to make its best efforts to get from the local sources enough additional money to meet present needs; instead of the law being criticized in this particular, it should be most highly recommended. This alone not only prevents further demands from the local sources, to aid in building local school houses, but is a measure of simple justice to the larger and more wealthy counties of the state. Now, most of the counties in this state are static in population; that is to say, the increase in population in a majority of them is less than one per cent per year, and in some counties there is no increase at all. If, therefore, they get caught up, they will stay caught up for many years to come, until the new prosperity, that will come to them as a benediction from this provision, will enable them out of their own funds to provide for their own future needs. About one half of the growth of this state per annum is in Jefferson county, and the other half in the other sixty-six counties. We never can provide for all our needs for more than a few years at a time, because our growth is so great, and sufficient provisions for one year will be insufficient for another, and certainly covering a five year period. We know that this is so from our own experience in this city. We also know it is so from our own experience throughout the county. But the other counties of the state which are fairly static in their populations can provide for their future needs for many years by taking care of their present needs at this time So the law is wisely and adequately safeguarded, and we placed the administration of these matters in the hands of a body of men composing the state board of education, than whom we have no better men in the state. It is foolish and absurd to declare that they are politicians. They are simply confronted with a great need and are trying to meet it as best they can.

The objection has been made that we already have the largest bond issue in the United States. If this is so why is our credit so good? But it is not true, as an analysis will show. We have eight million dollars of bonds in this state as an inheritance or legacy from reconstruction times. We may not have gotten adequate returns from the sale of those bonds. But this debt which we have recognized and agreed to pay, and it is still outstanding. That debt was scaled at the time from nearly thirty millions to about nine millions. Perhaps a million dollars have been paid meanwhile. It ought to be paid and will be paid before many years elapse, from our increased revenues. The other bonds are, first, such of them as are outstanding and unpaid from the first twenty-five million dollar issue for good roads. The principal and interest on these bonds was provided for, and guaranteed by a tag tax on automobiles The automobiles are the greatest users of roads and it seems equitable that they should pay most of that cost. In this case, they are required to pay it all. The tag tax is more than sufficient to pay the interest, and an adequate sinking fund to retire these bonds in the course of the next fifteen or twenty years without burdening the general fund of our state by a single dollar. It will only be a short time now before these bonds will all be paid and retired without costing the people a cent, except those who ride in automobiles, and the fund we now use for that purpose carried back into the treasury. Now, the people who ride in automobiles are not complaining, and have no right to complain, because better roads mean less expense of operation per mile for their cars, and greatly facilitates in the use thereof. There is not an automobile owner but who is benefited far more than the cost every year. Nor is there an automobile owner in this state who is making any complaint. Meanwhile, all the people of the State of Alabama whether they are automobile owners, or not, are enjoying the great benefit of better roads in this state. The investment of twenty-five million dollars originally should be under any proper system of accounting passed to a capital item, and not to an expense item because the value of the roads is permanent and will as the years go by, add to the prosperity and the revenues of our state.

And the same thing is true of the issue of twenty-five million dollars, not sold, but authorized by the present legislature. This money is not yet expended, although a few of those bonds may have been sold, the law being the bonds shall be sold as needed. When those bonds are all sold and the additional road mileage of the state is put in use the state will have a capital asset of far greater value than the bonds. And the interest will be paid for out of the gasoline tax, by the automobile users, just as the interest is cared for on the other bond issue by the automobile tag tax. Thus, this fifty million dollars of bonds has not affected our credit in the slightest degree in the markets of the world, and nevertheless are a great and continuing asset far exceeding their cost to the people of the state.

We will gain a profit from the road bond issues. We will gain a profit from the port bond issue. And there will be never the day when the treasury of the state will be called upon for the expenditure of one cent, although we have freely pledged as provided in our constitution, our faith and credit thereto.

We have the greatest opportunity we ever had to do a great work for this state; something that has been needed for more than fifty years; and something which has caused shame and reproach upon our people, because we have neglected the most important thing in our lives. Men, what is our greatest factor of wealth in this state? It is not our mines of coal and iron. It is not the magnificent water courses running on their way to the sea. It is not our soil, producing much that humanity needs. But our greatest asset is our untaught and untrained sons and daughters, who teem upon our mountainsides, and till our fertile valleys. There is the need, and you may be sure they will repay us when their day comes. **********

And in conclusion, I will say, men, you need the neglected children of our state. You can't do without them. The Federal Government has erected a barrier at our gates which virtually prohibits further immigration. ******

There are $6,600,000 in this bond issue devoted to our highest institutions of learning, to-wit, to our state colleges, and to our state normal schools. At least one-sixth of the pupils attending those schools in the aggregate come from our county, and one-third of the graduates come to our county. Thus, we get back some $2,200,000 in the better training and preparation of our own future citizens. * * ** **

No single group of a hundred men will be able to decide this question. But it will be decided, in the last analysis by the 300,000 men and women who possess the ballot in this state, and who live, not among the homes of the rich, and great, but in the plains below.

Your vote is sought, and earnestly sought, not because of your number, but because of your influence, which extends far beyond these walls. You are sons of power, and I am all the more ready to appeal to you, because I know you are heartily and sincerely in favor of this cause of education I represent. There has never been a bond issue or tax issue on this subject that you have not supported. There can't be any question of your willingness to go to the limit, so far as your judgment and conscience will approve, to advance this cause. If I have failed to convince you, it is not your fault, but mine.  * I have a just cause, and if I fail to present it in such a way as to insure your conviction, blame me, but visit it not upon the boys and girls of Alabama. If you have doubts, let them be resolved in favor of your neighbors children, as well as your own.

FERTILIZER RESEARCH WORK TO BE COORDINATED

Plans to determine fertilizer needs of different soils for different crops that will be the basis of fertilizer recommendations for the Southeastern states are to be outlined by a group of experiment station agronomists in Atlanta, December 2 and 3.

An attempt is being made by this committee representing Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama Mississippi, Florida and Tennessee, to unify plans for fertilizer research work to eliminate lack of uniformity in recommendations, insofar as possible.

The committee will not only attempt to revise existing recommendations but will in some instances revise plans for work now under way.

Two meetings have already been held, according to C. B. Williams, Agronomist North Carolina State College, chairman. Definite and satisfactory plans were agreed upon for studying the ratio of organic to inorganic ammonia for cotton. In the past, independent plans have been followed on this project, and as a result different experiment stations have made different recommendations, resulting in much confusion.

And now a movement is under way to erect a monument to Jesse James. Ah, well, fifty years from now they'll be proposing a memorial to the ticket speculator.—Detroit News.

FOUR SPEED TRANSMISSION FOR CHEVROLET TRUCKS

In order to enlarge the field of service of the trucks manufactured by the Chevrolet Motor Company, Sidney Corbett, manager of the Commercial Car Division, today announced that a four speed transmission is now available for all Chevrolet one-ton types.

This new transmission, Mr. Corbett said, will provide 107 percent greater application of engine power than the regularly equipped three speed transmission, and is particularly adapted to such work as pulling out of ploughed fields, sand pits, and similiar heavy duty service. Provision is also made in it, Mr. Corbett said, for a power take-off so that the power from the engine may be applied to various devices such as hydraulic hoist, pressure units for sprayers, pumps, etc.

"Gear reductions in the three higher speeds of the new transmission," he said "are approximately the same as in the standard three-speed transmission, the extra fourth speed providing a reduction 107 percent greater than in the standard transmission. The new type operates and shifts the same as the standard, except for an auxiliary attachment to the shift lever which throws the fourth speed into gear.

"The new product was developed by Chevrolet engineers and perfected on General Motors proving grounds. It is available through the Chevrolet dealer organization at a cost of $65 installed."

News From the State Capitol by M. Tucker

Shall the good people in the rural sections and the small towns continue to construct school buildings by private donations or subscriptions? Why is it that school patrons in cities and many incorporated towns are never called upon to subscribe to the construction of public school buildings, while there is hardly a building put up in the rural districts that the patrons of the schools are not called upon and expected to donate from five hundred to two thousand dollars each toward the construction of the building.

In the construction of a small four-room consolidated school building in Tuscaloosa county recently several farmers who owned very modest homes and had large families to support, subscribed five hundred dollars each toward the erection of this modest little four-room frame building. Practically every man in the community donated from five to five hundred dollars to this building.

In another rural community in Chilton County, where plans were matured to erect a consolidated school at a cost of about $15,000, two of the teachers subscribed $500 each. They were getting very modest salaries and stated that they did not have the momney but thought by getting endorsers on their notes they could borrow the money at the local bank, with the understanding that they would pay it back at the rate of one hundred dollars per year. They were required to pay 8 per cent interest. Before the loan is paid in full it will cost them more than $600 each. In the same community one good farmer subscribed $1000. He stated publicly that he did not have the money but had a small farm of forty acres that he could sell for $1250. One thousand dollars of the sale of this farm would go into the construction of the school building. He further stated that the farm would be sold under the condition that the man who bought it would put $250 in the new school building. So he said the sale price of the entire farm would go toward a better school. Where can one find more loyalty toward education? It should be understood here that these good people had already voted upon themselves the limit of taxes, and it was not half sufficient to put up the building, so their only hope of getting a good school was in private subscriptions.

Again, in a rural community in north Alabama, one family subscribed and paid $5,500 toward the erection of a rural school building. The widow in the family gave $3,000; her son-in-law gave $1,500 and the daughter gave $1,000. These were not wealthy people at all, but good citizens interested in the cause of education, and almost forced to make these donations in order to have a scrool. These examples could be repeated over and over throughout the state.

If these good people had lived in a city they would have not been called on for one dollar. Yet living in the country where property is assessed low and no industries from which to draw revenue through taxes, they are forced to subscribe heavily toward better buildings.

The Educational Building Amendment will provide means whereby each county in the state can improve its schools without calling upon the individual citizens to "go down in their jeans" for the money for such improvements.

(a) That the municipality of the City of Gadsden, through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is, by any other provision of the constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one percentum per annum in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the govering body of said municipality and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors voting upon such proposition at an election called by the govering body of said municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half percentum in any one year on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation.

(S. L. NORTON, Manager).

Mr. Fred Augustus Krahman died Sunday, November 13thh, aged 89 years, 7 months and 10 days, after an illness of four months. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer, of Thorsby, with whom he has made his home for several years past. He also left a son, Fred Krahman, and a grand daughter at Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio and two grand children, Helen and Milton in the Defenderfer home in Thorsby.

Mr. Krahman was born in Germany in 1838, and came to America in 1871, when 33 years of age. He came to Thorsby in 1905 where he has lived quietly and industriously pursuing his business as a market gardener, for which he received thorough training in the Fatherland.

Mr. Krahman was altogether a lovable man and had the esteem of all who knew him. He was patient, kindly and always helpful to any one interested in getting a living out of the soil. He lived an exemplary Christian life and died full of faith and hope of the life beyond. A beautiful funeral service was conducted by Revs. Each and Butler Monday afternoon at the Diefenderfer home. Burial was in Thorsby cemetery.

On Wednesday of last week another old resident of Thorsby and vicinity was brought here for burial, Mr. George Rollinson, whose first wife was a sister of Jonathan Bice. Mr. Rollinson was born near Deatsville in Autauga County where he grew to manhood. He was for several years a resident of Thorsby, and had many relatives in this vicinity. The funeral was conducted by Rev. E. W. Butler at New Salem church. Mr. Rollinson was for several years a member of Thorsby Congregational church but had not been affiliated with it since 1919. For the past fifteen years he had been employed as a guard at the Aldrich Mines near Montevallo. At the time of his death he was 83 years old.

Weddings are of quite as much interest as funerals, and Thorsby people are much interested in the wedding of Aikens Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Collins, of Thorsby and Miss Mary Douglas Goodgame, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Goodgame, at the home of the bride's parents at Panama, Florida, Friday, November 19th.

Misses Jeanie and Hilda Collins, sisters of the groom, and Leonard Hayes and family are among the Thorsby folks who will be guests at the wedding. Mr. Collins has just built an attractive and comfortable cottage on Jones Street where he and his bride will make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lucas are entertaining Mrs. Lucas's mother, Mrs. E. E. Miller, and Mrs. Lucas's son, Elliot Miller, of Michigan and Ronald Lucas of Auburn, who came home to meet his kinfolks.

Prof. C. M. Williams was home from Camp Hugh, Alabama as a week end visitor with his family.

Miss Helen C. Jenkins arrived at her home in Thorsby after spending several days in Atlanta and other places between Thorsby and Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Leary entertained as week end guests, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Montebaro and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Montebaro of Birmingham, Woodlawn Highlands. Mr. Montebaro was a prominent theatre owner and manager. He can recall when O'Brien's Opera House was sole mecca for Birmingham's 400.

The Ladies Guild Bazaar will be held Saturday following Thanksgiving November 26, in Mrs. Bice's Cafe. Sale of Christmas articles will begin at 1 p. m. sharp. Refreshments will be served cafeteria style during the afternoon.

David Washington Thorsby, with his daughter and son are visitors in Thorsby from Flint, Michigan. Although Mr. Lucas never knew him in his old Michigan home, Mr. Thorsby brings him information about many of his foormer friends and neighbors.

Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Each had as dinner guests last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Goddard, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Primm and Mr. and Mrs. James Niswander and children.

Mrs. C. S. Howard and Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer went to Lock 18 Tuesday to visit Mr. and Mrs Ernie Hanson.

Miss Stella M. Jordan, Congregational Education Society Field Worker, will speak at the morning service at the Congregational church next Sunday morning, November 20th. In the evening at 7:15 Rev. Each will give another of a series of Stereopticon Lectures. The subject this time will be, "Angola, the Country of the King," illustrating missionary work in Africa..

There will be English service in the Lutheran church Sunday, November 30th.

The Lutheran Ladies Aid will meet with Mrs. J. M. Bosworth on Thursday, November 17th.

Mr. Arnold Soberg of Birmingham was a visitor here Sunday and Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Soberg. Mrs. Walter Morgan and little daughter, Margie, of Fairfield are also visitors at the Soberg home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Each entertained the teachers of Thorsby Institute Monday night from 6:30 to 8:30. They spent a large part of the evening in playing games. Delicious refreshments were servd. It happening to be Mrs. Each's birthday they also helped her to celebrate that.

THE HIGH WAGE THEORY

During he past few month the steel industry has not equaled its high mark of a year ago, although there are abundant signs now that the next change will be for the better. In discussing the situation recently the president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Mr. Eugene Grace had the following to say:

" We can't cut our expenses much farther except by one method and none of us like to think about that. If we have to save invested capitl by reducing wages it will signify that we are really in a serious business cycle. Business is being carried on largely by deferred credits or installment buying. Therefore, if we have to reduce the purchasing power of the working man, it will have serious consequences."

The words of Mr. Grace are significant to the new attitude of American business leaders, an attitude which has greatly bettered the relations between capital and labor in America and made possible the unprecedented prosperity which we have enjoyed in the industrial world during the past few years.

It has now come to be generally recognized in America that higher wages mean greater buying power by the people in general, consequently, more business for industry and an added prosperity. This is in direct contrast to the European theory where the manufactures follow the plan of reducing wages to the lowest point possible in order to undersell the other fellow.

That the American plan works is evidenced by the results of the past few years. We have had high wages, a greater buying power, and greater prosperity. And the increased output has actually tended to decrease rather than increase costs to the consumer.

The high wage theory was first advanced in the United States by the protectionists. And it has spread and proved itself until protection is no longer a partisan issue. The employer and the worker alike now realize the importance of protection to their industry and the importance of high wages to our national welfare. And the agriculturist, fruit growers and livestock men, threatened by a flood of cheap importations from the other couutries are beginning to get on the protective tariff bandwagon in increasing numbers, and regardless of their politics. That is one reason why free trade will not be the paramount issue in the 1928 campaign.

HOW IT WORKS

Former Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington, now United States ambassador to Peru, was in the national capital the other day to call on president Coolidge. During his conference with the newspapermen of the capital, Ambassador Poindexter took occasion to tell the representatives of the press about the immense amount of anti-American propaganda which is being disseminated in South America at this time. According to the Associated Press, the diplomat declared that an immense amount of propaganda of a political, social and radical nature is developing in some countries of South America against the United States, and the feeling is held in some quarters that the United States wishes to impose her "imperialistic will" in the Southern portion of the hemisphere.

The ambassador is quoted as saying that these "subtle influences" emante from Russia, Great Britain and other European countries and he felt they were designed to undermine the confidence of South American republics in the United States. According to the Associated Press, Mr. Poindexter added that the propaganda takes the form of critizing American "shylock" ways, the attitude of this country toward Phillippine independence and its policy in Cuba. The propaganda he added was directed primarily against the commercial footholds which the United States has obtained and is also of a political and racial appeal.

Americans who have carefully studied the South American situation will readily agree with Mr. Poindexter. American travelers returning from South America generally remark of the subtle European propaganda there against the United States. The terms "shylock," "imperialistic will" and so on, are familiar to all American readers of current affairs. They are frequently used by the press of Europe and by European clackers in the United States. The propagganda is undoubtedly directed against our commerical interests in Latin-America because it is commerce which interests Europe obove all other things. It is generally known that Peru is one country in South America which maintains a friendly feeling to Uncle Sam, and this may be due in considerable part to the efficient service of our ambassador. Brazil is another country not unfriendly to the United States, but there are other republics in the Southern hemisphere which have undoubtedly fallen under the influence of this propaganda.

Russia and England may be the leaders in this effort but it is probable that the other countries of Europe lend a willing hand whenever possible. It is a European rather than a national effort. It is significant trat England and Russia are both mentioned in this respect. The two countries are as far apart as the poles in tradition and in policy. Yet it seems that European nations no matter how they may disagree among themselves can unite on a principle which has for its object getting the better of your Uncle Samuel. That is one reason we did well inremaining out of the League of Nations. The antidote for this latest propaganda effort is of course a closer understanding between the United States and the nations to the south of us.

POOR ORIGINAL

Pimples, Boils, Skin Eruptions

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin; makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

MEMORY OF MRS J. J. McDOWELL

On Tuesday, November the First the cold icy Angel of death visited the home of J. J. McDowell and took from him his loving wife. She had been in ill health for several weeks. She was a great suffer but bore her afflictions with patience, awaiting the Master's call. She leaves a husband, five children, thirty-four grandchildren and twenty great grandchildren to mourn her loss. Surely there was never a sorrow like parting with your mother. I would say this is a sorrow unto death. The sadness of that one beautiful day my soul shall never forget to look on the face so bright and cheerful, now pale and cold. Oh, that we gould enjoy the one happy privilege to be gathered around her and even once more her smiles to gain. Her spirit took its flight into the reams of endless glory where the Angels bid her welcome at the pearly gates while upon her dear face was stamped the look of earnestness that proved he faith was strong and sure. None but those who have had the sore trial can fully realize this lonely feeling of parting with mother. May we yield more to the will of the Lord while we dare not say He would deal cruelly for it is He that doeth all things well. Yet can we ever cease to miss her. The room was once so cheerful, now to us the voice is hushed. The vacant chair, the window by which she so often sat, the Holy book, it was there; she did search its fair pages which was her soul's delight. While to us our mother's prayers have ceased. She beckoned to her children the way of correction that we might share the blessed rest with her in that eternal city. Oh, may we all be ready to meet mother when Jesus calls us home. —Mrs. Ed Giles.

FREQUENT LIGHT RAINS BETTER THAN DELUGE

Montgomery, Ala., November 14—It is the evenness of distribution of rainfall, both as to place and time, rather than its total amount that reduces the forest fire hazard, according to a statement issued by the Alabama Commission of Forestry. While the recent phenomenal downpour that occurred in the Montgomery territory was welcomed by local timber growers as a providential intervention, for the state at large it would have been many fold more effective if the same amount of precipitation had occurred several days in falling and had been spread throughout all of the counties.

In various regions it is not unusual to have a very heavy annual rainfall and at the same time suffer more severe forest fire damage than other sections that have a much less total precipitation. This is because the otrer factors that enter the forest fire hazard are by no means equal. In some localities during changeable weather the dryness of the air may increase from zero to seventy-five per cent or more in less than twenty-four hours. Under such cicumstances a rain affords but temporary relief from drought conditions. In fact, in establishing the fire hazard index for any locality protection engineers and foresters attach much more importance to the frequency of precipitation than to its amount.

A CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the neighbors and friends for their kindness and help during the sickness and death of my dear wife, Mary E. McDowell. We also wish to thank the friends for the beautiful flowers, and Dr. R. J. Eiland and Martin, undertaker.—J. J. McDowell and family.

(b) After such tax shall have been voted for and is being levied and collected by said Jackson School District Number 72 and the districts which have been consolidated therewith, no other district may consolidate with said Jackson District until such district so consolidating with said Jackson District shall have also voted a tax of like amount and with like expiration date, as shall have been voted by the districts which are then levying and collecting the tax provided for by paragraph (a) hereof. (c) The election for such tax shall be proposed, called, held and the vote canvassed and the results declared and the tax collected in the same manner as may now or hereafter be provided by law for the special school district taxes authorized by section 2 of the third amendment to this Constitution. (d) The tax hereby authorized shall be in addition to any and all other taxes now authorized by law, and its collection shall in no manner affect the right of the districts in which it shall be levied to share in the school monies heretofore available for such districts, nor shall any reduction in such shares be made by reason of the tax hereby authorized.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 13th day of December 1927, in each county in the State of Alabama, in a newspaper published in said County.

S. J. Bowie Explains The School Bond Issue

Says Bond Issue Will Not Create Any Additional Taxes Upon the People of Alabama.

I do not concede the question as to more taxes to be the determining issue. I consider the need for the Bond Issue to be the point on which the result should be determined. In an article following this one I shall explain this matter but I shall confine this article solely to the question of taxation.

It can be easily demonstrated and most everybody admits that the one mill tax diverted from the general fund will be altogether sufficient in twenty-two or twenty-three years to pay off the entire sum of twenty million dollars and interest thereon, the interest meanwhile amounting on an average to only a little more, if any, than four hundred thousand dollars per year. Wild assertions that it will cost three and a half or four million dollars per year are simply false, that is all, as the slightest reflection will show. A high price for the bonds would not be over four and a quarter per cent. So if all the bonds were issued at one time, which they will not be, the highest interest at any time could not exceed eight hundred thousand dollars per annum and this will decline every year until the debt is paid in full, leaving the last year's interest only about forty thousand dollars.

In the mean time the state would be having the use and enjoyment of the buildings, and the children would have needed relief and at the end of this period the state would have a lot of permanent buildings which would be useful for another twenty or thirty years without owing a dollar on this account.

The only question that remains is what substitute have we in the general fund to replace the one mill tax? Now that tax will only yield at this time about one hundred thousand dollars per annum and this is diverted from the general fund to the special bond fund. You cannot make the figure any more than all of this amount. When you get it all you have to stop. This year's one mill tax will remain in the general fund. About ninety per cent of it will have been collected by the date of the election and the remainder of it will go into the general fund this year. So for this quadrennium the diversion will apply for only three years, or a total of three million three hundred thousand dollars during the remainder of this administration. Indeed the first bonds cannot be sold before the fall of 1928 or winter of 1929. No interest will be due until 1929 and no principal until 1930.

How shall this sum be made up?

First. The new taxes already levied found in the revenue bill. I believe this will be sufficient, but it is not necessary to get anything from this source.

Second. Sections 13 and 14 of the general school act appropriate four million one hundred thousand dollars to our three colleges and our normal schools for building purposes with the further provision that these amounts "Shall not be available but shall be void in the event a constitutional amendment is submitted and ratified before October 1, 1928, making available funds for buildings and improvements for the above named schools and institutions." This pending amendment does and thus if adopted we will withdraw from the general fund during this administration three million three hundred thousand dollars and will restore to the general fund during this administration four million one hundred thousand dollars, or eight hundred thousand dollars more than the sum diverted.

Third. What shall be done after this administration ends? The confederate pensioner during the last fiscal year received the proceeds of the one mill tax, about a million dollars, and a further sum of about two million six hundred thousand dollars from the general fund. Now no one begrudges this sum. We might wish it were perpetual but nature is inexorable and death must come to all.

The youngest Confederate veteran alive is about eighty-one; the average age is about eighty-three. The life expectancy is three years so that during the next four years almost all will in the course of nature be called to their eternal resting place. It is as certain as anything can be that the one mill tax will be sufficient within four years to pay all the pensions due to those then living, thus restoring to the treasury from this source two and a half times the sum needed to exonerate the general fund from the loss of one mill diverted to the school bond fund.

Fourth. The convicts are now being worked at a profit instead of a loss and this sum will also go to the general fund.

Fifth. In addition to all of this for the last twenty years, during which we have gone thru three major panics, 1907 to 1909, 1914 to 1915 and 1921, our average gain of wealth has been about eight per cent per year while our population gain has been about one and one-half per cent. This inevitable gain attested by all experience will in a few years make the yield of one and a half mills still in the general fund produce more than two and a half mills now in the general fund produces.

So that neither now nor in the future is there any reasonable ground to anticipate any new taxes either in rate or valuation on account of this bond issue.

Look out for my article on the need.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE SYSTEM MUST HAVE MORE MONEY PAID IN

The Peoples Telephone Company has run out of funds and will not be able to operate unless some more money is paid into the operating fund. A meeting of the Board of directors was held at the courthouse Monday morning to settle upon the manner to go about raising the necessary money.

It was found out that an amount of $280.00 will be required to be raised to carry the business along until January the first. The plan that was adopted was to ask everyone who has paid centrol fee this year to pay in one dollar more to make up the money necessary to carry on till January the first.

Each line director was asked to ascertain in some way how much his line would pay on this plan and report the matter to Mr. G. O. Foshee on next Satuurday, bringing the money with the report.

The importance of this matter is urged upon the phone holders, as the raising of this money will determine whether the central service shall be continued the balance of this year or stopped right where it is. If the service goes on the money must come on next Saturday.

STANDARD BALES FOR COTTON

Washing ton, Nov. 21.—Two bills aimed to assist the cotton industry will be reintroduced next session by Senator Ransdell (D.), of Louisiana. In a statement given out at his office here Monday, Senator Ransdell said he would ask a meahure establishing a standard bale of cotton to weigh 500 pounds, exclusive of bagging and ties, for interstate and foreign commerce shipment. He believes under such a system the controversy in the cotton trade resulting from the challenge of the accuracy of government ehtimates would not have occurred. The Louisiana senator thinks the varying weights of bales perhaps led to the confusion.

In his second bill, Senator Rahsdell would increase the duty on importations of jute in order to encourage the manufacture of bagging in this country from low grade cotton.

CHILTON DEFEATS MARBURY 20 - 0

Chilton High won another football game last Friday afternoon, this time from Marbury High. This is the Tigers' seventh win of the season, and the second time they have trounced the Marbury squad this year. The final score was 20 to 0.

The Marbury team that faced the Tigers in the first game of the season didn't look at all like the fighting Marbury eleven that took the field last Friday. Where they could not gain over the Chilton line in the first game, several nice gains through the Chilton line were made last Friday; and the Marbury line held the fast backs of the Orange and Blue for no gain, and on a few occasions therew them for losses. All in all, Marbury had a fighting bunch on the field last Friday, and showed wonderful improvement over their early season showing.

Chilton, sure of the outcome before going to Marbury, came very near being just a little bit too confident, and soon found that they had a pretty worthy foe to contend with. But, in the third quarter, the old roller got to working, and scores were piled up pretty fast.

The Chilton lads go to Greenville today for their Thanksgiving Day game with the fast Butler County High School aggregation. Win or lose, tonight will find the Orange and Blue showing a good record for the year.

It is expected that the kick-off will be about 2:00 or 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon on the athletic field of the Butler County High School at Greenville. Montgomery is just about half way to Greenville, so you can figure about when you want to leave Clanton to arrive in Greenville by 2:00 o'clock. A good Thanksgiving Day trip and a good football game all rolled into one. Let's go!

A Man Is Poor---

If he is without friends.

If he has low ideals.

If he has a guilty conscience.

If he has lost his self-respect.

If his morals are questionable.

If he has lost his grip upon himself.

If he is selfish, uncharitable, or cruel.

If he has forfeited his health for wealth.

If his mind and soul have been neglected.

If he has traded away his character for money.

If he has a disagreeable disposition that makes enemies or repels his friends.

If making money has crowded out the cultivation of his spiritual life.

If worldliness has caused him to lose fellowship with Christ.

If love of money has hardened him until the love of Christ and His gospel doesn't stir him to do his best for missions.

If all his investments and possessions are laid up on earth and he has no treasures in heaven.

GO ON DEER HUNT IN CONECUH COUNTY—2 ARE BAGGED

We have sat around the fire and listened to our grand father tell how they used to hunt deer and other big game in this country. But we just have to pass it up as by-gones and forget about it. But Fridady the Union-Banner heard of a real recent deer hunt that actually meant deer.

Dr. P. C. Wilson of Montevallo related the story to us. On Monday morning of last week, Dr. Wilson, together with W. A. Clark, J. L. Clark, Hubbie Clark, A. J. Clark, W. B. Monk, E. E. Watters, F. A. Watters, A. Lee Wilson, and Joe Watters left Montevallo for Castleberry in Conecuh County. They hunted in the vicinity of Castleberry until Wednesday, when they returned home with two deer.

The lucky ones of the party who really did the killing were A. J. Clark and Lee Wilson. But the rest had their share of the sport.

Judge L. H. Reynolds went to Lock 18 Monday to attend the dedication exercises of Jordan Dam and Power plant, the new development of the Alabama Power ompany on the Coosa River.

Charles Henry Culpepper

This is our regular weekly feature story about some noted Chilton County man or woman who has gone out from his or her native home and made good in the world at trade, occupation, art, or profession.

We frequently hear it said that one gets out of life what one puts into it, and also that success comes as the result of untiring effort.

A concrete illustration of these facts is exemplified in Mr. Charles Henry Culpepper of Danville, Va.

By virtue of the fact that he was willing to exercise his native ability we today find him at the head of one of the South's greatest hosiery manufacturing concerns.

Follow with us Mr. Culpepper's career, step by step and you will agree that success often has a small beginning.

Mr. Culpepper, the brother of Mr. Frank Culpepper of this city, was born on the edge of Clanton, April 7, 1880.

He received his education at country schools, the principal one being Littlejohn School.

At the age of 18 years Mr. Culpepper went to Sylacauga and got a position pressing hose in Motthews' hosiery factory. It was there that, at the age of 23, he married Miss Gertie Calloway, a splendid young woman of that city.

From Sylacauga he went to Athens and later to Tuscaloosa, where he followed the same trade.

A few years later Mr. Culpepper went to Danville, Va., where he soon became assistant to the Superintendent of the D. K. cotton hosiery mills. Five years after he was made superintendent of the mill.

Dr. Napoleon Johnson, who a few months ago visited Danville and had the pleasure of calling on Mr. Culpepper in his beautiful office, said that, in discussing the former's wonderful success, he finally asked the question: "How did you do it?" and Mr. Culpepper answered, "By hard work!"

Mr. Culpepper will be remembered as a gentleman of pleasing personality whose chief characteristic was determination. His many friends join The Union-Banner in congratulating him upon his success.

This wonderful example should fire every boy and girl in Chilton with the ambition to "Give to life the best they have," and "the best will come back to them."

CLAIM OF SUICIDE BY SELMA GIRL IS DOUBTED BY SOME INVESTIGATING OFFICIALS

The death of Miss Louise Montebaro, who died from a bullet wound sustained last Monday night, November 14th, near Calera, Ala., is being investigated by high State officials. The speed cop and chief of police of Calera chased the girl up the road five miles toward Birmingham, and arrested her, charging her with speeding and violating the prohibition law. These officers say that the girl shot herself after they told her what she would be charged with, saying that the girl had been drinking heavily.

But state officials were not satisfied with the suicide plea of the Calera officials, and a thorough investigation into the case is being conducted by Attorney General Charlie C. McCall. Several of the highest law enforcement officers have been placed on the case and they say nothing will be left unturned in the way of investigating the case. Tests of the viscera of the dead girl's stomach are being made by specialists at Auburn to determine whether or not the girl had been drinking, as the Calera officers stated. The probe will be a long drawn out one, which may require several days to complete.

EDUCATION COSTS MOST IN THE LARGER CITIES

Current expenses per pupil in average daily attendance in regular day schools during the school year of 1925-26 amounted to $104.82 in 35 cities of the United States having 100,000 or more population, according to analysis of per capita cost in 247 school systems made by the Bureau of Education, Department of the Interior, and published in Statihtical Circular No. 7. Capital outlay for buildings and grounds war not included in the study, nor were interest charges. In the 60 cities of 30,000 to 100,000 population embraced in the survey, the cost was $92.85 for each pupil in average daily attendance; in the 70 cities of 10,000 to 30,000 population, 85.38; and in the 82 cities of 2,500 to 10,000 population, the current expense for each pupil in average attendance was $74.80.

THE CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL

Miss Hobdy, principal of the Clanton Grammar School, and her able corps of assistants, have found out what others in the same capacity before them found out, that the building and equipment of the Clanton Grammar School is shamefully inadequate, and withal, largely unfit for the uses of the school and the daily habitation of our children. They doubtless perceived such to be the case when they first laid eyes on the miserable excuse for a school building. Subsequent events have deepened the first impression, until now it is perhaps to them a boresome realization every day of their inability to operate the school successfully and properly safeguard the health of the children under their care.

There is no use to go into details as to the deplorable conditions at the Clanton Grammar School building. Every person in Clanton knows that it is a shame and a disgrace; that the building is not fit for our children and the teachers to live in; that it does not afford them proper light and ventilation; that it does not afford them proper warmth; that it does not afford them proper protection from the rain; that the roof leaks; that some of the rooms are frequently flooded as was the case during the past week on one instance.

What will Clanton do about this situation? We are building fine churches; we are contributing money to one institution and another all along; we pave our streets; we do this and that and the other; but we do nothing about our Grammar school. How long, O, how long will Clanton endure the shame of such a public school building, and unjustly burden our children with the many shortcomings that are their daily portion under the present conditions?

Is there not one among us who is big enough to stand up as a leader and a champion of the welfare of the boys and girls of Clanton and bring this town to some kind of action in this serious matter? What says our school authorities? What says our city officials?

There is going to be a day of judgment in the future when somebody is going to have to answer for the present neglect of the boys and girls in our public school; and we don't mean that day when Gabriel shall blow his trumpet.

Hon. J. O. Middleton Will Run For Probate Judge

Will Make Formal Announcement At Proper Time and Will Get into the Race.

Hon. J. Osmond Middleton, Assistant United States District Attorney at Montgomery, spent the past week end at his home in Clanton.

Upon leaving for Montgomery Sunday night, Mr. Middleton authorized The Union-Banner to make the following statement this week concerning his prospective candidacy for the office of Probate Judge of Chilton County next year:

"I want The Union-Banner to say in its issue of this week to my friends in Chilton County that I will be a candidate for Probate Judge of Chilton County in the Republican Primary of next year. While it is yet too early to make a formal announcement, I wish my friends to know that it is my intention to make the race. At the proper time I shall make formal announcement and get into the race in earnest."

The announcement of Mr. Middleton that he will be a candidate comes with no surprise to those who have followed the drift of political feelings in this county during the past few years. For some time it has been almost a foregone conclusion that he would be a candidate. His intentions expressed in this interview will no doubt spur his many friends into action in his behalf; and it looks now as if his cause will be sponsored by a great many of the leading citizens of the county.

FARMERS OF COUNTY MET AT COURTHOUSE LAST FRIDAY

A large number of progressive farmers of Chilton County, met at the Court House at Clanton last Friday, persuant to a call issued by County Agent C. E. Stapp. The meeting was called to order by Hr. Stapp, who ably gave an outline of the work being done by his department in the county and the purpose of the meeting, and introduced Hon. E. A. O'Neal of Montgomery, Ala., who spoke to the farmers present, on the needs of co-operative marketing among them, and pointed out, in an able and concise way the needs of the Chilton County farmer, and gave able suggestions how they could cope with the changed conditions, which are taking place year after year. Steps were taken at this meeting for a permanent organization, the purpose and expected results of which, will be given by Mr. Stapp in the near future.

PROF. MASSEY TO PLAY AT CHILTON HIGH SCHOOL

Prof. J. M. Massey, the blind wonder, is scheduled to put on his program at the Chilton County High School on the night of November 25th. This program has been presented with astounding success at Thorsby, New Salem and other places near by, and we are glad the people of Clanton will have a chance to share in this wholesome entertainment.

Set your stakes now to hear Prof. Massey when he plays in Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cagle of Mitchell Dam spent Monday night with relatives in Clanton. While here Mr. Cagle attended to some finishing work being done on his new building on Seventh Street.

CONFEDERATE VETERAN, 95, STILL ACTIVE ON FARM

Rev. J. T. Nelson of New Salem Community: Has Been Mason For Seventy Years

Chilton County is the home of a Confederate veteran who is 95 years old, and is still in excellent health and who until this year worked his own farm daily and produced a good crop. His name is Rev. J. T. Nelson and his little farm is located near New Salem. Last year he made by his own labor two bales of cotton, a good corn crop and raised cane, potatoes and a good garden. This year he has turned the farm over to his son though the father is still active in helping. He says if he is permitted to live another year and retains his present strength and health he will try it "on his own again to keep himself out of mischief."

Mr. Nelson saw the first railroad train that operated in Georgia and also the first one that operated in Aabama and he delights to tell how the trains he then saw were mere toys compared with the heavy trains which now pass his farm almost houry on the Louisville & Nashville.

On January 1, next Mr. Nelson will be the central figure in a family reunion at his home and he and his wife hope to have present every living relative down to the third and fouith generation, numbering some 150, and all of them making it a special point to try to be on hand for this patriarchal spread.

Born in Georgia

Mr. Nelson was born in Butler County, Georgia, in 1832 and is accordingly 95 years of age. He moved to Tallapoosa county, Alabama, in 1842 and was married to Miss Mary Burt in 1855. From this marriage five children were born, one boy and four girls. When the Civil War clouds spread over the country he promptly volunteered and for awo years served in the famous Hilliard Legion, a detached body of brave volunteers whose names still live in the memory of men, both north and south, for their valiant deeds and battles won by sheer pluck and manly determination.

At the expiration of this period, when the conflict had developed in a war between massive armies and heavy campiagns, this gallant troop of fighters was merged into the 60th Alabama regiment, under the command of the honored Colonel Samford, where Mr. Nelson remained until the finish came at Appomattox.

In Major Battles

Among the more noted battes that he took part in are: Bean Station, Chickamauga, Knoxvillle, Bermuda, Hundred, Chickahominy River and Druey's Bluff. In June, 1864 he went into the ditches around Richmond and fought almost continuosly at this city and Petersburg for nine months. Then came Appomatttx Court House, where thir last gun was fired and where these worn and weary heroes surrendered at 10 a. m. April 9. He fought under General Johnston in Tennessee and under General Longstreet in Virginia.

Mr. Nelson united with the Baptist chuch in Tallapoosa County in 1854 and from the very first became an active and aggressive church and Sunday School worker. Feeling an urge to the ministry, he never became an ordaned minister until 1874. From that day to this he has labored faithfully in the cause and he is still a militant soldier of the cross.

Mason 70 Years

Mr. Nelson became a member of the Masonic Lodge in 1857 and is still with them, a loyal and honored member. His first wife died in 1889 and he married his second wife, Mrs. Francis Jones, in 1890. In 1910 he bought a nice little farm in Chilton County where he still resides. Year by year he has preached the gospel and cultivated his farm with his own hands and by his life and works has won the esteem and regard of all with whom he has come in contact. Not only his family, but the entire community is looking forward to the happiness that will be given him by the reunion in January.

Wake to Your Industrial Advantages

EVERY town in Alabama with reasonable transportation facilities, dependable and low priced power is now a potential industrial center.

Because today is the day of industrial decentralization . . . . factories are moving out from big cities formerly crowded with manufacturing enterprises.

They are seeking small towns as near as possible to their source of raw material and their consumer markets.

They are seeking small towns offering the three essential factors of plant location—labor, power, and local capital.

That is why small Alabama towns are sharing more and more in industry's migration to the smaller centers. Factory executives are finding operating costs and living costs throughout Alabama lower than, perhaps, anywhere in the South.

Labor is intelligent, thrifty, and hard-working. Electric power is available at almost any point in the state through the power lines of the Alabama Power Company. Business leaders of small towns are beginning to realize that with a little local money and a little common sense they can attract paying industries to their community—industries with large payrolls which will broaden local markets, increase per capita wealth, and bring about better roads, better schools, better living conditions to everybody.

The Alabama Power Company is proud to act as the herald of Alabama's new industrial era—an era when industry will be evenly divided over the state, through hearty cooperation with local townsmen—through national advertising—through an aggressive campaign of personal contacts to bring more industries to Alabama. It looks forward to the day when every Alabama town will take advantage of its natural industrial assets!

FIDDLERS CONVENTION

Fiddlers Convention is an annual affair at Maplesville. Remember to come on Thanksgiving night. We are counting on our greatest attendance this year. Prizes will be given as usual.

POOR ORIGINAL

WHY WORRY?

Sir—Did you see in the Saturday Evening Post whither we are tending? It's in the August 20 number in an article entitled "A Manual of Direction for the Educated, by Corra Harris. Mrs. Harris is concerned at the future cost of education, for, she says, it is a "conservative estimate that the population of the country will be doubled thirty-two times within the next 100 years."

A few minutes exercise on the slide rule discloses the fact that if the census figures for 1926 be taken as a base, the population of the United States in 2026, according to the "conservative" estimate will be 503,100,000,000,000 individuals, which is equivalent to an average density of 33.5 per square inch.

I can certainly see plenty of work ahead for structural engineers. — T. L. Y.

Mr. P. F. Mitchell of Verbena is able to be on the job again, after an operation at Memorial Hospital, at Montgomery.

WHY A DAY EARLY

Again, it ih Thanksgiving, and The Union-Banner is coming to its readers on Wednesday instead of Thursday. We have made it a custom for the past several years to send out our paper on Wednesday before Thanksgiving, in order that our readers may not be forced to wait a day longer to get their paper. Uncle Sam does not make his boys work on Thanksgiving, therefore, there is no mail on the rural routes.

If the paper waited until Friday to go out, the advertising would not be as valuable to our patrons, because it would be after the holiday and the last of the week too.

So, for these reasons, as well as the fact that "the devil" wanted a holiday, we stretched a point and got out the dear old Banner a day early.

We hope that all our readers who do not have a big fat turkey for their dinner Thursday will have the only thing that is better—a big fat 'possum with gravy running down his back.

RED CROSS ADVANCES IN HEALTH PROTECTION

Record for Progress Is Made in Protecting People of Vast Flooded Section.

Record health protective activities marked the year's service of the American Red Cross in this field The outstanding health accomplishment was the successful conclusion of the emergency health program launched as part of the relief work in the Mississippi Valley flood. In co-operation with State and Federal health agencies, the Red Cross successfully conducted a campaign designed to prevent epidemics as a result of flood conditions.

Thousands were immunized against typhoid and smallpox, preventive measures against malaria were undertaken, and as the flood receded an intensive clean-up program was set in motion to purify water supplies, provide sanitary surroundings of rural communities and complete other health protective steps.

Beside the emergency work, the Red Cross Public Health Nursing Service developed about 100 new community nursing and health services throughout the country. Nurse instructors and others operating under the Red Cross also extended training in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick to both adult and junior groups, the latter in educational institutions in certain instances. Every State, Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines, Porto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, had Home Hygiene classes which showed a large increase.

One contribution to national health achieving a growing recognition is the nutrition instruction service, through which thousands of adults and school children are learning the proper foods for health and the fundamentals of correct food habits in relation to health. Classes include housewives, school children, foster-mothers, policewomen, women having charge of homes and institutions, business girls and students in universities and colleges.

Besides these direct services for better health, the Red Cross enrolled reserve of nurses mounts to more than 45,000. These nurses are available for disaster relief service, epidemics and other serious emergencies, and are on call for duty with the Army, Navy and the Veterans' Bureau.

Red Cross health services are increasing in scope, it is pointed out, in calling attention to the forthcoming enrollment of new members in the Red Cross ranks, through whose support all Red Cross activities are made possible. The enrollment will take place from November 11 to 24.

Junior Red Cross Army of 6,000,000 in Schools

Members of the Junior Red Cross proved a new capacity for service during the Mississippi flood, according to reports to Red Cross National Headquarters covering their work.

This group of enthusiastic school children responded spontaneously and generously to the needs of the flood victims. An indication of the importance of this help is contained in the report that Juniors in Boston one contributed $7,500 to the relief fund.

Junior Red Cross members shared in reconstruction work in the Midwest tornado several years ago, after the Florida storm, and are in the post-flood operations of the Red Cross among the people in the Mississippi Valley.

Junior Red Cross has 5,822,757 members, an increase of 273,329 in the last year.

More than a million of the Junior Red Cross membership is distributed in the Philippines, Hawaii, Guam, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Alaska, and includes Indian and Eskimo children. Through the medium of the Junior Red Cross in the United States, and similar groups abroad, children all over the world are being brought into closer understanding by international correspondence carried on by classes in the schools.

The Juniors at present have nearly twice the membership of the senior organization, but in the forthcoming membership enrollment of the Red Cross, from November 11 to 24, the goal of the adult membership is 5,000,000.

Foreign Calls for Help Answered by Red Cross

Despite the unusual requirements of relief in 77 disasters within the United States, the people of the country, through the American Red Cross, extended relief to sufferers in 20 disasters in foreign lands.

These included hurricanes in the West Indies, desolating portions of Cuba, Santo Domingo, Porto Rico, the Isle of Pines, the Bahamas, and other islands in the group; fires in Haiti and Porto Rico, floods in Mexico and Jugoslavia, earthquakes in Japan, the Azores Islands, Armenia and Albania, and refugee relief operations in Bulgaria, Syria, and China.

During the Eleventh Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 24, the American Red Cross will seek a membership of 5,000,000 to keep its disaster relief and other services constantly ready for any call.

Ed Mims Arrested On Charge of Distilling

Sheriff Collins, Deputies Murrah and Easterling went up near the river below Lock 12 last Thursday morning and located a still in operation about one-fourth mile from the home of Ed Mims. At the still were three men operating it. When the presence of the officers was scented, all three took for the bushes. One of the men made his escape eective. According to the report of the officers, Ed Mims and the negro, Brock Pearson, ran within a short distance of the officers, and when the command "halt" was given, the negro stopped, but Mims kept going. However, the officers say they recognized Mims.

Thursday afternoon Mims came to Clanton and surrendered to the officers and mad bond. His bond was placed at $500. The negro was brought to jail, and was released on bond of $500.

We understand that Mims has entered the claim that he was in Coosa County at the time the still was raided, and Ed says, it is reported, that he can produce witnesses to that effect.

The still was a copper outfit, well built, and was about 200 gallon capacity. It was destroyed, together with six barrels of beer. A sufficient amount of whiskey for evidence was brought to jail by the officers.

STILL DESTROYED IN STUMPS HILLS

Sheriff Collins and Deputy Murrah were up in Stumps Hills Monday morning and ran up on three men at a still. The outfit was not in operation and the men saw the officers in time to make a clean escape. The officers tore up the still and poured out four barrels of beer. No whiskey was gotten and no arrests were made.

In due course he received the following reply:

"You were lucky to find eleven hens, because I only sent you six!"

In the days of redman warfare, the Puritan's family, too, had their turkey. But the head of the household went to no market; he shouldered his musket early in the morning—and it does not stand on record where any Puritan household had less than one Thanksgiving turkey by noon!

LEONARD'S CASE CHANGED TO FRIDAY

Because of the decision of the supreme court not to give consideration to any cases on Thanksgiving Day the case of Hays Leonard, sentenced to death for participation in the murder of Judge Lamar Smith at Wetumpka August 30, 1926, will not be submitted to the supreme court until Friday. Leonard's case is on the docket for Thursday at the call of the Elmore County division.

The supreme court and court of appeals will hold no sessions Thursday and many cases demanding action on that day will receive attention Friday.

THORSBY SECTION
(S. E. NORTON, Manager).

"Stunt Night," at Thorsby Institute, held in the Auditorium last Saturday night, was one of the best entertainments of its kind the school has ever given. Instead of the usual "Horse Play" indulged in by the class of each year from freshmen to Seniors, each class this year put on something in the nature of a worth while play, that will be long remembered by all in the audience.

First came the Freshmen Class with a playlet written by Miss Eddy, a member of the faculty, and entitled, "The Vitograph," a new instrument for recording the human voice and instrumental music. The stage setting represented a studio where these instruments were for sale, and the supposed reproductions came from behind a screen where some of the best singers and players of the piano, banjo etc. were hidden. When the machines were ostensibly wound up the reproductions were startlingly real, and by the way, of real merit.

Next came the Sophmores with a realistic performance of the old nursery rhyme, "A frog he would a-wooing go," accompanied by piano. Two girls sang the ditty, while boys dressed and acting to imitate frogs were hopping about on the stage. The whole thing showed care, under direction of Mr. Robert Dickson, of the faculty, and was greatly enjoyed by the audience.

Then came the Junior Class, who had been trained onder Miss Jenkins. Their stunt was a burlesque Quadrille of old time country folks. Each vied with the rest in presenting the most ridiculous appearance. The set was composed entirely of girls, each wearing a white sun bonnet, with the open side at the back of the head where a mask was worn to represent a face. The clothing was nondescript and looked as if it had been fished out of the rag bag, and to add to its "attraction" all were worn hind side before. The music for the dance was spirited and they needed no "caller" but every one seemed to know just what to do and went at it with gusto. At the end they all lined up to make their farewell bow presenting their backs and masks to the audience they bowed backward as far as they could without falling. These girls demonstrated that they can play as well as work.

The senior class stunt was more sedate, and was a presentation of "living pictures" representing Whitcomb Riley's poem entitled "That Old Sweetheart of Mine." As the reader who was accompanied in an artistic manner on the piano, proceeded to describe the variety of "sweethearts" that had for a season dazzled the eyes of the old man in his life journey, these subjects were represented by different members of the class, in the soft light of dreamland. This scene was under direction of Mr. Rascoe Maddox.

Considerable light was thrown on a dark subject at the Congregational church last Sunday night, when Rev. Each presented his stereopticon views of missionary work and scenes in South Africa. The pictures were unusually clear and gave one considerable information of the civilizing effect of Christian mission where 50 years ago most of the inhabitants of the land were ignorant of saving grace.

Rev. J. H. Roberts is spending this week until Saturday in Mississippi.

A union Thanksgiving service will be held at 10:30 a. m., next Thursday morning in the Congregational church, to which all who feel that a part of the program for the day should be devoted to religious service in assembly are cordially invited. The sermon will probably be delivered by Rev. W. P. Lowery. The offering will be sent to The Near East Relief.

Thorsby Institute, en masse, expects to go to the poor farm to help brighten the day for the people there in the afternoon, in pursuance of a long established custom.

The P. T. A. held its monthly social Wednesday afternoon of this week at the public school. A special program was a feature of entertainment provided by the pupils of the school.

A letter from Mrs. Each at Crestview, Fla., states that she, with Mr. and Mrs. Goddard, and Elliott Miller, expect to return to Thorsby about the middle of this week.

The annual bazaar, under auspices of the Ladies Guild of Thorsby, will be held at Mrs. Bice's cafe on Saturday afternoon of this week. The sale of articles will begin at 1:00 o'clock sharp. Refreshments will be sold at any time after 2:00 o'clock. Ladies of the Guild are requested to bring all articles for the bazaar to the home of Mrs. S. E. Norton on or before Friday, that the Sales Committee may price and mark them.

Gordon Sorrell of Howard College was a visitor in Thorbsy Monday. He says he is preparing for the ministry.

Mr. and Mrs. Adamr of Prattville were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Williams for the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Akins Collins arrived from Florida and have taken possession of their new home here. Their wedding was held at the Baptist church in Panama City at 8:30 p. m., Friday, November 18th. Friends of both families from Thorsby and the home town were present. They left for Thorsby immediately after the wedding, and arrived at the home of Mr. Collins's parents, J. H. Collins, where they were entertained at a wedding supper, attended by about 50 relatives and friends of the two families. Mrs. Leonard Hayes was one of the guests at the wedding, and reports that the Thorsby people who attended the wedding in Florida had about a week of splendid enjoyment.

Miss Sadie Shannon of Montgomery and Miss Elizabeth Mendenhall of Prattville were the guests for the week end of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Peterson.

A new family has come to Thorsby. Mr. F. W. Taylor with his wife and two sons have bought the S. P. Franklin cafe and filling station on the highway. They come here from Sellers, Ala. They serve barbecued pork sandwiches, hot coffee and lunches, 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Scandinavian services at the Lutheran church in the morning, Sunday, November 27th; English service in the evening, weather being favorable, otherwise not.

APPRECIATION

I wish to extend my appreciation to the Ladies Guild of Thorsby for the beautiful flowers of sympathy they sent me.—Mrs. Diefenderfer.

Mrs. R. D. Gibbons and little daughter, Mabel, left Saturday for Jacksonville, Fla. enroute to Ormond where they will visit a few days with their friend, Mrs. Chas. Self.

MARK TUCKER'S LETTER

Leading citizens from all parts of Alabama met at the state capital Tuesday to devise ways and means for combating the campaign of misinformation now being waged against the school building amendment which will be voted on at the special election of January 10. Attacks made upon the entire educational system and personnel attributed to agents and attorneys for large corporations have aroused great indignation in the minds of those who are trying to build up the schools. A reply to these attacks will be formulated and published by a citizens' committee, not connected with the educational department, but in sympathy with its aspirations for the public welfare.

The Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers, in their recent state convention at Mobile, decided by a unanimous vote to go on record as favoring the educational building amendment whereby each county will receive $200,000 for its schools, without the necessity of matching state funds with county funds; though the law provides that state funds may be matched, in whole or in part, where the county or its local units are able to do so. The parents and teachers resolved individually and collectvely to work for the proposed $20,000,000 bond issue, and that a record of their endorsement be furnished the newspapers of the state with the request that it be published.

Governor Bibb Graves, who has been ill at his home for some time, is gradually recovering health and strength. He was unable, however, to attend the opening of Legion Field, the magnificient stadium opened Saturday at Birmingham, with impressive ceremonies, with several senators and governors present, and with the annual contest between Birmingham Southern College and Howard football teams; Howard winning 9 to 0.

Twelve carloads of Alabama Black Belt Turkeys have been shipped within the past ten days to the larger cities of the country for Thanksgiving Day. The fowls, valued at $85,000, were shipped cooperatively, and are in addition to large express shipments made to nearer and smaller cities. The Alabama birds are in great and growing demand and other large shipments will be made for the Christmas trade. Most of the carload shipments go to New York and other eastern cities, and to Florida resorts. The sale was promoted by the Alabama Farm Bureau and the county demonstration agents, and the turkeys brought 30 1-2 cents per pound.

The Alabama School Journal says that as late as November 1 the Tax Payers Defense League was sending out a circular bearing the statement that the $4,150,000 conditionally appropriated by the recent legislature for the erection and improvement of buildings at institutions of higher learning will be paid to those institutions 'out of current revenues, whether the bond issue passes or not'. Attention has long since been called to the act of the legislature which made this appropriation and the clauses therein which expressly invalidate those appropriations in event of the adoption of the amendment. The opponents of school improvement no longer repeat their 'mistake', though their published statements continue to perpetuate the error with great persistence.

Mr. and Mrs. Crit Jones of Lock 12 motored to town Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Charlie Cox motored to Birmingham Sunday and spent the day with his daughter, Mrs. Earl Robinson.

Mr. Billy Headley of Friendship was in town Saturday.

Mr. Buddy Robinson of Providence community spent Saturday in town.

Mrs. Charlie Cox returned Sunday from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Earl Robinson, in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Cleckler of Thorsby spent Saturday in Clanton.

Mr. Wallace Cox, who is working on the highway near Athens, joined his parents at the home of his sister, Mrs. Earl Robinson, in Birmingham Sunday.

Mr. J. M. Robinson of Providence made a business trip to Clanton Saturday.

Major Winn of the Alabama Power Company, who made his home in Clanton during the construction of Mitchell Dam, was a visitor to Clanton Monday.

Mrs. Caldwell Mims, who lives near Billingsley, spent Saturday in Clanton shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Jones of Thorsby motored to our city Saturday.

Dr. Earl Gowan and children, Ruth and Paul, left by train for Kosciusko, Miss., last Wednesday, to visit his father, Mr. J. C. Gowan, who is very ill.

Miss Thelma Bullington spent the week end at her home in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Blocker Williamson of Birmingham were the week end guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Flem Jones, at Lime Springs.

Miss Thelma Bullington, a C. C. H. S. teacher, left Wednesday for Birmingham, where she will spend the Thanksgiving holidays with her parents in Birmingham.

Mr. Oscar Jones spent Monday in Maplesville.

Mr. P. F. Mitchell of Verbena is able to be on the job again, after an operation at Memorial Hospital, at Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson of Pinedale spent Saturday in Clanton.

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by Proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, therefore, I, BIBB GRAVES, Governor of the State of Alabama do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 13th day of December 1927, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for a vote by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form and places as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, namely:

"That all that portion of Choctaw County in the State of Alabama, lying south of the Okatuppa Creek from the Tombigbee River up to the north line of Section 21, township 11, thence west to the Mississippi state line, is hereby created a special tax district. The governing body of Choctaw County shall have the right and power to levy and collect for public school purposes, in addition to all other taxes now authorized by law a tax not in excess of one-half of one percentum on all property situated within the tax district hereby created, based upon the valuation of such property in said district, as assessed for state taxation, provided such tax is authorized by a majority of the qualified electors of said district voting upon such proposition at an election called and held for the purpose of authorizing such tax. Such an election may be called at any time by the Governing body of said county, and must be called by said governing body whenever said governing body is requested in writing by the governing board of education of said county, and such election must be called by said governing body upon a petition signed by two hundred or more qualified electors of said district and addressed to the Court of County Commissioners. Such election shall be held and conducted and the results canvassed, as now provided by law for holding and conducting and canvassing the returns of an election to determine whether or not the three mill district school tax shall be levied and collected. The proceeds of the tax hereby authorized shall be used in all respects in accordance with law governing the handling and expenditure of the three mill district school tax."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 13th day of December 1927, in each county in the State of Alabama, in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery on this the 4th day of October 1927.

American Railroads

Here are some interesting figures concerning last year's operation of the major steam transportation lines of America. They show the gigantic task successfully accomplished, and illustrate impressively the importance of the railroads to the public they serve.

An hour is a relatively short time, yet within that brief period the railways of this country load into freight cars 152,572 tons of revenue freight.

Within an hour, 98,213 passengers board the railway trains. Every sixty minutes the railways put out in wages and operating expenses $532,678.00; and during this same period of time, they put into national, state and local treasuries the sum of $44,370.00 in taxes.

Within an hour, the passenger service performed by the railroads is equivalent to hauling 4,051,019 passengers (approximately the total combined population of the cities of Chicago and Detroit) for a distance of one mile.

These average expenditures and operations afford an idea of the year-'round, every-day and every-hour magnitude of the finest transportation service ever known in the world—that of the steam railroads of America.

New World Record For Winter Egg Yield Set By Alabama Hens

AUBURN, Ala. — (Special.) — With another outstanding record in egg production the Third National Egg-laying Contest conducted by the poultry department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, came to a close. Although the total production fell short of that of the second contest, which ended a year ago, it was ahead of that of the first contest which ended two years ago; and Prof. John E. Ivey, G. A. Trollope and M. V. Lowder, supervisors of the contest, declare that it was a distinct success.

High White Rock Hen in Third Egg Laying Contest at Auburn; entered by B. E. Kelley of Abbeville: record 279 eggs in 51 weeks.

There were 100 pens in the third contest, just as in the second. In the first there were only 96 pens. There were ten birds to the pen, making 1,000 in each of the two last contests and 960 in the first. Each pen carried two alternates, making a total of 12 to the pen, but only ten were counted—the alternates were used only in case of death of one or two of the other birds.

The contest as a whole ran for 51 weeks, beginning November 1, 1926. During these 51 weeks the average production per hen for the entire 1,000 was 173.5 eggs. The average for the second contest was 180.2; for the first, 153.2.

The percentage of production was 48.6 which means almost one egg for each bird every two days. The percentage score for the second contest was 50.5, or slightly more than one egg per bird every two days. For the first contest the score was 42.9.

It was an "egg-laying race" from the very beginning. Birds competed as individuals and by pens for high honors. The leading individual hen at the end of the 51st week was a white leghorn owned by Adam Glass, Mobile. Another owned by Mr. Glass and one owned by Sutton Hill Farm, Aurora, Ind., tied for second place with 294 eggs each. The high pen in the contest was 10 white leghorns owned by Lukert Leghorn Farm, Salerno, Fla. These birds produced 2,512 eggs. Adam Glass owned second high pen with a record of 2,356. The leading pens for other breeds were:

Anconas: Shorter Ancona Farm, Shorter, Ala., 1,870.

Black Minorcas: P. J. Sauer, Mobile, 1,428.

White Wyandottes: C. L. Howell, Alexander City, Ala., 1,697.

Barred Plymouth Rocks: J. M. Glass, Tuscaloosa, Ala., 1,835.

Rhode Island Reds Dr. F. B. Reeder, Florence, Ala., 1,976.

White Rocks: B. E. Kelley, Abbeville, Ala., 1,551.

Buff Orpingtons: Judge Sam High, Asheville, Ala., 1,399.

Seventy-five of the 100 pens were White Leghorns; three were Anconas; one Black Minorcas; four White Wyandottes; six Barred Rocks; eight Rhode Island Reds; two White Rocks and one Buff Orpington.

During their stay of 51 weeks in Auburn these 1,000 hens were housed in 50 houses, each being 12x14 feet and accommodating two pens. Two lots are connected with each house so that hens were switched from one lot to the other, in order to produce green feed and to change the run.

The daily feeding schedule was as follows: 6:00 A. M., grain; 7:30 A. M., germinated oats; 11:30 A. M., green feed; 1:30 P. M., semi-solid buttermilk; 4:30 P. M., grain. An egg-laying mash was kept before them continuously. Jazz Laying Mash and Scratch Feed were fed.

From November 15 to April 15 electric lights were turned on an hour at night, from eight to nine o'clock. Immediately after lights went on they were fed a hot wet mash at the rate of one ounce per bird each night.

The first grain fed in the morning was at the rate of 3 1-2 pounds per 100 birds; that at 4:30 in the afternoon was fed at the rate of 6 2-3 pounds per 100 birds. Semi-solid buttermilk was fed at the rate of two or three pounds per 100 birds. Rape, cowpeas, soybeans and sorghum were cut and fed as green feed.

Each bird was treated for lice at the beginning of the contest, again in the summer and a third time just before being returned to their owners at the end of the contest. Mercurial ointment and carbolated vaseline mixed in equal parts was used.

Other precautions were taken to prevent diseases and to destroy insects, thereby keeping the birds in a vigorous condition.

During the months of November, December and January the pen of white leghorns owned by Marshall Farm, Mobile, produced 727 eggs which was a new high world record in winter egg production. The previous high record was 719.

THE NEW SOUTH

Few people perhaps, excepting the ones ilving in the territory affected, realize the great industrial change that is taking place in the United States. Formerly we looked to New England, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio as our chief manufacturing states. The automobile business gave Michigan a place in the industrial sun, and now the industrial map of the nation is changing again. At present the manufacturer seems to have his face turned to the South. North and South Carolina, Alabama and Tennessee are rapidly becoming industrial states.

In a recent address, E. H. Hooker, president of the Hooker Electro-Chemical Company of New York, declared that the Tennessee Valley will become the "Ruhr of America." He added that the national industrial center is shifting to the Mississippi Valley and South Atlantic and pointed out that the Southern States, once almost wholly in plantations, were now demanding power to run manufacturing plants. The gulf ports, he said, are already hoping to become rivals to New York and Boston "for the shifting market from Europe to South America and the Orient by way of the Panama Canal is opening up a new industrial development of the world." With the development of power in the South, Mr. Hooker predicted that the change would be even more rapid than at present.

All of which is of course true and significant in more ways than one. The shifting of the industrial map is bound, sooner or later, to cause a shift in the political map. For as the industries in the South increase the Southern States will continue more and more to demand protection. The trend has already set in and political students tell us that nowhere has the sentiment for the protective tariff grown as fast during the past ten years as in the South. And the former free trade states does not come exclusively from the infant manufacturing industries there. The farmers and fruit growers want a tariff, too, to protect their interests from the cheaply grown fruit of the nearby tropics and from the increasing shipments coming in from Mexico and the islands near the southern coast of the United States.

Just how this change in conditions will affect the political parties cannot of course be foretold. For the tariff is not the partisan issue that it once was.

REFUGE NEWS

Saturday and Sunday were regular meeting days at this place. We were glad to see our pastor, Rev. M. J. Parrish out again. Our Sunday School is progressing nicely. Rev Willie Armstrong filled the pulpit Sunday and gave us a very powerful sermon. His text was taken from Acts 4:13. Seeing the boldness of Peter and John and that they were ignorant and unlearned men have taken knowledge of them. We welcome Bro. Armstrong back with us at any and all times. Especially are we glad to have him with us in our Sunday School.

Our singing society met at two o'clock in the afternoon in its regular session, and we had one of the best singings in our history since we have had our new books. The house was called to order by Chairman O. R. Robinson who appointed a committee as follows to make out the program for the afternoon: J. E. Minor, Jodie Connell, and Enoch Mims. Those singing from one to two songs were as follows: O. L. Devaughn, S. V. Miller, M. Lockhart, W. M. Devaughn. A quartet was arranged by W. M. Devaughn, Marion Thompson, J. E. Minor, Melvin Mims, and Rev. Helms of Walnut Creek. Pianists for the afternoon were Misses Clara Mae Mims, Ruth Thompson, Mrs. J. R. Helms. We wish for no one to feel slighted for time would not permit all the directors to be on program. So come back next time, which will be next third Sunday afternoon and bring some one with you.—M. County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARMERS OF ALABAMA HAVE BETTER YEAR

Auburn, Ala. Nov. 22.—Thanksgiving this year has found Alabama farmers with more money in their pockets and in the banks, more debts paid, and with a normal amount of food and feed in their pantries, potato bins, smokehouses, corn cribs, and barns. At the same time, the price of Alabama products in the aggregate is 20 per cent higher than that of one year ago and the average price of what farmers have to buy is down 8 per cent.

The above is a brief statement by F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician, and J. D. Pope, farm economist, Auburn, regarding the Alabama farm situation at present as compared with Thanksgiving in 1926. In addition to being in a better financial position they say that the outlook for 1928 is "such as to inspire confidence."

An analysis of Alabama farm production in 1927 shows an increase in corn, peanuts, Irish potatoes and also sweet potatoes; a decrease in cotton, oats, and syrup; and about the same amount of hay as was made in 1926. While the cotton crop is off the price is much higher and the aggregate value of it is approximately 30 per cent more than the 1926 crop.

Corn ranks next to cotton in value in Alabama and the 1927 crop for the state was placed at 48,368,000 bushels as compared with 45,765,000 bushels last year. The 1927 corn crop exceeds the five year average by about 5,500,000. The peanut crop is up from 3,192,000 to 5,253,000. Both the Irish potato and sweet potato crops are larger. While the syrup crop is off it is sufficient for home needs and a small amount can be sold.

TIMELY FARM FACTS

It is better to do something without thinking than it is to think and not do anything.

More than 24,000 acres of land in New Mexico and Colorado will be opened to entry under the homestead and desert land laws.

For each dollar Alabama farmers received for cotton of the 1926 crop they are receiving about $1.30 for the 1927 crop.

Cotton Club boys in Alabama think little of making a bale of cotton to the acre; many of them exceeded this amount this year.

C. E. Wilson of Russellville, has used lespedeza to reclaim wornout land. This year he made 1 1-2 tons of excellent hay to the acre.

20 CARS OF TURKEYS FROM BLACK BELT BRING $85,000

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 22.—From Alabama twenty carloads of turkeys were shipped to the markets of the North, East and South to be consumed during Thanksgiving. They were from the countes in the Black Belt; and the growers were paid $85,000 for them.

Approximately 34,000 turkeys rolled in these twenty cars. They weighed 270,000 pounds and the growers were paid 30½ cents per pound at the car door. Half of them went to New York City, three cars to Nashville; two to Cincinnati; two to Newark, N. J.; and two to Miami and Palm Beach, Fla.

The sales were conducted by the county agents and marketing specialists of Auburn, cooperating with the State and county Farm Bureaus. The county agents were in charge locally and sales were cleared through the State Farm Bureau, Montgomery. Representatives of the Extension Service of Auburn arranged the sales.

It was the second year of cooperative selling of turkeys in Alabama. The first sales of this kind were made for Thanksgiving, 1926, at which time seven carloads were sold for 26 cents. The success of the plan was revealed by the fact that almost three times as many cars moved this year as last; and the price was 4½ cents per pound higher. Others will be sold at Christmas.

Before cooperative marketing the Black Belt was little known as a turkey center. The growers received 15 to 20 cents per pound. By pooling and selling cooperatively the owner of one turkey sold direct to the biggest turkey buyers; and this brought them much higher prices. As a result of this method of selling a big turkey industry is established.

"It is time to begin the preparation of the hotbed and coldframe which make it possible to extend the season of some vegetables and to aid in starting others in the early spring."—Lyle Brown, Auburn.

On November 10 President Coolidge issued a proclamation increasing by 50 per cent the duty on crude magnesia and caustic calcine magnisite imports. The President has power to do this under the flexible provision of the tariff act of 1922.

Beef cattle prices run in 14-year cycles—7 years up and 7 years down. This has been the history for many years. At present beef cattle prices are higher and expected to continue for two to four years and then start downward again.

Cotton high -Soda low!

HAVE you bought your Nitrate of Soda? Now is the time to do it. Last season many farmers waited too long...then were unable to get it and had to use other things. "Once is enough," they say. This year they're making sure of their Soda by ordering now.

Chilean Nitrate of Soda is the only nitrogen that meets every cotton requirement. It sets a fine crop ahead of weevils and makes good in spite of fleas, flood or drought. It has no acid effect on your soil. It won't burn your hands or your clothes. There is no substitute for it...and farmers who realize this are farmers who make money.

Now, with cotton high and Soda low, you are in a fine position. Don't take any chances. Put in your order and be on the safe side, while the price of Nitrate of Soda is so favorable.

It's Soda—Not Luck!

Almost every cotton champion in '25 and '26 used Nitrate of Soda. Do you think that just happened? Think of the best crops in your section this year. Does it just happen that they were Soda crops? Check back on field demonstrations. Does it just happen that Nitrate of Soda always shows up best?

Everywhere it's the same story—it is Soda, not luck—that makes profitable crops. That is why we urge you to buy now.

"In 1924 I began using 200 lbs. of Soda per acre and have produced better than a bale every year since. In 1924 I produced 7½ bales on 7 acres; in 1925 I made 8 bales; in 1926 the yield was 10 bales, and in 1927 I got 8 bales from this area."

The press of November 11, said that new world records for endurance and speed by three automobiles was made by two Studebaker Commander roadsters and a Studebaker Commander sedan which traveled 25,000 miles in less than 25,000 minutes. This was announced by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association and the record was made on the Atlantic City Speedway.

President Coolidge is reported to be more friendly to the debenture plan of farm relief which has been proposed by the National Grange. Under this plan farmers would be given a certificate for products sold in the world market, calling for a difference between the domestic price and the world level price plus the tariff. He could then sell these certificates to brokers or importers who will use them in the payment of customs on goods imported.

FARMERS INCORPORATE

A telegram from Topeka tells of the filing of articles of incorporation by six farmers who own about 5,000 acres that are to be cultivated as a corporation enterprise. That is said to be the first company of the kind to be organized in Kansas. The success it attains will be watched with interest in all states. Farming is a big business enterprise as carried on in other states, particularly in the Northwest, with all the economies and efficiency that are characteristic of railway or other corporate management. There is in Montana, for example, a farming concern that cultivates thousands of acres in single fields and is making a success of the undertaking.

The need for cooperation among farmers is generally recognized. A means of pooling issues on marketing is conceded to be essential to the stabilization of price conditions. Cooperation in many guises has been undertaken in various parts of the country. Some of the attempts have been successful and others have not been so satisfactory. Statesmen of Washington have been studying the situation with a view to devising some legislation that will tend to insure more efficient handling of the crops. While it may be possible to accomplish much by legislative action, the real solution of agricultural problems is in the hands of the farmers.

The Kansas farmers will carry cooperation to the limit. Combining on marketing methods is only a part of the battle. It is important that the tiller of the soil should get as much as possible for what he raises, but it is also important that he should be able to produce his crop at the minimum of cost. A dollar saved in raising the crop is worth just as much as a dollar gained in marketing operations.—Chicago Post.

"I simply can't stand the toot of an automobile horn."

"How's that?"

"A fellow eloped with my wife in an automobile and every time I hear an auto toot I think he's bringing her back."

A traffic policeman at a busy crossing saw an old lady beckon to him one afternoon. He held up a dozen motor cars, a dray and two cabs to get to her side.

"What is it, ma'am, he said rather impatiently.

The old lady smiled and put her hand on his arm.

"Officer," she said in a soft voice, "I want to tell you that your number is the number of my favorite hymn."

"You wish to marry my daughter?" she asked. He was a diplomat.

"Not so much that, madam. The keystone of my ambition is to be able to point to you one day as my mother-in-law."

Wolton: "And so, after inviting your friends to game dinner, you were not served with any part of the bird?"

Tolson: "Oh, yes; I got the bill."

RULES of the ROAD

Regulations governing all vehicles using the public roads and highways of the State of Alabama, adopted by the State Highway Commission as provided by authority of the Alabama Highway Code.

When Speed Limit Not Applicable

The speed limitations as set forth in Section 51 shall not apply to vehicles when operated with due regard for safety and under the direction, of patrolmen, police or other officers of the law, as herein provided, in the case of apprehension of violators of the law or of persons who are charged with or suspected of any such violation, nor to fire departments or fire patrol vehicles when traveling in response to a fire alarm, nor to public or private ambulances when traveling in emergencies. The exemption shall not however protect the driver of any such vehicle or his principal from the consequences of a reckless disregard of the safety of others as provided by law.

Drive on The Right Side of Highways

Upon all highways of sufficient width, except upon one way streets, the driver of a vehicle shall drive the same upon the right half of the highway and shall drive a slow moving vehicle as closely as possible to the right hand edge or curb of such highway, unless it is obstructed or impassable and except when overtaking and passing another vehicle subject to the limitations applicable in overtaking and passing as set forth in Sections 58 and 59 of this article. Any person violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in Section 75 of this article.

Keep to the Right of The Road in Crossing Intersections or Railroads

In crossing an intersection of highways or in the intersection of a highway by a railroad right of way, the driver of a vehicle shall at all times cause such vehicle to travel on the right half of the highway unless such half is obstructed or impassable. Any person violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in Section 75 of this article.

Meeting of Vehicles

Drivers of vehicles proceeding in opposite directions shall pass each other at the right, each giving the other at least one-half of the main traveled portion of the roadway as nearly as possible. Any person violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in Section 75 of this article.

Overtaking A Vehicle

(a) The driver of any vehicle overtaking another vehicle proceeding in the same direction shall pass at a safe distance to the left thereof, and shall not again drive to the right side of the highway until safely clear of such overtaken vehicle.

(b) The driver of an overtaking motor vehicle not within a business district as herein defined shall give audible warnng with his horn or other warning device before passing or attempting to pass a vehicle proceeding in the same direction. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall punished as provided in Section 75 of this article.

Limitations on Privilege of Overtaking and Passing

(a) The driver of a vehicle shall not drive to the left side of the center line of a highway in overtaking and passing another vehicle proceeding in the same drection unless such left side is clearly visible and is free of oncoming traffic for a sufficient distance ahead to permit such overtaking and passing to be made in safety.

(b) The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass another vehicle proceeding in the same direction upon the crest of a grade or upon a curve in the highway where the driver's view along the highway is obstructed within a distance of 500 feet.

(c) The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass any other vehicle proceeding in the same direction at any steam or electric railway grade crossing nor at any intersection of highways unless permitted to do so by a traffic or police officer. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in Section 75 of this artcle.

Driver to Give Way to Overtaking Vehicle

The driver of any vehicle upon a highway about to be overtaken and passed by another vehicle approaching from the rear shall give way to the right in favor of the overtaking vehicle on suitable and audible signal being given by the driver of the overtaking vehicle, and when overtaken shall not increase the speed of his vehicle until completely passed by the overtaking vehicle. Any person violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided by Section 75 of this article.

Following Too Closely

(a) The driver of a vehicle shall not follow another vehicle more closely than is reasonable and prudent, having due regard to the speed of such vehicle and the traffic upon and condition of the highway.

(b) The driver of any motor truck when traveling upon a highway outside of a business or residence district shall not follow another motor truck within one hundred feet, but this shall not be construed to prevent one motor truck overtaking and passing another. Any person violating any provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in Section 75 of this artcile.

Turning At Intersection

(a) Except as otherwise provided in this section, the driver of a vehicle intending to turn to the right at an intersection shall approach such intersection in the line of traffic nearest to the right hand side of the highway, and in turning shall keep as closely as practicable to the right hand curb or edge of the highway, and when intending to turn to the left shall approach such intersection in the lane for traffic to the right of and nearest to the center line of the highway and in turning shall pass beyond the center of the intersection, passing as closely as practicable to the right thereof before turning such vehicle to the left.

For the purpose of this section, the center of the intersection shall mean the meeting point of the medial lines of the highway intersecting one another.

(b) Local authorities in their respective jurisdictions may modify the foregoing method of turning at intersections or prohibit any turn thereat by clearly indicating by buttons, markers or other direction signs within an intersection the course to be followed by vehicles turning thereat, and it shall be unlawful for any driver to fail to turn in a manner as so directed when such direction signs are installed by local authorities. Any person violating any provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in Section 75 of this article.

Signals of Starting, Stopping, Turning and Backing

(a) The driver of any vehicle upon a highway before starting, stopping, backing or turning from a direct line shall first see that the movement can be made in safety and if any pedestrian may be affected by such movement, shall give a clearly audible signal by sounding the horn, and whenever the operation of any other vehicle may be affected by such movement shall give a signal as required in this section, plainly visible to the driver of such other vehicle of the intention to make such movement.

(b) The signal herein required shall be given either by means of the hand and in the manner herein specified, or by an approved mechanical or electrical signal device, except that when a vehicle is so constructed or loaded as to prevent the hand and arm signal from being visible both to the front and rear the signal shall be given by a device which has been approved by the department.

Whenever the signal is given by means of the hand and arm, the driver shall indicate his intention to stop or turn by extending the hand and arm horizontally from beyond the left side of the vehicle. Before backing, warning should be given by sounding horn or ringing bell or by other mechnical signals. Any person violating any provisions of this section shall be guilty if a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in Section 75 of this araicle.

COOLIDGE TABOOS PETITIONS

Washington, Nov. 22. — The first authoritative direct statement of President Coolidge's 1928 desires since the famous "I do not choose to run," edict came from the White House today and it was an expression of Mr. Coolidge's desires that petitions on his behalf be kept from circulation.

Unlike the "I do not choose" statement, which was typewritten and handed to newspaper men by the President himself, today's outline of the president's views came in the usual routine of giving to the press the attitude of Mr. Coolidge on various topics, without authority to quote him directly.

Mr. Coolidge has been importuned frequently during the summer and fall to amplify his Black Hills statement, but to no avail. Today's exposition of the White House views was brought about by publication of the intention of a supporter of Mr. Coolidge to start an endless chain petition urging his renomination. Mr. Coolidge believed such petitions would do no good.

STILL IS FOUND ON OLD CHURCH SITE NEAR GRADY

One Arrest and 35 Gallons of Booze Taken in Big Raid

One man was arrested, a 100-gallon capacity still captured and 35 gallons of whiskey destroyed following a raid made Monday afternoon by federal officers Adkins, Seal and Gilliespie and state officer Mitchell on the ground once occupied by the old Fairview church four miles southwest of Grady.

Jasper "Dave" Tucker, the arrested man, stated that the still was his, officers announced today. As the officers were approaching the site a guard stationed on top of a nearby hill saw them and fired two shots into the air. The moonshiners broke into a run, two of them escaping. The still was in full operation at the time of its capture.

Tucker was turned over to the officials of the county and will probably be taken to Luverne Tuesday as the still was being operated in Crenshaw County.

CHEMISTS' REPORT AWAITED IN MONTEABARO CASE

Analysis of Blood and Viscera of Victim of Pistol Shot is in Dr. Ross' Hands.

Calera, Nov. 22.—With results of the chemical analysis of alleged blood stains on the roadside and of the analysis by Dr. B. B. Ross, state chemist, of the viscera of the dead girl still to be learned, there was little new Tuesday in developments of the investigation here into the death of Miss Louise Monteabaro.

Stains said to have been found at the point where the girl turned her machine back toward Calera on the night of the fatal shooting and believed by Attorney General McCall to be blood are still being analyzed. If the stains are proved to be those of blood from Miss Monteabaro the attorney general believes he will have discovered important evidence. Officers present at the time of the shooting claim Miss Monteabaro shot herself at a point half a mile nearer Calera.

Mayor Brown, of Calera, expresses the belief that the girl may have shot herself accidentally in handling her gun after she had been arrested by Chief of Police H. F. Blake, who was driving her car at the time. This belief was expressed by Motor Scout Farmer, accompanying the car. Blake however, contends the case was one of suicide.

The attorney general is now in Luverne conducting prosecution of the flogging trials there. John Coleman, assigned by the governor to the case, has completed his investigation and filed his report. This leaves the next step in the hands of chemists. Dr. Ross has completed his findings in examination of the viscera, but refuses to make them public until action is taken by the attorney general.

Miss Monteabaro died Monday night, November 14, in a Birmingham hospital where she was taken with a bullet wound in the head. Chief Blake and Officer Farmer stated she shot herself after they had caught her on a speeding charge.

Passer-by: "Dear me, my good man, did you fall down the steps?
Drunk: "Yea, but it's all right. I was going down any way."

His letter read: "I'm enjoying Florence immensely."
His wife replied: "You can stay in Europe. I'm having a good time with Oscar."

Some day the people will realize that the human knee is a joint and not an entertainment.

Johnson: "So you gave up trying to teach your wife to drive the car?"
Williams: "Yes, when I told her to release the clutch she let go of the steering wheel."

"Be sure," said Jones, "to look up my friend, Mr. Lummack, while in the city."
"Mr. Lummack," asked his friend, absent mindedly.
"Yes, Mr. Lummack. You can remember his name because it rhymes with stomach."
A few weeks later his friend returned and encountered Jones on the street. "Do you know, he said, "I tried and tried but never could find your friend, Mr. Kelly."

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF MOTORDOM

By Ira L. Wood

1. Thou shalt not envy thy neighbor's car lest thine own become offended and stall with thee upon the highway.
2. Thou shalt not use profane language when changing tires, lest thy wife reprove thee and speak not unto thee for many days.
3. Thou shalt not argue with an officer, but answer him aye and nay, lest evil befall thee and cause thee the loss of many shekels.
4. Thou shalt not race a train to a crossing lest thy spirit leave thee and thy body be taken to a morgue.
5. Thou shalt not hog the road, lest he that is of quick temper bend the fenders of thy car and blacken thine eyes, and make thee the laughing stock of thy neighbor.
6. Thou shalt not speed, neither shalt thou run thy car with its cut out open, lest the minions of the law overtake thee and put thee within a calaboose, and feed thee upon bread and water for the remaining days of thy life.
7. Thou shalt not signal right and turn to the left, lest pain and suffering befall thee and thy body become a carving block for the physicians.
8. Thou shalt not draw up to a curb and toot thy horn unseemingly, neither for thy wife nor thy neighbor's wife, nor for his daughter nor the handmaiden that dwelleth within his gates, lest they that loveth peace and quiet fall upon thee and slay thee.
9. Keep thine eyes on the curves of the road, and not upon the curves of the flapper who is beside thee or who walketh upon the highway, lest a tree or a pole arise and smite thee and utterly destroy thee and thy car forever.
10. Honour thy car and its engine, and give them the care and attention that they need, that thy days in the land of motoring may be many and full of happiness. — Arizona Highways.

RECKLESS SHOOTING

The Tampa Tribune has a happy idea. It is this:

"A man who has no better sense and discretion than to use a pistol on city streets to check a motorist accused of speeding either should be removed from the force or deprived of his 'gun.'

"A policeman or other officer has no legal right to use a firearm except in defense of life or in pursuit of a person charged with a felony., To endanger the lives of all persons on the street by firing at an automobile is inexcusable."

On the whole policemen are cool and sensible when tempted to fire. But just enough of them lose their heads at the wrong time to remind us that all of them are not carefully selected nor properly trained for their duties.—Montgomery Advertiser.

PAN-AM GASOLINE - PAN-AM MOTOR OILS
TIRES AND TUBES

Longer life for your car with this

YOUR modern car will run further and perform better than any you have ever owned—if you will only recognize its special needs when you fill the gasoline and oil tanks. Remember, today's high-speed motors develop terrific heat. And high-compression cylinders must be carbon-free to perform their best. To meet these special needs, Pan-Am has developed—

CLEAN gasoline

You'll have less carbon trouble if you fill your gas tank from the familiar cream-colored Pan-Am pump. For Pan-Am gasoline is clean. Extra care in refining has removed the corrosives and carbon-forming elements found in many gasolines. And one look at the crystal-clear bowl will show you that Pan-Am gasoline is free from sediment and dirt. This clean gasoline will also give you more power . . . smoother power . . . greater mileage.

TOUGHER oil

And here is an oil that protects your motor effectively! The improved Pan-Am motor oil holds its body in spite of heat and friction. It is specially refined from paraffin-base crudes to make it a tougher oil; one that will adhere to cylinder walls and bearings, mile after mile. Yet because this tougher oil does not burn up or dilute rapidly, it actually costs you less.

No matter where you go, you take no chances at a Pan-Am pump. This CLEAN gasoline and TOUGHER oil are sold by dealers of proved reliability.

CHEVROLET MOTOR CO. OPENS NEW BUILDING

The Chevrolet Motor Company today announces the opening of a new $625,000 parts and service building in Flint, Mich. This structure marks the completion of a two million dollar parts and service program extending over the last year and a half and involving in addition the construction of four major supply depots and a complete reorganization of those at Oakland and Tarrytown.

The new Flint building is a three story steel and concrete structure with a total of 225,000 square feet of floor space. Railroad docks for 12 freight cars have been provided to expedite shipping.

Made necessary because of the great increase in Chevrolet ownership during the year, the new warehouse is one of the finest in the industry with the most modern conveyors and the latest equipment for handling parts, and promises to provide Chevrolet with the most complete facilities for the efficient handling of parts distribution.

The structure becomes the central Chevrolet warehouse, the major portion of which is devoted to the storing of parts to insure good service to Chevrolet owners. More than two million dollars worth of parts will be kept on hand at all times.

The plant is also equipped to handle the vast export business now being done by the Chevrolet Motor Co. Shipments leave the plant daily for Chevrolet foreign plants and representatives in all parts of the world.

Since the first of the year, Chevrolet has established complete warehousing operations at Des Moines, Memphis and Kansas City, with a new warehouse to be completed in Los Angeles, February 1. The four major supply depots built in the last year and a half are at Janesville, Wisc., St. Louis, Mo., Norwood, O., and Buffalo, N. Y.

A Proclamation

By The Governor

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama at its last session held at the State Capitol has ordered an election for the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set forth and has ordered that the election be held upon the second Tuesday, next after three months after the day of the final adjournment of this session of the Legislature; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature adjourned on Friday, the second day of September 1927, and Tuesday the 13th of December 1927, is the second Tuesday, next after three months from the date of the final adjournment of said Legislature; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by Proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, therefore, I, BIBB GRAVES, Governor of the State of Alabama do hereby give notice, direct, and proclaim that on Tuesday the 13th day of December 1927, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for a vote by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form and places as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, namely:

(a) The Jackson School District Number 72, of Clarke County, Alabama, and all other school districts of Clarke County which have been or which may hereafter be consolidated with said Jackson School District may levy and collect a tax not exceeding fifty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in such school districts, for the purpose 1. of paying or refunding of outstanding bonds of the town of Jackson, Clarke County, Alabama, which have been heretofore issued for the erection and equipment of the public school buildings in said town; and 2. after the payment of such bonds then for public school purposes within such districts; provided that the rate of the proposed tax and the time it is to continue shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the combined districts affected, and voted for by a majority of those voting upon such proposition at such election. (b) After such tax shall have been voted for and is being levied and collected by said Jackson School District Number 72 and the districts which have been consolidated therewith, no other district may consolidate with said Jackson District until such district so consolidating with said Jackson District shall have also voted a tax of like amount and with like expiration date, as shall have been voted by the districts which are then levying and collecting the tax provided for by paragraph (a) hereof. (c) The election for such tax shall be proposed, called, held and the vote canvassed and the results declared and the tax collected in the same manner as may now or hereafter be provided by law for the special school district taxes authorized by section 2 of the third amendment to this Constitution. (d) The tax hereby authorized shall be in addition to any and all other taxes now authorized by law, and its collection shall in no manner affect the right of the districts in which it shall be levied to share in the school monies heretofore available for such districts, nor shall any reduction in such shares be made by reason of the tax hereby authorized.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 13th day of December 1927, in each county in the State of Alabama, in a newspaper published in said County.

IN WITNESS whereof I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery on this the 4th day of October, 1927.

FOREST PRODUCTS USED IN SHOW BUSINESS

Montgomery, Ala. Nov. 22.—Forest products had their important place during the recent fair and carnival season of the south, points out the Alabama Commission of Forestry. Such obvious uses as those for wooden tent poles and stakes, seats for spectators, hawkers' booths, exhibition halls, motordromes, show vehicles and merry-go-round equipment occasion little comment.

Forest products othes than wood, however, are used quite extensively, although this may not be fully realized. Among such products is rosin. There are about one hundred and fifty known uses of this substance in the arts and industries besides those incidental to the profession of entertaining.

An observant visitor to the recent fairs, carnivals and circuses might have noted the considerable amount of rosin required in these connections. Musicians use it on their violin bows and the dainty toes of the equestrians are saved from slipping by having the horse's back well covered with powdered rosin. For this purpose the lightest colored grade is required, since this will not stain the costume and usually matches the color of the horse.

The boxer uses rosin on his shoe soles to give him sure footing in the ring, and the trapeze performer uses it on his hands to give him a firm grip as he leaps for the outstretched arms of his fellow artist. So numerous are the uses of materials and substances derived from the forest that it is very doubtful if civilization in its present form could have developed without them. In fact, so far from considering that the forest using age is behind us, it may well be believed that its greatest development lies in the future.

RHEUMATISM

May be relieved by rational treatment—it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs . . . . then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Some Kick

A crowd had gathered at a railroad track and were gaping at an automobile which had been smashed into unrecognizability by a fast train. The usual Simp was there, of course with a usual brainless question:

"Did a train hit it?" he asked.

"Nah!" retorted a disgusted bystander. "Here's how is happened. There was a wheelbarrow on the railroad track, and the auto came along and struck it. This made the wheelbarrow so darn mad that it up and kicked the auto into the weeds."

Facts that Concern your Pocketbook as well as Ours

INTERESTED customers often ask us what becomes of all the money we collect from the public for telephone service. Of course, we are glad to tell them the details of our operating expenditures.

¶ One of the big items of expense, which consumes several million dollars of the money paid us, is taxes.

¶ Out of every $100 of gross revenue received last year $9.50 was paid to the tax collectors of the cities, counties, states and federal government. This was equal to $5.50 for each telephone in service during the year.

¶ Taxes are necessary for the proper administration of our local and federal governments and every patriotic citizen expects to pay his share. But the tax bill of your telephone company has mounted to such proportions as to present a serious problem that concerns the subscriber as well as ourselves, for taxes are operating expenses and must be paid with money we collect for service.

¶ Our taxes have increased 355 per cent since 1916, while the average investment in service has increased but 153 per cent. And, as you know, the rates you are asked to pay for service have moved up but slightly as compared with the enormous increase in taxes, wages and other factors necessary for rendering high grade telephone service.

New Ford Car To Be Introduced Here Friday

Clanton Motors, Local Dealers, Will Have Formal Opening Of Modern New Home On Seventh St. and Third Ave. On The Same Day

The New Ford Car, for which the world has been waiting with more than ordinary interest, will be officially introduced to the public in Clanton on Friday of this week. Such is the gist of an announcement that has gone forth from Clanton Motors, local Ford dealers here. Mr. J. C. Bowen, local manager of Clanton Motors is extending a cordial invitation to the public to visit their place on Friday and see the great revelation which has been prepared by the wizard of the automobile business to his millions of friends and customers.

Together with the introduction of the new Ford Car, Mr. Bowen will also take great pleasure in showing the public through the new Clanton Motors building and plant, which has just been completed at great expense and is now ready for the accommodation of the motoring public. It may be said without any qualification that the new Clanton Motors plant is the pride of Clanton and all Chilton County. Its development and perfection of details is far ahead of any plant of its kind in this section of Alabama. Its ability to serve the needs of motorists is a realization of ideals of men who have kept abreast of the progress of the times, and the impression which it creates goes a long way toward stamping our city with the mark of great progress

In size, this building is perhaps the largest in the County. It is 112½ feet by 140 feet, situated on a corner lot fronting the Birmingham-Montgomery paved highway, which makes it just exactly in the right place for the convenience of the thousands of motorists who pass through Clanton every day. The large show rooms which will be utilized to display the new Ford Cars are a marvel of beauty and convenience. A vast expanse of plate glass front throws the perspective of this display right in the eyes of every passenger along the great highway. There is a seperate compartment for the display of used cars, which will be one of the big features in the future activity of Clanton Motors.

A large and commodious space in the new building has been alloted to the parts department, in which every part and accessory for all Ford cars will be at hand at all times. The repair and service department is second to none in this section of Alabama, in which only Ford cars and Ford products will be handled.

A modern and fully equipped drive-in filling station occupies the front corner of the building, most convenient for gasoline and oils, as well as jam up service on Michelin Tires, tubes and accessories.

The public of Clanton and Chilton County are especially invited to be the guests of Clanton Motors on Friday of this week, and take a look at the new building and plant.

In connection with the introduction of the New Ford Car, the following extracts are taken from a signed statement of Henry Ford, which will be of interest to our readers:

We Have Built a New Car to Meet Modern Conditions

"We realize that conditions in this country have so greatly changed in the last few years that further refinement in motor car construction is desirable. So we have built a new car. To put it simply — we have built a new and different Ford to meet new and different conditions.

"We believe the new Ford car, which will be officially announced on Friday of this week, is as great an improvement in motor car building as the model T Ford was in 1908."

Smart new low lines and beautiful colors

"The new Ford is more than a car for the requirements of today. It goes farther than that. It anticipates the needs of 1928, of 1929, and of 1930.

"The new Ford car is radically different from Model T. Yet the basic Ford principles of economy of production and quality of product have been retained. There is nothing quite like the new Ford anywhere in quality and price.

"The new Ford has exceptional beauty of line and color because beauty of line and color has come to be considered, and I think rightly, a necessity in a motor car today. Equally important is the mechanical beauty of the engine. Let us not forget this mechanical beauty when we consider the beauty of the new Ford.

"The new Ford has unusual speed for

CHILTON HIGH LOST SEASON'S LAST GAME

Butler County High Gives The Tigers Second Defeat of This Season

The Chilton High football team lost the last game of the season to Butler County High (Greenville) last Thursday afternoon on the latter's field, 12 to 0. The Butler lads got away with several long passes, and herein lies the tale of their victory. So far as going around Chilton's ends or smashing the line, there was nothing doing, but all the season the Chilton team has seemed weak against long passes, these being responsible for both defeats Chilton has suffered this season. Several times it looked like Chilton would get away for a touchdown, but could never quite do it.

Willis, at end, as well as every backfield man, was responsible for nice gains, while on defense every member of the squad came in for his share of smearing Butler's line and end plays. Chilton completed numerous short passes.

The teams were pretty evenly matched as to size, and but for the two long heaves Chilton was never in danger.

In next week's Union-Banner will be given complete information on each man who has helped to make up the Chilton squad this year, with each one's record during the season's play, together with a complete summary of the record made by the 1927 football "Tigers". These will include L. Sanford, O. Sanford, E. Bruner, Nelson, B. Sims, Willis, H. Martin, Johnston, Mims, Retherford, Broadhead, Wade, Hyman, S. Martin, Wagoner, Cox, Miner, Simpson and others.

One advantage which the old fashioned cotton stockings had over the modern silk ones is that you could get more milage out of 'em.

Mrs. Cochran was the mother of Mrs. S. D. McCary. Her husband died several years ago.

The Howard College Glee Club, boys and girls combined, will put on their season's program in Clanton at the high school auditorium on Monday night, December 5th. There are 40 people in this club, and they say that the program being put on this year is the best ever. Both the boys and girls are under the direction of Mme. Paul Delauney, who is at the head of the voice department of Howard College.

The program will be varied and will consist of musical comedy, etc. Some of the acts will be in costume. It comes here sponsored by the Baptist Womans Missionary Society.

Clanton people will remember that Chilton County has two boys in this glee club—Ralph Grant and Gresham Lowery. Let's everyone who can turn out to hear these boys and girls, as the program they put on will certainly be worthwhile.

TEACHER TRAINING COURSE AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Mr. John Maguire of the Baptist Sunday School Board, is conducting a teacher training course at Clanton Baptist Church every night this week at 7:15. There were about fifty present for the first lesson Monday night, including officers and teachers of Clanton Baptist Sunday school as well as some Sunday school workers from surrounding communities.

By putting on this course it is planned to bring Clanton Baptist Sunday School up to the standard requirements of the Sunday school board. All Sunday school workers of the county are extended an invitation to attend.

JOSA AVILA DROWNED AT MITCHELL DAM

Stepped Out of Power House Window Into Deep Water Above the Dam

Last Saturday morning, about 5 o'clock, a young man by the name of Josa Avila, a Mexican, was drowned in the deep water at Mitchell Dam. It is reported that the young man had slept Friday night in the hot air room at the dam. At 5 o'clock Saturday morning he was awakened, and for some reason—probably before he gained his poise, stepped out of the window into the deep water. From what we can learn, he never rose after he first sank. Not long after the man went down a letter came up to the top of the water at the spot where he went down. The letter was kept by Power Company officials.

Avila was originally from Tucson, Arizona, where his mother, Elvina Avila now lives. A high official of the Power Company from Birmingham came down to the Dam and made investigations, and gave instructions to Mell Martin, undertaker, to take charge of the body when it arose.

Employees of the Alabama Power Company made several drags for the body Saturday and Sunday, but all of no avail. At the time we went to press Wednesday, no report had been received of the rising of the body.

Avila had been an employee of the Power Company in some of their construction enterprises for the past 18 months, but was not working for the company at this time.

Bill Caldwell, of Pletcher

This is our regular weekly feature story about some noted Chilton County man or woman who has gone out from his or her native home and made good in the world at trade, occupation, art, or profession.

Some men are born leaders and it is through their leadership and guidance that the busiensses of today are making progress never before known in the history of the world.

The advertising business leads the list in its originality, modern ideas and progress.

Mr. Bill Caldwell, advertising sales manager for the Southern territory of the Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation, through his cleverness and originality has put over some of the cleverest and most up-to-date advertising schemes of the times it is this ability that has won for him the position he now holds.

The world knows him as Mr. Caldwell but we natives of Chilton County know him as Bill, and it is for this reason that we wish to go back to the years that we knew him just as Bill, and review his boyhood days.

Bill Caldwell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Caldwell of Pletcher was born at Pletcher in 1901. He attended school at Billingsley and Pletcher. When just a lad he began tinkering with telegraphy and at the remarkable age of 12 he worked as telegraph operator for the M. & O. Railroad Company at Pletcher. Two years later Bill became relief operator for the M. & O. and a short while after that he became agent and operator at Elrod, Alabama. Further schooling was received from Professor Askins with whom he studied one and one-half years, after which he again worked as relief operator and agent for the M. & O. At the age of 18 Bill discontinued his work with the Railroad and was employed by the Postal Telegraph Company in Birmingham. His next position was with the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, where he did clercial work. He was associated with them in Birmingham, Nashville, Columbia, S. C., and Atlanta.

It was during his stay in Atlanta that he secured his position with the Paramount Famous Lasky Players, the largest moving picture concern and owner of picture theatres in the United States. His record with them has been an interesting and enviable one. From Atlanta he was transferred to Oklahoma City and given the position as add Sales Manager. He was then promoted to Chicago and later to the home office as supervisor of advertising sales for the Southern territory which consists of Jacksonville, Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas and Memphis. He has occupied this position for two years. During the first period of the present fiscal year his district led the United States in Sales.

"The Hundred Percenter," a magazine gotten out by his company in New York says "Bill Caldwell with the energetic support of the Southerners is the big noise just now," and a circular letter to all offices from the company read "all of Bill Caldwell's districts went over the top and have been doing this constantly."

Remembering Bill as we do we are not surprised that he is able to go over the top in anything he undertakes. Energy, determination, enthusiasm and fairness are the qualities that have made him a success.

While Mr. Caldwell has always displayed rare judgment in business deals he has showed his very best judgment in the selection of the splendid little wife from Texas whom he brought to his father's home several weeks ago.

Chilton County is proud of Mr. Caldwell's record and we hope that other boys may catch the vision and make something out of their lives.

Last Chance to Qualify To Vote In Next Year

Anyone From Any Part of The County May Appear and Secure Registration Certificate

An urgent appeal is being made to the people of Chilton County to take note of the dates when the county board of registrars will be at the courthouse for the registration of all voters who are entitled to register and get on the qualified list.

These dates are as follows: December 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 9, 12, and 13. At these times any person in any part of the county may come to the courthouse and register. Any person who will become 21 years of age before the next general election in November may register on these dates. And these dates are the last chance for anyone to register before the next general election.

This is a very important matter and should have the attention of every citizen. There are many people in the county who ought to register and become qualified to vote in the elections of next year. There is to be an election on January 10 upon the 20 million state school bond issue. The regular state primary will come in May when state and county candidates for offices will be nominated. Then in November will come the general election when state and county officers will be elected.

In our county there will be elected in November a Probate Judge, Circuit Clerk, County commissioners, County treasurer; and every citizen will want to be able to take part in this choice of public servants. If you are not registered, now is the time to look after that matter.

NEW GIN WILL BE BUILT IN CLANTON

Bill and Burns Goodgame Will Install Plant in Gowan Addition

Bill and Burns Goodgame have recently returned from Atlanta, where they went to purchase equipment for the new cotton gin which they will erect in Clanton in time for operation during the next cotton season. Upon their return they issued the following statement for publication:

"We wish to say to the farmers of Chilton County that we have purchased and contracted for a fully equipped and modern cotton ginning plant which we will erect in Clanton beginning about the first of January. The gin will be located on the Gowan lots in front of the old canning factory building in Clanton. We will complete the building and installation of the machinery during next summer and the plant will be ready for operation when the next cotton season opens up.

"The machinery which we have bought is of the most up-to-date and modern design, consisting of five 80-saw gins, with all the latest improved cleaning devices. We will perfect an arrangement at the plant which will facilitate the handling of cotton and make it easy of access for farmers who patronize us.

"We shall do our very best to put in a plant that will give the best service known to the cotton ginning business. We wish to say now that we shall do our very best to serve the farmers in the right way, and we hope to be accorded a liberal patronage."

THEY WOULD STILL COMPLAIN

Those who rave about "American imperialism" in the area between the Rio Grande and the Isthmus of Panama and in particular object to intervention in Nicaraguan affairs, contend in substance that the regions and their people ought to be allowed to go to the devil in their own way and create disorder and anarchy and wallow in blood to their heart's content without interference, as far as we are concerned.

If the United States should adopt that course, eventually some European government, probably the British government, would intervene for the protection of its nationals and in the interest of civilization. In which case those who are now spending their days and nights critizing and cursing the policy of Washington would with one accord attack the government for permitting the interference and for following the condition that had caused it. — Detroit Free Press.

BIG RAID MADE BY DRY LAW OFFICERS

Value of Seized Goods Exceed Two Million Dollar Raid Made 2 Years ago

New Orleans, La., Nov. 27.—Prohibition authorities were engaged today in checking up the amount of liquor seized in a spectacular raid Saturday which carried the agents into 131 restaurants, cafes and soft drink stands and netted more than 150 arrests.

The value of the liquor seized had not been determined but officers said the raid had been more productive than one staged in August, 1925, when $2,000,000 worth of lipuor was captured.

Federal agents from five states were assembled here for the round-up and they began hostilities shortly after noon and continued until late Saturday night. Plans for the raid had been in progress for several days it is said.

O. D. Jackson, federal prohibition administrator for the Tenth District, drected the campaign over long distance telephone from Jacksonville.

So many persons were arrested that the United States Commssioner, before whom those arrested were taken, had to be moved to larger quarters.

THE UNITY B. Y. P. U. CONVENTION SUCCESS

Session Held Sunday With The Evergreen Church Near Billingsley

On Sunday, November 27, Unity Association enjoyed another B. Y. P. U. Convention. This time it was held with Evergreen church near Billingsley, Ala. The theme of the day was "Officers of Jesus."

One of the most inspiring things of the day was the two devotionals. The one in the morning was led by Leon Coggins from Indian Grave church and the one in the afternoon was led by Frances Strock of Verbena. They are both juniors, but they showed their efficiency and training in the way the services were conducted.

Following the morning devotional, Joseph Heacock, president of Western district of Alabama, discussed in an able way the directors work.

James Golson from Evergreen church then took up the discussion by telling us of the treasurer's job. James gave us a good talk.

Margarett Glenn and Bessie Mae Baker from Verbena sang us a song and of course we always enjoy our Junior's singing.

The group captain's work was then taken up by Mr. Brandon from Maplesville. He gave us some good thoughts for the group captains to follow.

We were indeed fortunate to have for the Convention sermon Dr. J. O. Colley of Troy, Superintendent of our Baptist Orphanage. He gave us a massege that did our hearts good. He used for his theme "Love" and for his scripture 1st Corinthians, 13 chapter.

After the devotional in the afternoon Miss Bessie Thrailkill from Verbena gave us a very instructive talk on the president at work.

This was followed by a splendid talk by Miss Allie Walker of Milton church on getting the Bible read.

All who know Hunter Rogers of Birmingham who is Junior Intermediate leader of the western district of Alabama know what a treat we had in having him tell of the aims of the B. Y. P. U. The conference on B. Y. P. U. was ably conducted by Joseph Heacock.

The Efficiency Banner for the association went to Milton B. Y. P. U.

All in all it was a success. Let's all meet in Clanton the fourth Sunday in February for a day even greater.

BEAT ELEVEN—NOTICE

Editor Union-Banner:

Squire John S. Dennis of Beat 11 requested me to state through your paper whether or not they had stock law in Beat Eleven.

The commissioners Court of this County counted the returns from the Stock Law election held in Beat 11 on October 25, 1927 which showed that there were thirty votes cast for Stock Law and twenty-five votes cast against Stock Law. A majority of the votes being cast for Stock Law, the said Commissioners Court, according to Section 10212 of the Code declared Stock Law in Beat Eleven.

Now as I understand the law, it is now and has been unlawful for stock to run at large in said Beat Eleven since October 27, 1927.

I am glad to state for the satisfaction of the public that the Federal and State government has declared Chilton County tick free and all cattle can be either shipped or driven out of this county.—L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate.

(a) That the municipality of the City of Gadsden, through its governing body, in addition to the taxes which it is, by any other provision of the constitution, or any amendment thereto otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the adoption of this amendment, an additional tax of not exceeding one-half of one percentum per annum in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by the govering body of said municipality and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors voting upon such proposition at an election called by the govering body of said municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum on the property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation.

(b) That the municipalities of Bridgeport, Arab, Boaz, Clanton, Albertville and Guntersville, through their respective governing bodies, in addition to the taxes which each of such municipalities is, by any other provisions of the constitution or any amendment thereto, otherwise authorized to levy and collect, may levy and collect from and after the date of the adoption of this amendment an additional tax of not exceeding one percentum per annum, in such amounts and to be devoted to such purposes as may be designated by their respective governing bodies and voted for by a majority of the qualified electors of such municipality voting upon such a proposition at an election called by the governing body of such municipality for such purpose; provided that the total taxes levied for all purposes shall not exceed one and one-half per centum in any one year on property situated therein, based on the valuation of such property as assessed for state taxation.

IS THERE NO RELIEF FROM SKIN TORTURE?

Must I Continue to Suffer the Unbearable Itching?

Are you one of those unfortunates who are going through life suffering with a skin disease, making you uncomfortable, making you less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep? You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in many forms of skin disease. Thousands of letters of gratitude prove its worth.

"I feel so happy for what S.S.S. has done for me that I want others to know about it. I suffered twenty long years from eczema. At times the itching was unbearable. During that time, I used all kinds of salves without receiving any real benefit. After taking six bottles of S.S.S., I was cured of this dreadful disease. I recommend S.S.S. to anyone suffering from eczema, because I can not praise it enough for what it has done for me." Cleophas Forte, Soldiers and Sailors Home, Quincy, Ill.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

I, J. D. "The Legislature is authorized to form or to provide for the formation of public road districts in Baldwin County, Alabama, for the establishment, purchase, construction, betterment and maintenance of public roads, bridges, causeways and ferries; and for levying and collecting annually a tax not exceeding one per centum on the value of the taxable property in such districts, in addition to all taxes that are now or may hereafter be allowed under and by the constitution of the State of Alabama, or any other amendment thereto, such tax to be applied on account of the expense of such improvements in such districts; also to provide for advancing by said County of monies for such improvements and for the return to the County from the proceeds of the said special tax of all money so advanced; also to provide for the borrowing by said County upon its credit of monies to be so advanced by bonds or warrants without a vote of the electors of said County; all indebtedness so created to be in addition to that which is now or that may hereafter be allowed to be incurred by said County under the Constitution of the State of Alabama or any other amendment thereto; provided that the rate of the tax, the time it is to continue (which shall not be for a period longer than twenty years from the date when such tax becomes effective) and the purpose to which it is to be devoted shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the district and voted for by a majority of those voting at such election; provided further that the levying of a less rate than that authorized by this amendment shall not preclude additional levies not exceeding in the aggregate one percentum on the value of the taxable property in the district; provided further that if any tax is levied for a period less than twenty years, or if a part of the period for which such tax was originally levied has elapsed, then in either such event the period during which such tax is effective may, with the approval of a majority of the qualified voters voting at an election called for the purpose of voting upon the extension of such period, be extended for a period of twenty years from the date of the election by which such period is extended; and provided further that the debt authorized hereby to be incurred by the County, together with six per cent interest per annum thereon to the date of payment, shall not exceed the estimated amount of such levied taxes computed on the basis of the last assessment of the taxable property in such districts. The powers herein conferred are in addition to and not in conflict with the powers conferred by the amendment to the Constitution proposed at the 1923 Session of the Legislature (Acts of Alabama 1923, page 593) and ratified at the General State election of November, 1924. Any laws enacted by the Alabama Legislature of 1927 shall be valid and have effect under this amendment to the same extent as if such laws had been enacted subsequent to the adoption of this amendment."

Help To Preserve

The good old American principle of Home Rule and Self Government. Vote for all local amendments December 13th.

Proposed Amendment Number 10, on the official ballot, gives the following cities the right to increase their own taxes: Gadsden, Bridgeport, Arab, Boaz, Clanton, Albertville, Guntersville, Attalla, Alexander City, Decatur, Sylacauga, Eufaula, Louisville, Union Springs, Jasper and Altoona.

The increases in taxation can not become effective without a majority vote of the people in each city.

Proposed Amendment Number 8 would give the City of Mobile the right to use money received from a special tax now authorized by the constitution for general purposes, including public improvements. The original purpose of the tax was to pay off an old debt, now greatly reduced. IT WILL NOT INCREASE MOBILE'S TAXES.

Proposed Amendment Number 4 gives the people of Jefferson County, including the citizens of Birmingham, the right to tax themselves one mill additional for the extension of their Tuberculosis Hospital and their fight against that dread disease. IT IS ENDORSED BY CITY, COUNTY, CIVIC ORGANIZATIONS AND MANY INDIVIDUALS AND CORPORATIONS THAT WILL HAVE TO PAY THE EXTRA TAX.

None of the local amendments submitted December 13th will affect any other city, county or community besides those mentioned in the amendment, itself.

Play safe and vote for all of the amendments on December 13th, 1927.

A Proclamation

By The Governor

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at its last session held at the State Capitol has ordered an election for the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set forth and has ordered that the election be held upon the second Tuesday, next after three months after the day of the final adjournment of this session of the Legislature; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature adjourned on Friday, the second day of September, 1927, and Tuesday, the 13th day of December, 1927, is the second Tuesday, next after three months from the date of the final adjournment of said Legislature; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by Proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, therefore, I, BIBB GRAVES, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct, and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 13th day of December, 1927, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for a vote by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form and places as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, namely: "The City of Mobile, Alabama, in addition to the taxes it is now or may hereafter be authorized and empowered to levy and collect, may levy and collect annually an additional tax on property situated therein for general municipal purposes, not to exceed that portion of the three fourths of one per centum authorized by Section 216 of the Constitution of Alabama to be levied to pay the debt existing on the 6th day of December, 1875, with interest thereon, or any renewal of such debt, which shall not be levied or be required to be levied and collected during such years to pay, at maturity, the said debt existing, on the 6th day of December, 1875, with interest thereon, or any renewal of such debt; provided, that the Legislature of Alabama may, from time to time, reduce the limit of Additional taxation authorized hereby."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama be given by publishing the same once a week for eight consecutive weeks prior to the 13th day of December, 1927, in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

In WITNESS whereof I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery on this the 4th day of October, 1927.

BIBB GRAVES,
Governor.

LIBERTY HILL

Rev. Paul Oden will preach here next Sunday, December, 4th, at 11 o'clock. Let's give him a large crowd.

A letter has been received from Rev. W. S. Holland, our pastor, stating that he will be here the Second Sunday and Saturday before, in December, instead of the third as he has heretofore been doing.

The Liberty Hill-Cedar Grove singing society will meet here next second Sunday afternoon. We are expecting two good quartet hands to be with us. We welcome visitors to all of our services.

Miss Clara Belle Lewis, a teacher at Mt. Pleasant, spent Thanksgiving with Miss Gracie Cooper.

Several from this place attended the singing at Cedar Grove Sunday afternoon.

Miss Lela Melton spent Sunday night with Frances Lowery.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Duke spent the day in Montgomery last Friday.

FRIENDSHIP

Four different services were held at this place last Sunday and Sunday night. There was Sunday School, preaching, singing and preaching again.

Rev. M. J. Parrish, the pastor, preached at the 11 o'clock hour. At 6 o'clock in the evening the pulpit was filled by A. D. Huett, a young man who at that time preached his second sermon. A good crowd was present and thoroughly enjoyed Mr. Huett's discourse.

Following Mr. Huett's sermon, Mr. H. F. McCary made a nice talk in which he congratulated Mr. Huett, and in behalf of the church bade him godspeed in the noble work to which Mr. Huett from all appearances must be divinely called.

The singing in the afternoon was very good. Drectors were: R. M. Robinson, G. C. Traywick, Rube Miller, Jasper Oaks, Willie Cleckler, Jesse Baker, T. E. Wyatt. A. D. Huett acted as chairman of the singing.

After preaching Sunday night, a few minutes conference was held, in which the matter of a stove for the church was discussed. A committee was appointed to look after the matter and was instructed by the church to purchase a stove and build a flue. This work will be done in the near future.

BACK BROKEN, HELPLESS, LAMBERT THANKFUL FOR HIS LIFE AND FOR HOPE

O. S. Wynn, Selma Times-Journal

If you had a broken back and your lower limbs were paralyzed; if your earning power was away below zero and if you had a wife and two small children wholly dependent on your labor, what would be your frame of mind on Thanksgiving day?

Not much to be thankful for, some one will respond.

What would life be worth? another will add.

The general opinion of any group who might face the question would be, unquestionably, that Thanksgiving under such circumstances would have nothing but an ironic edge which would strike bitterness and resentment from the heart of that person upon whom Fate had showered disaster.

That's what the average person would say, without having heard of the case of J. W. Lambert of 411 Jeff Davis Avenue, who was caught beneath a truck on August 3 and went to the hospital with a broken spine. Ten weeks in a plaster cast, and he was allowed to return to the home of his father, W. J. Lambert, on Jeff Davis avenue where the injured man sits for several hours a day in a rolling chair and looks out on the stream of traffic which rolls by his home up and down the Orrville highway.

Thankful for Life

"I'm thankful to be living and I don't get downhearted often," Lambert, a veteran of the World War said with a bright smile in response to a question as to what Thanksgiving meant to him this year.

"I've always tried to meet things as they come to me and carry my load without grumbling," he continued. "It's pretty hard though," he added thoughtfully, "to be compelled to lie about and do nothing when I've always lived and active life, and tried to discharge every obligation that I incurred."

Lambert is 36 years old but his war service in the 27th Division made a middle aged man of him.

"There's not much to say about my record," he deprecated, when urged to give an account of his life overseas. "I enlisted at Clanton in June, 1917 and went over in the early days of the fighting. I was at the Argonne, and of course I was gassed. Trouble started for me during those days of hardship, but I was discharged from a Veteran's hospital in Augusta ready to take up civil life again."

His face flushed. Memories of those days when he carried more than a man's share of the horror and ceaseless drive of the war seemed very far away. Somehow the dream had been sweetened by the months of inactivity which he had been forced to endure since his terrible accident in August.

Missed War Picture

"I'd like to have seen that picture, "The Big Parade" everybody was talking about. It must have been a true story of those days," he continued.

"Do you see that foot jumping?" he asked suddenly, pointing to his right limb which was making a spasmodic movement.

"I haven't got anything to do with that," he said with a smile. "It's part of me still, but it's no good. Every once in a while it jerks like that from the reflex action of the muscles, just like it was tired of being still so long and wanted to start off on a long march. God knows where."

Welcomes Visitors

Lambert welcomes visitors, and he and his wife and two young sons, Jackson 4, and James Marshall, one year old, are becoming noted in the neighborhood for their unfailing cheerfulness and good humor.

Jackson struck the keynote of this optimism when he greeted the Times-Journal reporter's inquiry of Mr. Lambert with the reply, "He's a whole lot little better."

Thanksgiving was a sermon in the Lambert home today. It was exemplified by the patient and the sweet cheerfulness of little Mrs. Lambert as she went about the work of nursing an invalid in the crowded quarters of the Lambert home, just as it was by the brave smile of her husband who is glad that life and hope and his family are left to him.

A southern woman has named her son "Bobby" after her hair, and we suppose if man ever comes back into his own, they may start naming children "Baldy" by the same token.—Ft. Wayne News-Sentinel.

Congressman Garner of Texas thought until the other day that the President was born in New Hampshire. But you can't blame him so much for this mistake as Vermont and New Hampshire must look like a couple of adjoining countries to a man from Texas. It must be remembered however that valuable things usually come in small packages.

SMALL-TOWN STUFF

The importance of instilling in the child's mind a spirit of loyalty to his own home town no matter how small it may be, was stressed by Dr. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnel College when he spoke recently to the Northwest Iowa Teacher's Association at Sioux City.

We are glad to see somebody swinging a cudgel in defense of the small town. It is high time. The sneers of the vaudevillians, the jokesmiths on the humorous periodicals, the Menckens and Nathans and Sinclair Lewises, the wisecrackers generally, have all of late years, had a tendency to make the professional smart alecks and urban youngster a little ashamed of his home town.

If he believes all he hears and reads, he is likely to reach maturity with a sneaking idea that there is something shameful about being born and reared in a community where citizens go to bed of nights and to church on Sunday.

So when he travels from Gopher Prairie, Minnesota, to Chicago, he is tempted to register as from Minneapolis; and when he goes on to New York, he is tempted to discard Minneapolis and say he is from Chicago. When, and if he reaches Europe, he is from New York.

But Why? Why not from Gopher Prairie, and proud of it, wherever he goes, What is there to be ashamed of in "small town stuff."

Small town stuff! The stuff of nearly all our Presidents, nearly all our Senators, and Supreme Court Justices, nearly all of our important writers and musicians, present or past. The stuff of nearly every big name in New York or Chicago today.

So why not be proud, rather than embarrassed by the fact of small town birth or rearing?—Minneapolis Journal.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Those Americans, and their name is legion, who realize the consistency of the thought and action of President Coolidge, were not surprised by the unqualified statement made by the chief executive in his Philadelphia speech in favor of the maintenance of the protective tariff. Some of his words will bear repetition once more:

"Without the influence of a protective tariff it would never have been possible for our country to reach its present stage of diversified development with its liberal rate of wages, its unprecedented distribution of wealth and its high standard of livings. If these conditions are to be maintained, that policy will have to be continued.

"In some few lines we can compete with all the world, but, in general, our agriculture and our industry are compelled to make a larger outlay to provide their establishment, pay a very much higher rate of wages and therefore find their costs of production are greater than in foreign countries.

"Any material reduction in our general tariff rates would ultimately result in a drastic deflation of agricultural and industrial values in the rate of wages and the standards of living."

Here is the positon of the protective tariff advocates in a nutshell, and in the light of present conditions it cannot be controverted by argument. Even the leading thinkers of the country realize the importance of the protective tariff to American welfare at this time. And so instead of a demand for a lower tariff we are getting from the corn belt a demand for higher tariff on certain agricultural commodities which are now suffering in demand and price through competition from abroad. A resolution adopted recently at the meeting of the American Farm Congress in Kansas City declared.

"American agriculture and livestock industries have entered an era which they must have protection in the home markets from unrestricted competition of products of countries where land is cheap, standards of living low, or labor meanly paid, if they are not to sink to the approximate level of such countries.

"For America to permit its own agriculture to fall into decadence and to depend upon importations of foodstuffs from other countries would be most unwise."

The farmer needs the tariff to protect his own products from cheap importations of foodstuffs from foreign lands and he needs protections even more to preserve for his products the great American market which is worth to him more than all the other markets of the world put together. This market can be destroyed by the shutting down of American factories and the general decline of American business that such destruction would follow the adoption of the free trade idea in America.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas recently made a tour of South and Central America during which he attended the Interparliamentary Union of Commerce at Rio Janerio. On his return he stopped at Panama and a dispatch from that City to the New York Times recently quoted his as declaring that the parley materially advanced the good-will of the Latin nations toward us, Senator is quoted as saying:

"In the earlier stages of the conference I observed evidence of a feeling among the Latin-American delegates that the United States was disposed to attempt to dominate in South American affairs. Occasionally references were made in conversations with me to the Nicaraguan situation as an indication of an aggressive spirit on the part of the United States.

"But I am happy to say that the whole trend of the conference was toward the promotion of good-will and mutual understanding, so we who attended on behalf of the United States found ourselves in substantial accord with the delegates representing the South and Central American States in the conference respecting all important questions."

The experience of Senator Robinson, a distinguished American himself, only bears out the assertion frequently made, that the best way to bring about closer relations between the United States and Latin America is to get the people of the northern and southern hemispheres better acquainted. Of course we know that the average American has no idea of attempting any imperialistic domination of South America. But our Latin brethren have heard otherwise so much, not only from some of their own politicians but from European interests and so-called liberals in the Unitd States that are easily misled. Let us try to get better acquainted with Latin-America both through the press and by personal contact.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of the election upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of Alabama be given by publishing the same once a week for eight successive weeks prior to the 13th day of December 1927, in each county in the State of Alabama, in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS whereof I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery on this the 4th day of October, 1927.

Who's Who In Clanton

NAPOLEON S. JOHNSON

For the last few weeks we have written a regular story every week concerning some man or woman of Chilton County who has gone out into the world and made good at arts, trades and professions. These little stories have been greeted with a happy response of interest and approval from our readers, for which we are gratfied.

And while it is true that many of our people have gone out into the world and have by their achievements done credit to themselves and their native home, yet enough able men and women have kept the home fires burning to make Clanton one of the best towns in the State.

We are pleased to reflect upon the steady and permanent growth of our little city and our splendid county; not a spasmodic growth by leaps and bounds as has marked the rise and fall of many places, but a steady, normal, and permanent growth that will "stay put".

From a small country village cross-roads Clanton has grown to be an up-to-date modern little city with modern business buildings, paved streets, attractive nomes, handsome churches and sch—(Beg pardon, please. We were about to add schools; but when we thought of that miserable mess at the Clanton Grammar school building, our heart failed us.) Anyway, we have a good town, and we will soon have a better one by the erection of a Grammar School building that will be the pride and glory of us all.

Strangers have often remarked that in the business district of Clanton there is an atmosphere of hustle and bustle comparable to that of a city. Men and women who have become settled down and permanent fixtures in the life of Clanton have made this progress possible; and we like to think about them in the light of the things which their minds and resources have contributed to this depelopment.

One of the men to whom we might point as a potent factor in the progress of Clanton is Dr. Napoleon S. Johnson, one of our most loyal and public-spirited citizens. No introduction for Doctor Johnson is needed at our hands. He is perhaps known and loved by as many people in Chilton County as any other person you could name.

He was born in Clanton on August 13, 1883, the son of Dr. J. S. Johnson and Sallie Strock Johnson. His early schooling was at the McMorries Academy in Clanton, which institution furnishes the happy recollection of school days for many of our now prominent and leading men and women. In 1897 and 1898 he attended Randolph-Macon Academy, going from there to the College of Surgeons at Baltimore, Maryland. The next year he attended the medical school of the University of Alabama, graduating at Mobile in 1901.

Dr. Johnson began practicing medicine at Clanton at the remarkable age of 18 years. In 1906 he was commissioned local surgeon for the L. & N. Railroad. A number of post graduate courses at different times has kept him abreast of the times in the practice and science of medicine.

As a local surgeon for Alabama Power Company, the excellent service and ability of Doctor Johnson has received recognition among the high authorities of his profession in that organization.

Besides being a splendid doctor, this man is a worthy citizen. He believes in Clanton and devotes much of his conscientious thought and energy to the things which concern the progress and permanence of the life of our community. He is vice-president and director of the Peoples Savings Bank, has served as city councilman, and has always taken an interest actively in every movement for the progress of the city or county.

The homes of Clanton are the blocks out of which the fine structure of our citizenship and community are builded. It may be truly said that in this respect the home of Dr. Napoleon Johnson represents one of the most beautiful units of our civic structure. His noble wife and sweet, congenial children are a glory which any man might be proud to contribute as a part in the building of social prestige for his community.

KNOCKING THE KNOCKERS

Mayor William Hale Thompson has been lampooned from one end of the country to the other because of his protest against the Anglicizing of American school texts. Some phases of his agitation have been, to say the least, unfortunate, but there is a very substantial grain of truth in his charges, and his position is sounder from an American standpoint than that of the more violent of his critics. His widely advertised protest against the de-Americanizing of school texts will be of great value if it tends only to cause closer scrutiny of unwholesome material injected into history texts used in public schools and colleges. The use of history texts for propaganda purposes of any sort is reprehensible. When it can be shown that it is of foreign inspiration it is despicable. One of the purposes of maintaining a public school system is to rear a generation which has a comprehension and appreciation of our form of government. For this purpose only the real record of American origin and achievement is necessary.

That the government of Great Britain has any conscious purpose to utilize historical teaching in the United States to accomplish its own ambitions, is improbable. Dean Inge and others declare that hatred of Great Britain in inculcated by references in our text books to the revolutionary War. Out of that feeling has doubtless grown a movement to overcome this supposed tendency. It is not true, however, that hatred for Great Britain arises out of the teachings of those facts of our early history which are an isdisputable part of the national record. These events are too far away to have great present day influence in creating animosity. Nor is it true that any good American wishes to join subversive forces in stirring up unnecessary antagonism between non-communist nations, as some radicals are trying to do in the interests of soviet Russia.

Men with an ambition for a reputation as scholars, however, are in many cases more sensitive to European opinion than to American tradition. Many of them are self-constituted provincials. They have a national inferiority complex. Europe was so long the headquarters for culture that they cannot comprehend the fact that America has a unique culture and spirit which is better with our preserving and developing. These writers see American history only as a new chapter in European history. They consider it a sign of breadth to accept the European attitude toward affairs American. Most of them lack the imagination to understand that our history is something "new and strang," and that the world historian of the future will treat of it as the most important episode in modern history. Many European scholars already understand this. The American provincial cannot.

The tendency to belittle American traditions and historic characters proceeds more from this imitative provincial spirit than from foreign inspiration. It is doubtless flattered and encouraged by foreign notice. A witness before the Thompson hearing in Chicago told how a hundred American servants, including the authors of several historical school texts used in the United States were wined and dined so extensively in London at government expense that complaint was made of the cost in Parliament. Such appeals to the vanity of our self-styled intelligentsia, including the decorations being bestowed by the ship-load by more than one European government, doubtless has something to do with their slant on things.

But much of this effort to destroy "hero worship" and American nationalism proceeds from another source. Many of these cloistered authors believe they have grown too large to be patriotic. Indeed they regard patriotism as a vulgar, outgrown sentiment. "It requires a certain greatness of Soul," says Joseph Conrad, "to interpret patriotism worthily, and also a sincerity of feeling denied to the vulgar refinement of modern thought which cannot understand the august simplicity of a sentiment proceeding from the very nature of thinking men."

THE CLANTON MODEL SHOPPE

NEXT DOOR TO HILL GROCERY COMPANY "ON THE HIGHWAY" CLANTON, ALABAMA

New Ford Car Will Be Introduced Here Friday

a low-price car because present-day conditions require unusual speed.

"The world moves more quickly than it used to. There are only so many hours in the day and there is much to be done.

"Fifty and sixty miles an hour are desired today where thirty and forty would have satisfied in 1908. So we are giving you this new speed.

"The new Ford will ride comfortably at fifty and sixty miles an hour. It has actually done sixty-five miles an hour in road tests.

"Since modern conditions demand more speed, they also demand better brakes to balance this speed. So we are giving you four wheel brakes in the new Ford.

"The new Ford will be quiet and smooth-runing at all speeds and you will find it even easier to handle in traffic than the old Model T Ford.

"The new Ford has durability because durability is the very heart of motor car value. The Ford car has always been known as a car that will take you there and bring you back. The new Ford will not only do that, but it will do it in good style. You will be proud of the new Ford.

"THIS new Ford car has not been planned and made in a day. Our engineers began work on it several years ago and it has been in my mind much longer than that. We make automobiles quickly when we get in production But we take a long time planning them. Nothing can hurry us in that. We spent twelve years in perfecting our former Model T car before we offered it to the public. It is not conceivable that we should have put this new Ford car on the market until we were sure that it was mechanically correct in every detail.

"Every part of it has been tested and retested. There is no guessing as to whether it will be a successful model. It has to be. There is no way it can escape being so, for it represents the sum total of all we have learned about motor car building in the making of 15,000,000 automobiles.

The new Ford will sell at a low price

"The price of the new Ford is low in accordance with the established Ford policy. I hold that it is better to sell a large number of cars at a reasonably small margin of profit than to sell a few cars at a large margin of profit.

"We never forget that people who buy Ford cars are the people who helped to make this business big. It has always been our policy to share our profits with our customers. In one year our profits were so much larger than we expected that we voluntarily returned $50 to each purchaser of a car. We could never have done that if this business had been conducted for the sole benefit of stockholders rather than to render service to the public.

"No other automobile can duplicate the new Ford price because no other manufacturer does business the way we do.

We make our own steel—we make our own glass—we mine our own coal—we make virtually every part used in the Ford car. But we do not charge a profit on any of these items or from these operations. We would not be playing fair with the public if we did so. Our only business is the automobile business. Our only profit is on the automobile we sell.

"WE ARE able to sell this new Ford car at a low price because we have found new ways to give you greater value without a great incrase in our own costs.

"We did not set out to make a new car to sell at such-and-such a figure. We decided on the kind of car we wanted to make and then found ways to produce it at a low price.

"The new Ford car, as I have said, will be officially announced on Friday of this week. In appearance, in performance, in comfort, in safety, in all that goes to make a good car, it will bear out everything I have said here. We consider it our most important contribution thus far to the progress of the motor industry, to the prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

Messrs. Tip Popwell, Chester Mims and Thomas Sims spent Thursday in Greenville.

WHEREAS, the Legislature adjourned on Friday, the second day of September 1927, and Tuesday the 13th of December 1927, is the second Tuesday, next after three months from the date of the final adjournment of said Legislature; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by Proclamation of the Governor;

NOW, therefore, I, BIBB GRAVES, Governor of the State of Alabama do hereby give notice, direct, and proclaim that on Tuesday the 13th day of December 1927, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for a vote by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form and places as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, namely:

(b) After such tax shall have been voted for and is being levied and collected by said Jackson School District Number 72 and the districts which have been consolidated therewith, no other district may consolidate with said Jackson District until such district so consolidating with said Jackson District shall have also voted a tax of like amount and with like expiration date, as shall have been voted by the districts which are then levying and collecting the tax provided for by paragraph (a) hereof. Mr. J. J. Mims, the popular mail carrier on Clanton Route 5, took a few days off last week and went to South Alabama on a deer hunt. He did not bring back the buck's horns as he fondly hoped to do. But as evidence of his adventure he did bring back a kumquat. You should get him to tell you the thrilling story of how he encountered, subdued and captured this strange and interesting little specimen of pomology.

35 DEER KILLED IN ONE DAY

Percy Pitts Tells Story of Big Deer Hunt in Sumter County Last Week

We have had some stories told through the Union-Banner recently about deer hunts. Some of the hunters were fortunate enough to kill a deer, and some had only to console themselves with the fact that they went deer hunting. But Hon. Percy Pitts now comes forward with the story of a real deer hunt, in which 35 bucks were killed in one day. The following is the interesting statement of Mr. Pitts:

"I had the pleasure of attending the annual deer hunt given by Major E. F. Allison, on his reservation in Sumter County last week. I left here in my car Monday morning and drove about 140 miles to Bellamy, a saw mill town in Sumter County. About 250 men met there at 7:30 on Tuesday, November 22. From there the men with about 100 dogs entrained for the trip to the camp, "Buckhorn." Before taking tram each man of the party who had a gun was given a piece of paper with the name of the man in whose drive he was to be stationed, also the number of his stand. There were about four different drives and about 40 stands in each drive. Each drive got off the train at different stops in the forest and was met by the head huntsman on horseback, who escorted each of the 40 men to stands about 400 yards apart. Marks on the trees designated the stands, which were in consecutive and regular order along an old blind road through the forest.

"After all had reached their stand about eleven o'clock, men with the dogs began to drive the deer, and you could hear dogs and the sound of guns resounding throughout the forest until about 2:30 in the afternoon. At this time men came around to each stand and escorted the hunters back to camp. When we arrived at camp Buckhorn, the total was taken of the hunt, and it was found that 35 bucks had been killed. Another mighty interesting feature of our return to the camp was the wonderful barbecue that had been prepared and was awaiting our hungry stomachs.

"Major Allison has a large forest reservation which covers about 100,000 acres. He is preserving his timber by the employment of forest rangers; also Preserving the wonderful game supply. He only has one day's hunt each year for himself and his guests, and nothing is shot at except buck deer. All doe and young ones could pass by the stands unharmed; and incidentally they were plentiful. I was advised that he estimates upon his deer reservation alone he has something like 2,500 head of deer.

"After getting into camp the deer were butchered by negroes, and divided among the guests. The hides and heads were given to those who were fortunate in killing one. It was a wonderful day of sport, and I thoroughly enjoyed it. About one-third of the guests were members of the 1927 legislature, and naturally I enjoyed again the association with them.

"The speaker of the house, Hon. J. Lee Long, acted as toastmaster at the barbecue.

"Major Allison, president of Allison Lumber Company, is setting a wonderful example for all good sportsmen in his preservation of wild life in Alabama. As long as he conducts his reservation as he has in the past, the future generations to come will have game in abundance in sumter county. I. T. Quinn, State Game and Fish Commissioner, stated that there is more deer on the Allison reservation than any other in the United States."

OAK HILL

The United singing society met in regular session here Sunday afternoon with a large attendance. The society was called to order and the huge class arranged by the newly elected president, Prof. Akins Collins who was assisted by ex-presidents, A. H. and E. L. Glasscock. Directors for the afternoon in addition to the societies regular directors were Professors Herbert Lowery, G. C. Powell, W. G. Culp and Olin Williams. Those who accompanied the directors at the organ were Misses Genie Collins, Jewell Bean, Emma Campbell and Mrs. Ester Willis.

The B. E. C. quartet failed to make good their promise, but every one seemed satisfied and well pleased with their trip up here. This was evidenced by the good order and attention throughout the entire two hours of almost continuous singing. After announcing that the society would meet at the Baptist church at Thorsby next Sunday afternoon, the session was closed with prayer thus ending one of the best singings in the history of the society.

At 7:00 p. m. a beautiful Thanksgiving program was rendered by the Junior League with Miss Alice Williams in charge. After which our pastor, Rev. F. M. Weston, delivered his last sermon and made his farewell address this conference year.

Remember the Sunday school here every Sunday at 10 o'clock and the Prayer League Program at night. All denominations are invited to come and worship with us at all times.

BUICK DEALER MAKES TRIP BY AIRPLANE

Flint, Mich., Dec. 1.—Rejecting as too slow the special train which brought his fellow dealers from the Oklahoma City Buick Branch territory at Flint recently, William A. Burke, Buick dealer of Okmulgee, Okla., hopped off in his fast biplane and beat the crowd here.

Burke has been a flyer for about 12 years. He makes constant use of his plane in his business as a Buick dealer. The trip to Flint was made in two stages, a friend accompanying Burke to Chicago, from which point Burke came on alone.

After touring the Buick factory with S. S. Lindsey, Oklahoma City Buick Branch manager, and other Oklahoma territory dealers, Burke flew to the General Motors Proving Ground near Milford, where the visitors spent a whole day inspecting the facilities of that institution. He then departed for home via air, with a stop over in Detroit.

Burke's plane is a Travel Air, and equipped with Wright Whirlwind motor. It is capable, Burke said, of 160 miles an hour. Even without pushing it to capacity, the 1200-mile round trip to Flint was accomplished in a fraction of the time required on the ground, enabling Burke to reach home and resume business a full day ahead of his companions.

Mrs. Jackson returned to her home in Evergreen Monday after an enjoyable visit ti her mother, Mrs. Mullins.

USE WOOD AND GROW TREES

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 28.—Use timber and grow forests is a slogan that is becoming widely used in various parts of the country. To many, this seems somewhat contradictory, points out the Alabama Commission of Forestry, but nevertheless it is held that the two proposals are actually in harmony.

In order to justify people in producing any commodity it must have a value. In most cases this is derived from the kind and extent of uses to which the thing or material is put. Extensve use must be made of wood or timber, therefore, in order to encourage landowners to grow forests. The fact that timber is being used up approximately four or five times faster than it is being grown shows that it possesses sufficient value to warrant making plans for its future production.

The cutting of mature trees from the forest is one of the measures that aids the development of the younger growth. Thus, anomalous as it may at first appear, cutting timber is one of the ways of growing timber. However, care must be taken that timber be not cut prematurely. In fact, the latter is one of the principal evils affecting the practice of forestry. Trees, like other crops, should be cut only when they are ripe, or when their removal is necessary to aid the remaining growth.

County Farm Agent's Notes

CHEESE PLANTS ARE NOW COMING TO THE SOUTH

Auburn, Ala., November 28.—In the future the people of Alabama will eat cheese manufactured within the state. The Kraft Cheese Company has selected Selma for Southern headquarters and the A. H. Barber Cheese Company has elected Columbus, Mississippi. Each will operate in Alabama; and each will establish and operate small cheese plants at various points in Alabama, Mississippi, and other states in the South.

These are two of the largest cheese manufacturing companies in the United States and their advent into the South is another fine endorsement of dairy developments and opportunities, animal husbandmen of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn declare.

As late as two months ago not one of the large cheese concerns was known to be planning an entrance into the southern field except to sell cheese manufactured elsewhere. It is known now that they have been watching dairy developments here for several years; and that they decided on this as a logical time to extend manufacturing to this section.

If the manufacturing end of the business in the South follows the example of other sections small plants will be located wherever the milk supply and other conditions are favorable. It is not necessary to locate them on railroads or in towns. Nearness to farmers who make milk is important for conveniences in delivery and in handling the by-products.

At any rate, another new outlet is being provided for southern dairy products. The consumption of cheese is increasing and southern dairymen are in position to take advantage of new opportunities.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

Fruit trees need spraying now.

Milk is 87 per cent water, but it's one of the best foods.

The work of any successful farmer is worth a careful study.

A farm implement in the shelter is worth two in the storms.

Try a high stool for many of the kitchen jobs at which you have been used to standing.

Most farm troubles are due to faults, mistakes or failures of the farmer himself.

There is little hope for the farmer who allows his farm to wash away when he could prevent it with terraces.

Alabama is the leading state when scored on a basis of efficiency in using commercial fertilizer, due to experimental work.

Farming has made many changes in the last half century and fully as many changes are in sight for the next quarter of a century.

Selma, Alabama, has been made Southern headquarters for the Kraft Cheese Company which is one of the largest in the United States.

The farmer who is too lazy or too indifferent to duty to spray his fruit trees has no right to complain if insects and diseases ruin his fruit.

TIMELY FARM FACTS

Alabama is the third state in cotton production this year.

Beef cattle prices are expected to remain high for several years.

A hen which spends the night in a tree is not likely to lay during the day.

Paint improves the appearance and adds to the value of any building.

Wholesale prices of pork products are considerably lower than a year ago.

A gullied field is a liability to any farm. Terraces will make it an asset.

Four billion pounds more milk was produced in the United States during 1926 than in 1925.

The products of agriculture constitute nearly half of the value of the exports of the United States.

In farm production, as in other production, the most successful producer is he who can convert waste and by-products into cash.

The farmer who has forty acres in cotton and makes one bale to the acre makes twice as much as the farmer who has twenty acres and makes one bale to the acre.

A farm machine that stands out all winter not only depreciates in value, but requires a lot of extra time and patience to get it ready to run when it is needed again.

HOGS AT 7 CENTS PER POUND IN ALABAMA

Auburn, Ala., Nov. 28.—Producing pork at 7 cents per pound in Alabama works out well in practice. F. W. Burns, extension animal husbandman at Auburn, says that for all litters fed by the ton-litter method in Alabama the average feed cost was slightly below $7.00 per 100 pounds gain. Where forage crops were used in addition to the grain mixture the cost was nearer $6.00 per 100 pounds, or 6 cents per lb.

These litters were fed throughout the state, each section being represented. Ton-litter work in Alabama started two years ago and 90 per cent of the litters fed this way were fed the Auburn ration, consisting of 60 pounds corn, 32 pounds wheat shorts, and 8 pounds tankage, together with a mineral mixture of equal parts of charcoal, lime, and salt kept before them continuously.

All the litters that have made the required ton of pork in 180 days were sired by a purebred boar, Mr. Burns said. And those produced at the lowest had forage crops or green feed, such as oats and vetch, clover or sorghum. Good pastures also entered into the cost, making it lower.

As a result of this ton-litter work, Mr. Burns said that farmers in every section of the state can raise hogs at a profit. At present prices there is a small profit on good hogs. He recommends that hogs be kept as part of a system of general farming; and that they be kept when prices are low as well as when prices are high, although some adjustments may be necessary to meet price changes.

NEWS IN BRIEF

At the end of 1926 there were 1,694 motor vehicles in Great Britain, or more than six times the number in 1919 immediately following the War.

A London dispatch to the press of November 17 states that a bill was introduced November 16 in the House of Commons to allow the Rubber Research Association to collect 15,000 pounds annually from Rubber manufacturers in Britain and Northern Ireland for five years after the expiration of the Government grant in 1929.

"The United States ought to spend one million or better, two million dollars, out of its annual income of ninety million dollars in foreign countries, to permit these countries to purchase American produce in return and to enable them to meet their obligations to this country for the capital supplied them since the Warf," said Sir George Parish, a British Economist.

Hundreds of wild donkeys roving about the vicinty of Price, Utah, are presenting a bothersome problem to that community, says a dispatch to the Salt Lake Tribune. The diminutive animals originally imported for mining prospectors, are eating all the grass and in dry years devour the bark off the big trees. The small beasts have multiplied rapidly since the first few were brought into the region in 1905.

President Coolidge is reported to be opposed to revision of the tariff as a reputed aid to farmers. He believes that such a course would eliminate the farmers home markets and that the safe policy to apply to the agricultural situation is for the government to aid in the stabilizing of prices and in extension of cooperative marketing.

Thomas D. Campbell, of Hardin, Montana, says that farming is the most legitimate occupation in the United States when conducted by improved machinery over a period of ten years. Mr. Campbell is one of the largest grain growers in the world, producing 500,000 bushels in 1926.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. NORTON, Manager).

It was our privilege recently to inspect the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Akins Collins on Jones Street opposite the Lutheran church. Outside it has a neat and comfortable appearance which the inside does not belie. Since the building is entirely new, there is still much to be done to make the grounds about comely and attractive. A good start in this direction has been made by selecting the site where trees are already well grown, affording shade for the spacious front porch. One enters directly into a large well lighted living room where a neat and attractive fireplace gives an air of comfort. From this we step into a well appointed dining room, thence through one door we enter a lovely bedroom, done in white enamel and contrasting dark trimmings. Stepping back to the dining room we pass by a double swing door to the kitchen, well equipped with modern conveniences. Range, water heater, sink and table are all ready for business. Leaving the kitchen by a short hall we pass a door leading to a concrete cellar. Next comes a splendid bath room with modern fixtures all complete. Another bedroom of large size and a sleeping porch complete the apartments, save closets always found in a well arranged house. The floors are all oiled and everything spick and span. The furnishings show good taste and bespeak comfort. With this to start with, we are reminded of a poem by Edgar A. Guest, entitled "It takes a heap of living in a house to make a home."

As a "Housewarming Party" many ladies of Thorsby attended a miscellaneous shower tendered to Mrs. Collins by Mesdames Ernie and Walter Littleton. The bride received many beautiful and useful presents. A social time was enjoyed and near its close refreshments were served to about forty guests. We were shown a clipping from a paper published at the home town of the bride which describes in detail the beautiful Wedding, such as is seldom seen in rural sections of the South.

The Baptist are having a week of prayer, holding meeting at the church every evening at seven o'clock. Everyone invited.

The Y. W. A. met with Mrs. Ben Franklin Tuesday afternoon. After the program refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Robinson of Birmingham spent Sunday with Mrs. S. P. Franklin.

The Baptist church building committee met Tuesday night, too late for their findings to be reported this week.

The Quilting club met with Mrs. Spivey Monday and made two quilts.

Rev. J. E. Each went to his appointment at Union Church east of Mountain Creek Sunday afternoon, he was accompanied by Robert Dickson.

Messrs. Fred Howard, J. D. Cleckler, Arthur Honeycutt and John Childress returned from a fishing trip to Foley, Alabama. They brought home some fish but report conditions unfavorable now. They expect to go again when the weather is colder, and the fish are "Mad." A term used that means hungry.

There will be English services at the Lutheran church next Sunday morning at the usual hour.

The monthly song service at the Congregational church after Christian Endeavor about 7:15 next Sunday night.

Mr. Chas. S. Howard, with Lloyd and Ella, spent several days in St. Elmo, Alabama last week visiting Mrs. Howrd's people. Mrs. Howard found her father slowly improving from a serious illness.

Next Sunday is Golden Rule Sunday, when people are supposed to deny themselves the luxuries of the usual Sunday dinner, eat only a magre meal and contribute at least the difference in cost to The Near East Relief, an American organization who are caring for and training to be self-supporting, 33,000 children of refuges or killed in massacres and expulsion from their homes in Armenia by the Turks. Mr. Butler will be glad to receive such contributions and add it to our Thanksgiving Union Service offering, before sending it to headquarters in New York.

Thorsby Institute has secured from an eastern manufacturer a beautiful 1928 calendar, embellished with a fine picture of Helen Jenkins Hall, and daintily trimmed in blue and gold, the school colors. These calendars will be sold at 20c each, and will make a delightful sovenir to send to friends interested in the school. They can be obtained at the school office.

Mr. and Mrs. Yancey M. Kelley and little daughter of Birmingham, Rev. and Mrs. Butler and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Norton of Thorsby were guests at Thorsby Institute Thanksgiving dinner.

Recent visitors at Thorsby Institute were Misses Evelyn Capps and Eunice Murphy of Capps, Alabama, Coy Kirkland from Headland, and Luther Chancey from Newville.

Thorsby Institute will hold its Christmas program of the Literary Society on the night of December 17. An attractive program has been planned. This will be an open program to which the regular admission of ten cents will be charged.

On December 19 the Evelyn Burt Concert Party will give the second number of the Lyceum course. They come highly recommended. Songs, reading, and playlets will be given in Spanish, Dutch and Chinese costumes. For those who have not season tickets admission will be 50c for adults and 35c for school folks.

Supt. Lawrence Explains Public School Finances

What Has The Schools of Chilton County Lost By Not Having One Mill Tax?

"There is no use crying over spilt milk", but sometimes we can hardly help it. That is what I have been doing in some sense since receiving a letter from the Department of Education, dated Oct. 18. It has been on my desk since that date and I have been wondering if it would not be wise to present it to the people of Chilton County in order that we may all understand the difficulty and embarassment under which the County Board of Education is laboring. The letter referred to is as follows:

Montgomery, Ala.,
October 18, 1927.

To County Supts. of Education:

"I am writing to give you information concerning the action of the State Board of Education at its meeting October 6th and 7th, in relation to the various appropriations made by the recent Legislature for the support and maintenance of the public schools.

Equalization Fund

The tentative salary schedule is the same that has been adopted by this office for a number of years.

Value of teacher units used in computing cost of minimum program: Elementary Teacher, White $750.00, Negro $375.00; High school teacher, White $1400.00, Negro $700.00; Elementary principal white $1800.00; negro $900.00; Helping teacher (Supervisor) white, $2,400, negro, $1,200; High school principal, white, $3,000, negro, $1,500;Vocational agriculture, white, $3,000, negro, $1,500.

The apportionment of the Equalization Fund to any County will be made on the salary schedule effective in that county, that is, on the average teacher unit cost at the several levels, and in an amount required to give a seven months' term; where the salary levels in the county are lower than the general average for the State the additional fund up to the salary unit level approved by the State Board of Education will be granted to the county, provided such additional apportionment be used to lengthen the school term beyond the minimum of seven months required by law."

We have employed in the schools of Chilton County: White, 3 High school principals, 29 high school teachers; 1 elementary principal; 118 elementary teachers; 3 vocational teachers. Negro, 1 vocational teacher, 2 high school teachers, 28 elementary teachers.

I would like for every citizen who reads this to figure for himself or herself the amount of money that would be apportioned to us under this schedule. In no instance is the salary of teachers employed in Chilton County equal to that allowed by the State but if you will notice the letter from the Department of Education you will see that this extra amount could be used to lengthen the school term beyond the 7-months minimum set by the Equalization bill.

For the year 1926-27 we shared in the Emergency Equalization Fund provided by the recent Legislature. It would, therefore, be unfair and inaccurate to figure on the basis of appropriations made in that year. Hence I am taking the next year to it in which we did not have an equalization fund in that year (1925-26) we received from the State and County funds $128,030.12. We are therefore losing around $35,000 because we failed to qualify for participation in the Equalization Fund. This could have been done by voting the one mill county school tax. We would have easily had 8 months school under the present appropriations if we had the Equalization we would have been guaranteed seven months but as it is we are doing our best to have six.

It is my wish to do in the schools of the county those things which mean better schools. I believe that most of the people of the county are with me in that desire. I know that when the boys and girls of Chilton County are not given equal chances with those in other counties that our children, when they become men and women, must stand back and see the young men and women of other counties take the choice places while they (our children) take secondary places. Can anyone who loves the children of the county feel otherwise than hurt to see such happenning? I am for the children and my life is wrapped up in them. When they are hurt I may not be hurt materially but the heart that beats within my breast aches.

Trusting that I may see the day when our eyes will be open to the possibilities of Chilton County and the needs of our children and every man and woman of it rise above every selfish desire and prejudice and do those things for our children that will enable them to be worth most to themselves and to the county in which they live. I am yours for a better school system.

B. LAWRENCE,
County Supt. Education.

J. LEE SMITH WHOLESALE CO. TO HAVE NEW HOME

Work is going forward preparatory to the building of the new home of J. Lee Smith's wholesale grocery business. The new building will be of brick, 50 feet by 130 feet in size, and is to be of the most up-to-date building plans for buildings of this kind; the structure will cost approximately $7,000. The location is the lot between the homes of J. Lee Smith and Dr. J. P. Hayes on Sixth Street, just below the post office, on the new highway.

Mr. Smith's volume of business has increased so that his present location is no longer adequate, hence the new building. Mr. Smith is one of the most progressive and wide-awake business men in Clanton, and this new investment is proof of his belief in the future of Clanton and surrounding country.

Mr. Smith says:

"Our business has grown by leaps and bounds, and our present quarters are no longer sufficient, so we are building, preparing for growth which we are confident will be ours in years to come. We expect to have one of the best stocked wholesale houses in central Alabama, and with the service we expect to give, we hope and expect to have an establishment of which Clanton and Chilton County will be justly proud."

MRS. WILLIAM SPLAWN DIED MONDAY

Mrs. William Splawn, formerly of Clanton, and known and loved by a host of friends here passed from her earthly home at Leeds, Ala. Tuesday, November 22nd after a long and painful illners. Her death was a great shock to her friends and loved ones because she appeared to be so much improved recently.

The funeral was conducted at Leeds by the local Presbyterian minister of whose church Mrs. Splawn was a most faithful and devoted member. After the services in Leeds the remains were taken to Birmingham for interment in Elmwood cemetery. Awaiting the arrival of the body were a number of Mrs. Splawn's friends from Clanton.

In addition to the large number of friends and admirers Mrs. Splawn left behind to mourn her passing her two children, Ruth and William Jr., her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Oglesby of Centreville, a brother, Bob Oglsby, and three sisters, one of whom lives in Bessemer and two in Centreville, Alabama.

Mrs. Splawn's host of friends in Clanton will be agreed that one could hardly name a more beautiful and unselfish character than she proved herself to be in all her life's relations. Not only the Presbyterian church, but Christianity in general has lost much by the passing of this noble woman. Her influence for good will never die. May we emulate her good example in life and be prepared to go as she has gone to a happy reward in heaven.

REPUBLICANS TO HOLD MEET IN BIRMINGHAM

State Committee To Select State Delegates

To arrange the manner in which delegates will be selected in the national Republican convention in 1928, a meeting in Birmingham of the Republican state executive committee on or near December 20, will be held, according to O. D. Street, national Republican executive committeeman in Alabama.

Street announced also that the national executive committee will meet in Washington, D. C., December 6, to consider invitations from various cities for the national Republican convention. U. S. District Attorney, C. B. Kennamer, will attend the meeting in the place of Street, who is scheduled to take part in a Masonic meeting in Montgomery at that time.

Street said that among the possible, convention cities are, Detroit, San Francisco and Denver.

Before Congress convened the House ways and means committee recommended a total tax reduction of $250,000,000, this being $25,000,000 more than Secretary Mellon suggested.

WHITE'S GARAGE TO MOVE TO THE HIGHWAY

J. C. Jones is remodeling and improving the old Pinckard warehouse building on the highway below Dief's Service Station. When the work is completed and the building is ready it will be occupied by White's Garage, which will be moved from its present location on the corner of Sixth Street and First Avenue. Mr. White states that he hopes to get moved by the 15th of this month.

The Robinson Machine Shop, that is located in the building with White's Garage, will remain at the same place, according to Doctor Robinson, and will occupy the entire building with an enlarged capacity for special machine and foundry work.

The new place to be occupied by White's Garage will be arranged and fixed up to present a neat and attractive appearance.

OTTO MILLER WINS HONOR AT AUBURN

Highest Distinction in Class Is Given to Clanton Boy at Alabama Polytechnic Institute

Following is a part of an article which appeared in The Birmingham News of Friday, December 2:

"Auburn, Ala., Dec. 2—The names of students at Alabama Polytechnic Institute who won highest distinction and distinction by making the best records in their studies for the year 1926-1927 have just been announced by Prof. B. L. Shi, registrar.

"Two members of the junior class last year, three of the sophomore, and six members of the freshman class attained highest distinction. Thirty juniors, twenty sophomores, and thirty freshmen made distinction.

"To make highest distinction a student's quality points must amount to 90 per cent of the possible number; to make distinction a student must acquire 75 per cent of his possible points.

"Junior Class—Highest Distinction—Floyd Otto Miller, electrical engineering, Clanton; Hewitt Artman Snow, electrical engineering, Birmingham."

A long list of students who made highest distinction and distinction in the different grades followed, but the part which interests Clanton people, and of which they may feel justly proud, is the naming of Floyd Otto Miller at the head of the list at Aubun last year.

Otto is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Miller of Clanton, and was born near Clanton April 5, 1908. He received his grammar school education in the Clanton Grammar School, after which he attended Chilton County High School where he finished in May, 1924, under Prof. S. E. Alverson. He has always been a studious lad, and his grades during high school work and since he entered Auburn have been well over the 90 per cent mark. He is a popular young man at Auburn, and is a member of three college fraternities. He finishes at Auburn next June in his course in electrical engineering.

HOWARD COLLEGE GLEE CLUB MONDAY NIGHT

The concert of the Howard College Glee Club presented at the County High School auditorium Monday night of this week was greeted by a capacity audience. Every seat in the building was occupied, and every available space was taken for extra chairs and standing room.

The program presented was attractive and spicy, made up of an interesting collection of songs, choruses, dances, and illustrations.

Every number of the program was accorded hearty applause by the large audience, indicating the interest with which it was received. The singing of Mr. Ralph Grant and the dancing of Miss Ethelyn Bearden were accorded particular response.

HOW TO PREPARE CHRISTMAS MAIL

Valuable Pointers for Mailing Xmas Gifts Given by Postmaster W. M. Bean

An appeal is made each year just before the time for Christmas mailing to be done to try to get those mailing parcels to do their mailing early. It seems to me that little or no heed is given to this. I wish to ask and insist that all who may read this make an effort to do Christmas mailing this year entirely different from the usual way. Heretofore it has been the custom to wait until just a very few days before Christmas Day to mail cards and packages. This is wrong! This means confusion and congestion in the mail. I wish to insist that all who desire to mail Christmas parcels and other matter which is usually termed Christmas mail do this early. To assist in giving the best service, I think that all matter classed as Christmas mail should be mailed not later than December 22. By doing your mailing by or before this time, the closing days of the holiday period can be given to delivery service. This will insure prompt delivery and will mean so much toward better service. Please make your arrangements now to do early mailing. It means much.

The Post Office Department has given out many suggestions relative to the manner in which the Christmas mails should be handled. There is much written insisting on early mailing, proper packing, tying, addressing, etc. I fear, should I mention too much relative to the manner of handling the Christmas mails, that nothing I say would be given consideration. For this reason I shall insist for this office that the patrons please give special attention to just a few suggestions which I shall make. The part of the service to which I wish particularly to call attention is packing, wrapping, and addressing parcels. Failure on the part of those mailing parcels to pack and wrap the parcels properly gives much annoyance in the service. In preparing parcels for mailing, be sure to use strong paper, tie well with strong cord (not wrapping thread), put an address on two sides, if you wish. If those mailing parcels will do these few things well and do their mailing early, as I have suggested, there will be better service given than has been heretofore.

As an aid in this matter, I wish to suggest to the teachers of the county that I think that a few lessons given to the pupils in each school in the manner of tying, packing, and addressing mail would be a good lesson. If the teachers will lend their co-operation in this matter at this time I feel that it will be a good way to carry this matter to the homes.

Concluding, I wish to say that the employees of Clanton post office will do all that they can to properly take care of all mail passing through the Clanton office, and if the patrons of the office will heed the few simple suggestions given and do their mailing in time, I assure you of the best service that is possible from the Clanton office under present conditions.

Get ready! Let's have Christmas when Christmas comes!

Yours for service,
W. M. BEAN,
Postmaster.

Dr. Amzi Gowan, Brewton

This is our regular weekly feature story about some noted Chilton County man or woman who has gone out from his or her native home and made good in the world at trade, occupation, art, or profession.

Standing out conspicuously in the list of Clanton men who have made good in the professional world is the name of Dr. Amzie Gowan, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gowan, who was born in Kosciusko, Miss., February 20, 1887.

He attended the puplic schools of that city, and at an early age went to college at Vanderbilt, where he studied dentistry.

Dr. Gowan began his practice of dentistry at Clanton. During his stay in Clanton Dr. Gowan enjoyed a splendid practice. He was prominent in the development of our city, and Gowan Addition, with its modern and attractive homes is a monument to his untiring efforts.

In September, 1911, Dr. Gowan married the charming and talented Miss Nell Mullins, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Mullins, of one of Clanton's most prominent families.

After a very successful professional and business career in Clanton Dr. Gowan moved to Brewton, Ala., in 1919, where he and his talented family were enthusiastically received.

Other than maintaining a large practice in dentistry in that city, Dr. Gowan is associated with Mr. John R. Downing in developing real estate.

While Brewton claims him now we still feel that Dr. Gowan belongs to us, and we are very proud of his success in the dental world.

High Rating Given Chilton County High School Work

Place Is Given Chilton High On The Accredited List of Southern Colleges

At a meeting in Jacksonville, Florida last week the Chilton County High School was one among six Alabama High Schools to be placed on the list of the Southern Association of Colleges as a fully accredited high school. This is a very challenging record for our school and is an attainment that means much to the standing and reputation of the institution.

For a school to be on the accredited list of the Southern Association of Colleges means that the work of the school is so thorough and of such high character that graduates of the school may be entered in any standard college or university in America. There is no higher rating that can be given a high school, and this is the first time in the history of the Chilton County High School that such recognition has been given the work done here.

When Prof. Elsworth Ellis took charge of the school in the middle of the term two years ago, the Chilton County High School was considered at the bottom of the list so far as the recognition of its work by colleges and universities. In other words, it did not mean much for a pupil to go to college and present a diploma asserting that he had graduated from Chiton High. Now it is different. The work of attaining the Southern Association standard was begun by Mr. Ellis at the very first of his connection with the school. He set that as his goal, and he was joined heartily in the seemingly impossible task by the student body. Many thought it was a worthless or rather hopeless undertaking. But the principal and teachers and pupils set their hearts in that direction and kept on pulling.

The Parent Teacher Assocation of the school joined in with very helpful assistance, and now the accomplishment of the task has brought much joy to all who had a part in the work. Also the timely backing of the County Board of Education, the Commissioners Court of Chilton County and the Council of the Town of Clanton is given due recognition of value in helping the school to reach this high honor.

This means a big thing for Clanton and Chilton County to have our county high school and its work so recognized by the higher institutions of learning. It means much to the boys and girls who are to depend on getting their preparatory work at the local high school. It is a great incentive for them to perform their work well and honorably because they may know that when Chilton County High School has marked them with the recommendation and diploma of the school they are ready to enter any college or university in the country with full credit.

There are about 60 high schools in Alabama that have attained such a standing, among which are 12 county high schools.

We would urge upon the people of Clanton and Chilton County now the importance of the matter of keeping our county high school up to the standard of the requirements which it has so nobly risen to attain within the two years past. The school now has the teaching staff and equipment which is necessary for such a high school. But there are other battles to win and other obstacles to conquer if it shall stay in the highest class of high schools from year to year. The winning of those victories and the conquering of those obstacles lies largely with the people of the town of Clanton and the county of Chilton.

The Chilton County High School must be backed by the right kind of school spirit among the people if it is to hold what it has gotten by the work of the last two years.

This is the time for a great rally among our people for the Chilton County High School. It is time for us to let the principal and teachers and pupils and the P. T. A. of the county high school know that we appreciate what they have accomplished; and let them know that we can be depended upon to help them hold it in the future.

CHILDREN OF I. W. BICE MEET IN FAMILY REUNION

On last Sunday, December 4th a very large crowd gathered at the home of Mr. I. W. Bice to celebrate his 67th birthday. All of his children were present except Mrs. A. J. Easterling who lives at La Feria, Texas. It seemed to make the old fellow very happy to have all his children with him.

At noon a bountiful dinner was spread which was enjoyed by every one present. Those enjoying the day were: Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Baker and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. N Courtney and family Mr. and Mrs. Willie Mims, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Collins and family, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bice and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bice and family, Isaac, Dalton, Delia and Esther Bice, Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Miller and family, Rev. G. G. Williams and son, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Plier and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. MUSIC TEACHER COMING TO COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

It will be interesting to the patrons of the Chilton County High School as well as to the citizens of Clanton as a whole to know that on the 2nd day of January Miss Mildred S. Kethley of Crystal Springs, Miss., will come to Clanton to teach music. Clanton is indeed fortunate in securing a musical instructor of Miss Kethley's extensive training and ability. We have never had a teacher better fitted for her work than Miss Kethley. She has received training in the following schools and conservatories: Mississippi State College, Bush Conservatory one year, voice with Kirby Ellis of New York City, and piano with Theo Bohlmann of Jackson, Miss. Miss Kethley has a life license in piano in the State of Mississippi, and has had wide experience in every phase of musical instruction. She has taught at the A. H. S. Junior College at Raymond, Miss., where she was at the head of the Voice Department, Theoretical, Private and Chorus work, and at A. H. S., Wesson, Miss. Other experience has been in glee club work and as director of choirs, member of beach music club, has occupied position in church as soloist, special music with students in Sunday school and church services, lyceum tours, and has taken especial interest in planning programs of various kinds, including musical programs for parent-teachers associations. Miss Kethley comes to us highly recommended. Mr. R. E. L. Sutherland, President of Hinds County Junior College writes: "Miss Kethley has exceeded our expectations. Our musical department has grown in members and financial rating, and with these conditions also a deeper appreciation for music in the college and community, and to say that the teacher of this department has been successful is to put it mildly." Mr. Eri Douglas, Director of Normal Department, Mississippi State College for Women, writes: "Miss Mildred Kethley has done practice teaching in my department during which time she has shown a decided ability to teach. She is gentle, tactful, possesses a charming manner, has splendid poise and is very resourceful. Her winning way makes her a great favorite with children." I am sure we express the sentiments of Clanton people when we say that we are happy to have a teacher who will mean so much to the musical and community life of our little city.

The reduction in tax rate of 11 1-2 per cent on corporations will be applicable to incomes received in 1927 and payable in 1928 under the terms of an amendment incorporated in the proposed revenue bill by the House committee of Congress on ways and means.

DON'T MISS IT !

Due to the bad weather last Friday night the P. T. A. will again sponsor a Fiddlers Convention.

One of the interesting attractions will be the Kiddy Band, of Miss Orr's kindergarten, dressed in uniforms. It is well worth the price of the whole performance to see and hear these tiny tots make good music on their little instruments. Admission, 35c and 20c.

MARK TUCKER'S LETTER

The treasury of Alabama is more than $1,250,000 better off than it was this time last year. On November 28 there was a net balance in the general treasury of $1,253,953.26 in cash. Last year at the same date it was $50,593.38. The state treasury has not received as great an amount from the prepayment of taxes as it had at this time last year. The improvement is real, and not merely a matter of accounting.

It is stated at the capital that it will not be necessary for the state treasury to borrow one dollar to tide over these last months until taxes begin to come in at the usual time, in January. This is the first time in many years that some form of temporary loans have not been necessary at this season of the tax year.

Alabama is going to meet all of its bills and have a surplus in the treasury, whether the $20,000,000 of school building bonds is ratified or defeated at the special election of January 10. The new revenue bill, with its provisios requiring mine operators to pay tonnage taxes on the minerals taken from the land and making the big power companies pay something in the way of a killowatt for the use of the state's water powers. No new taxes will have to be levied and tax values will not have to be artificially increased to meet principal and interest charges on the bond issue for permanent school buildings.

On December 1 the state retired $600,000 of the first good roads bond issue, due on that date. This makes a total of $3,450,000 of highway bonds that have been paid. Every payment on the principal reduces the amount of the annual interest, a large sum is set aside from auto vehicle taxes and other special sources for the maintenance of roads. In the meantime, the improved highways are declaring dividends to the people of the State in the way of service, improved transportation and relief from the wear and tear occasioned by bad roads. Still when the highway amendments were pending before the people to be voted on at special elections, opponents of the road building program told the public that the adoption of these bond issue amendments would bankrupt the state and put a mortgage on every home and farm in Alabama." The same men, representing the same selfish interests, are telling the same old story and applying it to the proposed bond issue for permanent school buildings.

The committee apointed by the governor to select a successor to President Spright Dowell of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute is composed of R. E. Tidwell, state superintendent of education, Cyrus W. Ashcraft Florence, Victor Hanson, Birmingham, Charles S. McDowell, Eufaula, and Dr. William H. Oates, Mobile. An outstanding educator of national standing is sought by the committee. The entire state board of education will pass upon the committee's recommendations.

The powers herein conferred are in addition to and not in conflict with the powers conferred by the amendment to the Constitution proposed at the 1923 Session of the Legislature (Acts of Alabama 1923, page 593) and ratified at the General State election of November, 1924. Any laws enacted by the Alabama Legislature of 1927 shall be valid and have effect under this amendment to the same extent as if such laws had been enacted subsequent to the adoption of this amendment."

Every Year

We spend more money than we collect

THE money which telephone subscribers and the public in Alabama pay for telephone service is a large sum in the aggregate but it by no means equals the money spent in the state by the telephone company.

Last year, for instance, the telephone company spent more money for taxes, wages and similar operating expenses, and for additions to the plant in Alabama than it collected for telephone service.

If the telephone company had depended solely on its operating revenue it could not have improved and enlarged the telephone system to the extent of $4,000,000.

Our ability to borrow money to make these additions and replacements is due to the confidence of investors in the management, and their belief that you are willing to pay rates for service which will earn a reasonable return on the investment.

The cost of everything used in rendering telephone service has increased enormously, but the rates have advanced so slightly that your telephone dollar now buys more than any other dollar you spend.

The margin between revenue and expense is rapidly dwindling and the increased costs of furnishing telephone service presents a problem in which every telephone user has a vital interest.

Notice of Change in Registration Dates

Registrars Will Be At Courthouse For One Day, Thursday, December 29th.

The attention of the public is directed to the change that has been made in the dates of the Board of Rgistrars of Chilton County at the courthouse in Clanton, which change is given due publicity by them in the newspapers this week.

They have eliminated their engagement on Friday, December 9th, this week, as formerly advertised, and in place of that date they will be at the courthouse on Thursday, December 29th.

In discussing this change with a member of the Board, it was stated by him that the reason the Board was making the engagement for the 29th is that perhaps many people who hold citizensnip in Chilton County but live or work out of the county, will be back here for the Christmas holidays, and this engagement on the 29, will perhaps make it more convenient for such people to take advantage of the opportunity to visit home folks on Christmas and register at the same time.

There are yet many people in Chilton County who ought to register so they can vote next year. These engagements which the Registrars are now making at the courthouse are the last chance.

Anyone in any part of the county who is entitled to register can come to the courthouse on any day the registrars will be there and register. Any person who will be 21 years of age between now and the 6th of next November is entitled to register under the law.

ALABAMA TOWNS OPPOSE AMENDMENTS

"No Tax Raise Needed—Only Reform," Citizens Declare

Gadsden, Ala., Dec. 5.—Are the tax raise amendments really needed? Citizens of Gadsden, Albertville, Guntersville, Alexander City and Jasper say not. In each of these communities, organized opposition has developed among groups of citizens to the tax raise amendments and appeals have been directed to the voters of the state to go to the polls and vote against them next Tuesday.

In a resolution adopted November 18th, the Gadsden Chamber of Commerce voices its opposition to the proposed amendment raising the municipal tax rate in the City of Gadsden and to the constitutional amendment proposing to raise the limit of the bonded indebtedness of the several counties of the state. In the Gadsden resolution the action of the Federal Government in reducing the taxes since the World War is contrasted with the present attitude of state, county and city governments in seeking tax increases. Inefficiency, extravagance and the creation of unnecessary offices in government is strongly condemned. Alabama voters are admonished to consider carefully all the proposed amendments on December 13th.

Action along similar lines has been taken by a group of citizens of Guntersville who have appealed to the voters of the state to oppose the amendments, declaring that taxes now are burdensome and as high as the people should be required to bear. Among those signing the Guntersville resolution were: J. A. Lusk, P. W. Stockton, J. H. Carter, A. J. Burke, Jno. H. Carter, Jr., Walter Lusk, F. B. Albert, D. C. Wilson, Allen Seabold, C. B. Kennamer, J. W. Thomason, J. H. Walls, Sam Lutterell, C. W. Morton, W. H. Erskine, J. L. Jackson, Gus May, Wm. C. Rayburn, W. Seabold, J. E. Nix, W. M. Dogette and others.

In Albertville some 200 citizens have entered a protest against the passage of the Constitutional amendment authorizing the Mayor and Council to increase city taxes for the City of Albertville, also to granting authority to raise the bonded limit of the county from 3½ per cent to 5 per cent of the assessed value of the property of the county. Among those signing the Albertville resolution were:

W. R. Bradford, E. O. Williams, I. E. Hubbard, T. C. Hubbard, C. L. Hearn, W. D. Blair, W. R. Johnson, E. L. Harris, T. F. Reagan, John McGriff, Nora McGriff, J. D. Hamric, A. W. Chiles, J. C. Guest, Daniel Childress, H. F. Hall, John C. Hall, J. R. Martin, S. M. Burns, Jas. T. Parris, J. H. Daverson, B. J. Nelson, C. O. South, W. T. Harnell, J. W. Baker, Jr., W. J. Lathan, R. F. Hood, A. M. Espey, A. Farmer, S. A. Camp, G. M. Gamble, J. O. Martin, C. S. Hamrick, H. H. Hamrick, McKinley Danely, E. L. Hooper, J. N. Carroll, W. M. Rains, H. L. Wells, J. M. Swerds, V. R. Brice, W. F. Irvin, J. E. Brown, Mrs. J. E. Brown, Mrs. J. F. Painter, Jess L. Collins, R. M. Camp, G. D. Wells, J. H. Routh, S. A. Hambrick, H. H. Bohannon, W. U. Tel. Co., C. J. Thomas, N. M. Camp, A. O. Gravette, J. W. Dean, W. A. Hix, B. C. Scarbrough, J. B. Roberts, J. B. Roberts, Jr., L. W. Bryant, D. F. Decker, J. W. Darrill, Paul Decker, Thomas W. Williams, M. L. Tipton, R. T. Seery, W. F. Russel, J. G. Hood, J. H. Matthews, A. H. Whitten, H. G. Davis, J. O. Moore, J. F. Reed, S. B. Hooper, S. M. Owen, F. J. Whitten, H. J. Muryon, C. C. Muryon, J. W. Stephens, W. P. Goodwin, E. J. Banner, T. McBrayer, W. R. Wilson, H. W. Mauldin, C. P. Robinson and many others.

Several hundred citizens of Alexander City have also signed a petition opposing the constitutional amendments and urging Alabama voters to assist in their defeat next Tuesday. Similar action has been taken by Jasper. Other towns, especially those immediately affected are calling on the people of the state to rally to their aid in defeating the amendments on the ground that tax raises are unnecessary at this time and will place an additional burden on the already weary shoulders of Alabama taxpayers.

The ten constitutional amendments will be voted on by the people of Alabama, next Tuesday, December 13th.

Pygmies, the little people of the fairy stories really do exist. They live in parts of Africa and Asia. THE MONTEABARO CASE

In the long run it will prove bad business for a town to hold up the public and take fines under the pretense of protecting the public when in fact the end desired is profit for the town treasury. Calera has been doing that for a year or longer. The Montgomery and Birmingham paved highway passes right through the middle of the town which is a small railroad burg, and a stranger passing that way hardly would realize that he was passing through a town. So they naturally drive through at a fairly high speed and no doubt drive a little too fast same times.

Finding the picking easy, the town made a profitable business for a while. Every driver of an automobile passing that way got pinched unless he got down in low when he got to ich town limits out there in the woods where one could hardly see a house. So, most strangers going thar way got pinched.

But ill gotten money never profits anyone and Calera may now lose some of its ill gotten gain. A week ago when Miss Louise Monteabaro of Selma drove through the town at a speed which the officers thought justified a pinching; they followed her out on the highway until they overtook her. The officers took the girl back to town dying with a bullet hole through her head. They claimed that she shot herself when they told her that they were going to charge her with drunkenness and speeding.

But the tale sounded "fishy" to the state law enforcement department. An investigation was begun. Looks at this time like the town's offcers are going to have a hard time proving that they didn't do the shooting themselves.

Any way, the town's ill gotten gain is likely to slip away before the case is finally dismissed.—Opp Weekly News.

KNOCKING THE KNOCKERS

An illustration of the sweet reasonableness of European commentators on American affairs, is found in the statement of Frederick E. Coe, an Englishman, in a recently published book, that America owes the allies $27,000,000,000, basing his figures on the value of the French and Brittish soldiers killed while holding the lines when America was getting ready to enter war. This writer alleges that American business "was fertilized by the blood of millions of soldiers who were dying on Europe's battlefields."

Logic had not progressed to the high point it has attained in Europe today, when our Revolutionary forefathers cherished the delusion that the help of France in our struggle with England placed upon France no responsibility for the Revolutionary War from the beginning. Otherwise the Continental Congress would have presented to our French allies a bill for the privilege of taking a helping hand in the Revolutionary War, in which a price would have been placed on the life of every American who had been killed in battle all the way from Lexington to Germantown.

France and Germany entered the World war from motices of necessity. The foot of the invader was on the soil of Belgium threatening the very life of both nations. When the United States entered the World War its safety was not threatened. With the original causes of the war, President Wilson said, we had nothing to do. We came into the war at a time when both France and England faced the possibility of defeat, with all that this would have implied in national humiliation and the payment rather than the exaction of indemnities. The effrontery which sets up a claim that America is liable for the losses sustained up to the time when this nation intervened and helped to save the allies from defeat, is beyond comprehension, but it is evident that there are no lengths to which impudence and malevolence will not go, both at home and abroad, in misrepresenting the facts in the case.

The sale of supplies and manitions to the allies by the United States prior to our entry into the war and our vast loans after our declaration of war surely were no source of injury to the forces arrayed against the central empires. At any rate there seemed to be no disposition on their part to encourage or permit the United States to inflict this hurt upon Germany, for a blockade forbade American sales to the armies and populations of the central empires of the struggle.

The claim that the United States was enriched by the war is the product either of ignorance or of mendacity. The official figures showing the growth of national wealth prove conclusively that during the decade 1912-1922, the rate of growth in American national wealth as it was in progress before the war and as it has been resumed since the war, was slowed down four-fifths. Next to Germany, the United States was probaby the heaviest financial loser in the war.

In their computations of benefits and injuries flowing from the war, European commentators choose at all times to ignore the vast accessions of territory and the huge indemnities in which the United States did not participate; in which America asked no share.

America has had her reward for the enormous expenditures, the great sacrifices made during the World War in the gross ingratitude of the beneficiaries of the American effort. With the war ten years behind us, there is probably a more cordial feeling for the United States in the nations we helped defeat than in the nations we helped gain the victory.

There is a lesson in this well worth remembering. It was Washington who said, "There is no such thing as disinterested friendship between nations." It seems to be proved, indeed, that there is no such thing as gratitude. Fortunately America can afford to ignore attacks which so grossly misinterpret the motives and the history of this country's war effort. And perhaps something can be learned from this obvious condition which will serve as a guide in the future.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Written for This Paper by
FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Quite frequently now we read in the newspapers of a plan proposed for the ending of war for all time to come. Most of these plans originate in the United States where they are least needed, as the United States is one among the civilized nations at least in which there is no sentiment for war, least of all a war of conquest.

The plans for ending war are of course well meant. But the difficulty is to find one among them that is practical. Most of them have for their foundation some scheme for outlawing any nation which is the aggressor in any future war. The trouble with plans of this kind is that it is generally impossible to determine just who is the aggressor. Often it is a fifty-fifty proposition. no nation which took part in the World War is even yet willing to admit that it was the aggressor, no matter what the general sentiment may be on the subject.

Take the present situation in Euorpe. Two danger spots are Albania and Lithunia. Italy and the Jugo-Slavs are in danger of going to war some of these days over Albania. Already each nation claims the other to be the aggressor. The Serbs claim that the Italians are seeking to absorb Albania and the Italians declare that the Serbs are constantly trying to foment insurrection in Albania for the purpose of organizing a government there unfriendly to Italy.

In this question Uncle Sam has little if any national interesst. Yet under one of these "outlawing the aggressor" agreements is might be necessary in case of war for us to determine whether Italy or Serbia was the aggressor and cut one or the other of them off our visiting list. Now as both nations are now friendly to America such a procedure would not tend so much to keep us out of war as to drag us in, on one side or the other, for certainly in such a conflict the European nations would choose sides and join in the general melee.

The Lithuanian situation is similar and would array us diplomatically and commercially at least against Poland or against Russia. And it is to be remembered that the nation branded as the aggressor in public opinion may not always be the real aggressor. The country which has at the moment the best diplomats, the best publicity service and propaganda machine can easily make the other fellow apear to be the aggressor whether he is or not. In 1776 under such an agreement America would undoubtedly have been branded the aggressor.

Another scheme for ending war is that which embodies as its fundamental principle the system of compulsory arbitration. This one sounds good too, but there is serious doubt whether it will work. It will be remembered that compulsory arbitration has never been found a satisfactory method for ending labor disputes, and there is some doubt it would work in international troubles. And if the country which had the most men and the most guns refused to live up to its agreement for arbitration, what then? Here would be another fine opportunity for Uncle Sam to mix up in a war whch did not concern him.

There is further objection to compulsory arbitration in that all questions are not arbitrable. For instance: in America we have adopted the principle of selective restricted immigration. We would want to arbitrate this question with Japan or any other nation. We stand on the rigrt to protect our workers and producers from cheap foreign competition through the principle of the proaective tariff. We had some trouble recently with France over the question, and we would not want to arbitrate the principle in some future misunderstanding. And it is to be remembered that we settled it this time without compulsory arbitraton. Nor do we want to arbitrate the principles of the Monroe Doctrine. So there you are. Arbitration is a fine thing and a step in the right direction but to be effective it must be voluntary and not compulsary. For then it becomes coercion and not arbitration.

Amercans loathe war and are determined to remain out of it so long as it is honorably possible. But until some more workable scheme is devised for so doing, they will continue to believe that the best way to avoid war is to be adequately prepared, to attend strictly to our own business, to stand up for our own rights when necessary and at all times respect the rights of others. This can be done without our entering into any sort of international agreement that has for its purpose committing us to some unidentified policy in the future.

CHEVROLET ACQUIRES GRAY IRON FOUNDRY

W. S. Knudson, president of the Chevrolet Motor Company announces that Chevrolet has taken over the mammoth gray iron foundry of the Saginaw Products Company at Saginaw, Michigan. The newest plant acquisition of the Chevrolet Motor Company adds a $4,500,000 institution to the company's rapidly developing manufacturing operations and provides Chevrolet with foundry fafacilities 2nd to none in the industry.

Mr. Knudsen recently completed an inspection tour of Chevrolet plants in Detroit, Flint, Toledo, Saginaw, Buffalo, Tarrytown and Bloomfield and points out that the acquisition of the Saginaw plant brings Chevrolet manufacturing facilities to the highest point of completeness and efficiency yet attained.

After the first of December the Saginaw foundry will be devoted exclusively to the pouring of Chevrolet castings. A new conveyor system and other labor saving devices, recently installed, give the plant a melting capacity of 800 tons of metal daily and make it one of the most up-to-date foundries in the world.

Outstanding among the features of the large plant is the ingenuity with which machines have been made to perform the vast bulk of foundry work. Specially designed mechanical conveyors shoulder practically all of the heavy burdens. Core manufacture, assembly and baking, the charging and discharging of the immense cupolas, the pouring of molten metal and the cooling, cleaning and finishing of castings all rely upon machinery more than ever. Human effort has been reduced to a minimum, resulting in increased capacity and a higher factor of safety. Buildings are of brick and steel construction and allow for 300,000 square feet of floor space. The plant employs 3,000 people when operating on a capacity basis. Arnold Lenz, one of the foremost foundry experts in the country, is in general charge.

BUICK MOTOR 13 YEARS OLD IS SERVING AS A LOCOMOTIVE IN PORTLAND, OREGON

Flint, Mich., Dec. 6. — Threshing machines, pumping outfits, home lighting installations, and a host of other labor saving devices are providing work for automobile engines to do after they have finished their term of service in the field for which they were built. But it remained for Robert Ballinger, of Portland, Ore., to devise for such an engine one of the most novel uses which has come to the attention of the Buick factory here.

For the past four years Ballinger has been using the engine from a 1914 four cylinder Buick to run a miniature railroad which he operates at Oaks Park, a Portland amusement place. His train is also an annual feature of the Oregon State Fair at Salem.

Ballinger's father, who is manager of the park, bought the Buick in 1915 when it had seen a year's use. He drove it several years, making repeated trips to California in it in the days before the present splendid highways were built.

Then in 1923, a power plant was needed for the miniature railway which Ballinger planned to build, and the Buick's long record of service suggested adaptation of its engine to the new use. With 72,000 miles on its speedometer, the Buick was dismantled, and the locomotive was built around its power plant, the carburetor, starter lever, switch, and generator being retained.

Ballinger reports that his son has operated the locomotive for four seasons without a breakdown, averaging 5,800 miles a season. It hauls a train weighing 3,600 pounds light and 8,000 pounds loaded, and though it has covered well over 100,000 miles, still has an apparently indefinite capacity for service.

Mr. Wallace Jones was in Clanton Monday shaking hands with friends and talking Moore-Handley's goods.

Chilton Tigers 1927 Record

Below is given a summary of the play of the boys who made up the 1927 Chilton County High School football team. That the team played as a unit all the time, that they were aggressive, playing heads-up football all the time is evident from the splendid record they made — winning 7 games and losing 2. If there was a slacker in the bunch he kept it well hidden, all of them always eager to get their chance on the field, and once there each gave all he had. That they were clean sportsmen is evident from the fact that not a single man of the Chilton team was ever driven from the game, nor even warned, on account of unsportsmanlike conduct; they fought, and fought hard, but theirs was a clean fight—and theirs is a record to be proud of.

First, Coach O. V. Bruner deserves highest mention in writing of the 1927 Chilton campaign. A gentleman and a clean sportsman himself, he has never taught nor allowed to be practiced any unfair tactics among his boys. Sometimes the spirit of fairness may be violated without violating the exact lettering of the rule of the game involved, yet Coach Bruner has never allowed anything that even bordered on bad sportsmanship to enter into his methods and tactics. He has taught the boys what he knew of the game; he has studied out plays for them and taught them the best way to play them with a fighting spirit, to fight to the last; he has taught them sportsmanship at the best—one of the greatest qualities to possess in the battle of life.

The Sanfords, Orvel (Pete), and Leon, have been two of the main cogs in the machine. Pete could always be depended on in the pinches, and his gains range from 1-yard plunges through the line for first down, to 90-yard sprints for touchdowns. Fast, and an excellent broken field runner, most of his gains have been around the ends and off-tackle. His defensive work has been as good as his offensive. In addition he has done most of the booting. Leon, at quarter-back, has carried the greatest responsibility of any one of the men. Choosing his plays with a clear head at all times, he has left little room for censure. In addition, he has taken his regular turn with the ball and has given a good report of himself. His deadly tackling was one of the brightest spots in the Chilton defense, and in spite of his light weight, has earned a place among the best who have fought for the orange and blue.

Although hampered by various injuries for most of the season, Bruner showed up well during the last few games. Though not a player of the flashy kind, he could generally be depended on for much needed yardage. Few Chilton supporters knew Bruner's condition, and at times it was on grit alone that he entered the game at all. His late season form was much better than at the beginning.

Benson Sims and Henry Martin alternating at the other half-back post, both gave good reports of themselves. Martin, though light, dealt terror to the ranks of the opponents with his speed and tackling. Sims, both young and light, gives promise of being a valuable man before he hangs up the moleskin at Chilton High. He was a consistent ground gainer this year, and with next year's added weight, should be an important member of the 1928 team.

Wade and Willis, at the ends, were effective both offensively and defensively. Little headway was made around the ends by opponents, while these two men were on the receiving end of numerous passes. Both are new men, this being their first year of football. In future years they should develop into valuable flankmen.

At tackle, Broadhead and Johnston were as a stone wall on defense, while time and again they tore thru to throw opposing backs for losses. Broadhead leaves nothing wanted in a high school tackle, and Johnston is pronounced one of the best prep tackles in the state.

Mims held down one of the guards in fine shape, and was an important member of the strong center wall that was Chilton's. At the other guard, S. Martin held forth most of the time, doing good work.

At center, Courtland Retherford was all that could be expected. He was young and green at the begining of the season, his first year in the game, but finished the season with the full confidence of Chilton supporters. Retherford is a hard fighter, and cool under fire; he had no bad passes chalked up against him during the entire season, a record that any veteran would hold with pardonable pride. All in all, Retherford was one of the most valuable men on the team.

A raft of substitutes, including Wagoner, Miner, Simpson, Sanders, Cox, Evanr, Nivens, the two Gillespies, and others had their places and did their best in making the 1927 Chilton football machine one of the best and smoothest working teams that ever represented Chilton County High School.

The final scores for the season were:

Chilton	37	Marbury	0
Chilton	50	Verbena	0
Chilton	19	Rockford	0
Chilton	54	West Blocton	0
Chilton	19	Sylacauga	6

VOTE AGAINST AMENDMENT NO. 2, MOBILE MEN ASK

Mobile, Ala., Dec. 5, 1927.

To our fellow Alabamians:

We, the undersigned Mobilians, respectfully call your attention to the proposed constitutional amendment to be voted on by the people of Alabama on next Tuesday, December 13, providing for a tax raise of four mills for city purposes on all taxable property located in the City of Mobile. The proposed amendment does not affect any other city or town and yet it is being voted upon by the people of the State as a whole. There are other constitutional amendments to be voted upon next Tuesday, but the one we refer to will be shown on the ogicial ballot as Amendment No. 2.

Under the conditions existing at this time in our City Government it is our opinion that it would be most unwise, and furthermore unnecessary, to give our City Commission this largely increased revenue. We do not think our situation justifies such a heavy raise in taxes. We beleve that the financial difficulties of our City should be solved by retrenchment, by the practicing of economies and the abolishing of needles offices and jobs, rather than by increasing taxes and thus furnishing still more funds to be used in further extravagances. Our present City tax rate is eleven mills, and our State and County tax rate is twenty-three mills, making the total taxes which we are now paying $3.40 per $100.00, which is certainly as much taxes as any property owner should be called upon to pay. Additional proposed County taxes will run this up six mills more, making our total tax rate for City and State and County, if the proposed raises in taxes are put into effect, $4.40 per $100.00, or practically 4½%—about equal to the assessments now being made in some of the wild-cat speculative sections of Florida. We wish to earnestly and seriously submit to you the proposition that there has got to be some end to the steadily increasing burdens of taxation placed upon real estate.

We wish to assure you that under like circumstances we would gladly aid you in keeping down what you considered excessive taxes in your own community.

Thanking you for any assistance you may render us in the premises, we are,

Very truly yours,

Voters of Alabama

Help Us Defeat "Tax Raise" Amendments Next Tuesday!

Ten Constitutional Amendments—nine of which raise taxes or bonded debt—will be voted on next Tuesday—December 13th. Alabama doesn't need them! Present tax rates, when fairly and uniformly enforced, will yield sufficient revenue. What Alabama needs is not more taxes, but efficient collection and distribution of what is already authorized! Tax reform does not consist of raising tax rates, but of spending public funds to better purpose. The undersigned ask you to join with citizens of these communities in defeating the "tax raise" amendments which will load another burden on the already weary shoulders of Alabama taxpayers!

These Citizens Stand Squarely Against Them

Here's What They Have to Say:

Citizens of these communities have given us permission to publish their views on the tax raise amendments as given below:

Vote Against Amendments Urge Alexander City Citizens

We the undersigned taxpayers and voters of the town of Alexander City, and County of Tallapoosa, appeal to the voters of the State to vote against the proposed Constitutional Amendments increasing the taxes of the town more than double the present taxes, and also increasing the debt limit of the county from 3½ to 5% of the assessed value of the property of the County. We urgently appeal to the voters of the State to go to the polls December 13th, and vote against these proposed amendments.

"Taxes Now Are Burdensome" Say Guntersville Tax Payers

TO THE VOTERS OF THE STATE:

We the undersigned as citizens, taxpayers and voters of Guntersville, do most earnestly ask you to vote against amendments to the Constitutiorn of Alabama authorizing an increase in taxing power. Taxes now are burdensome and as high as the people should be required to bear, and State, County and Municipal indebtedness is now extravagantly high and beyond what should be:

Tax Reforms and Reductions Needed Say Gadsden Leaders

WHEREAS taxes, Federal, State, County and Municipal, already being levied, have become very burdensome on all industrial classes and especially on the farmer, property holder and industrialists, and,

WHEREAS, tax reform and reduction are necessary for the prosperity of the people, which fact is now realized by the Federal Government, as evidenced by great reductions made by it since the World War, but not by the present state, county and city governments to a great degree, and,

WHEREAS, great extravagance and profligate expenditure are indulged in in this state,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the Board of Directors of the Gadsden Chamber of Commerce as follows:

1. That the proposed constitutional amendment raising the municipal tax rate of the City of Gadsden is unnecessary and is therefore opposed;
2. That the constitutional amendment proposing to raise the limit of the bonded indebtedness of the several counties of the state is unwise and is therefore opposed;
3. That tax reform and reduction is necessary to the prosperity of the people of this state and is therefore favored and demanded in all types of taxation;
4. That inefficiency, extravagance, the creation of unnecessary offices and the reckless expenditure of the public moneys are opposed and condemned, and
5. That the efficient administration and the strictest economy are favored and demanded of all the governments, Federal, State, County and Municipal.

RESOLVED, That the people of this state are admonished to carefully consider all of the proposed constitutional amendments which will be submitted to them on December 13, and they are respectfully asked to vote against the proposed constitutional amendment raising the tax rate of the City of Gadsden and raising the limit of the bonded indebtedness of the several counties of the state.

PASSED on this November 18, 1927.

W. H. BUTLER,
Secretary, Gadsden Chamber of Commerce.

Albertville Residents Enter Strong Protest

P. T. A. TO MEET TUESDAY

Every member of the Parent-Teachers Association of the Chilton County High School is requested to meet Tuesday afternoon, December the 13, at three o'clock at the high school.

This is a most important business meeting and the president, Mrs. Marcus Polk, requests that each member be present.

The P. T. A. means a great deal to the schools and it can mean much more if every member will do his or her bit. Let's all be there.

"The storm burst upon us so suddenly and violently that we had no warning of its approach," said the tornado victim, relating his experience to a friend. "In an instant the house was demolished and scattered to the four winds. How I escaped being torn to pieces I do not know. We—"

"G-good gracious!" said Mr. Meek, jumping to his feet. "Thaa reminds me! I almost forgot to post a letter for my wife!"

The train halted for a moment at the station and the traveler reached out, called a small boy, and said: "Son, here's fifty cents. Get me a twenty-five cent sandwich, and get one for yourself. Hurry up!"

Just as the train pulled out, the boy ran up to the window. Here's your quarter, Mister," he shouted. "They only had one sandwich."

I say, mamma, asked little Tommy do fairy tales always begin with once upon a time?

No dear, not always, replied mama. They sometimes begin with, My love I have been detained at the office again tonight.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

COUNTY FARM AGENT BEGINS ENROLLMENT OF CLUB BOYS

Projects to be used by the boys are:

1.—Two acres of cotton.
2.—Two acres of corn.
3.—One-half acre strawberries.
4.—Livestock
   a. Pure bred hogs (either pig or bred gilt).
   b. Pure bred Jersey heifer.
   c. Poultry.

The boys may take either one of the above projects, but are urged to take more than one. For example, they should take one of the crop projects and one of the livestock projects.

The following prizes have been offerred:

1. Cotton—100 pounds vetch seed.
2. Corn—$25 cash (by Judge L. H. Reynolds).
3. Sarawberries—$25 cash (1st National Bank).
4. Livestock—Pure bred gilt, $15, Pig, $10.

Other prizes will likely be offered later.

It will be practically impossible for me to have clubs in every school community. But after the enrollment is finished, I will group the members into about twelve or fourteen clubs, and hold seasonal meetings with the clubs.

I expect to visit a good many of the larger schools during December and January and will appreciate it if the boys and teachers interested in club work will prepare a list of boys in aheir school giving name of school, name and address of the son and father or guardian, alos the boys age. The age limits are 10 yearr to 20 years of age.

FARM BUREAU WORKING ON ORGANIZATION NOW

Mr. Stapp, County agent, reports that the work of organizing the Chilton County Farm Bureau is moving along nicely, and that it is planned to perfect the Chilton County branch some time this month by the election of officers and getting everything in readiness to do business.

The Farm Bureau is, in our opinion, one of the most valuable agencies of business organization for the farmers and we feel that it will be safe to urge our farmers to give this matter their careful consideration. The Farm Bureau, while new to the people of Chilton County in a sense, is not a new idea. It has been in existence and has been producing good results for the farmers in other counties of Alabama for several years. We have not had it in Chilton County because we have not had a county agent to work it up and push the organization over.

The Farm Bureau is not a part of the county agent's work, but the agriculture department recognizes it as such a good thing for the farmers that the county agents are allowed to help out in perfecting the organization in the counties where they work.

Any farmer who wishes to know more about the Bureau should ask Mr. Stapp.

DR. JACKSON, T. C. I. MARKETING AGENT WILL BE HERE FRI.

Dr. Jackson, Marketing Agent For T. C. I., B'ham to Be with County Agent, Stapp, Fri. Dec. 9th

The County Agent has had several requests from farmers to help them sell their surplus corn. In compliance with their request, County Agent Stapp has invited Dr. Jackson, Marketing Agent for T. C. I. to bring one or more brokers to Clanton Friday, December the 9th. Dr. Jackson has notified Mr. Stapp that he and one or more brokers will be in Clanton for a conference at 1:30 P. M. Friday, December the 9th.

Farmers having surplus corn for sale should arrange to see Mr. Stapp on or before Friday at 1:30 P. M.

In feeding mature beef cattle it does not pay to grind or to soak velvet beans in the hull.

Alabama was the third state in cotton production this year, Texas being first and Mississippi second.

In many cases a little drainage work and a few loads of sand will get rid of mud around the barn.

Based on an average for the last four years, cotton production in Alabama is back to a pre-boll weevil average based upon production per acre.

Passer-by: "Dear me, my good man did fou fall down the steps?"

Drunk: "Yea, but it'r all right. I was going down anyway."

Hey waiter! This steak is burnt black.

Yes sir: a mark of respect. Our head waiter died yesterday.

Flapper (at dry goods counter): "I'd like a pair of garters, please."

John Nye: "Yes, Miss; something like the ones you have on?"

His letter read: "I'm enjoying Florence immensely."

His wife replied: "You can stay in Europe. I am having a good time with Oscar."

ALABAMA IS THIRD IN MAKING COTTON

Auburn, Ala. Dec. 6.—In the production of cotton, Alabama is the third state this year, Texas is the first, Mississippi, second, and Alabama third. This is the best comparative showing Alabama has made since the advent of boll weevils. Not since 1913 has Alabama stood this near the top of the list of cotton-growing states.

The records show that in 1914 Alabama was fourth, being exceeded by Texas, Mississippi, and Georgia. In 1915 they ranked: Texas, Georgia, South Carolina, and Alabama. In 1916 the weather was unusually favorable and boll weevils had covered the state with the result that Alabama was ninth from the top in making cotton.

A comparison of average yields in Alabama for the past four years reveals that production per acre is again up to pre-boll weevil days. This means that scientific farming applied to the production of cotton has offset the damage done by boll weevils.

Improved varieties of seed, better fertilizer applied in larger amounts, and improved methods of preparing the land and of cultivating the crop are responsible.

In addition, other crops and livestock are being produced on a larger scale showing that as a whole Alabama agriculture has gained since boll weevils appeared over the state a little over ten years ago.

VETCH CONTEST (One acre basis)

1. Best average growth on March 30th.—Prize 1 Avery Rolling Coulter for turning vetch.

2. Second best average on March 30th.—1 P. & O. Rolling Coulter for turning vetch.

Farmers entering the contest are required to get two of their neighbors to witness the cutting and weighing of the vetch from a square 10 ft. by 10 ft. The square must be reprerentative of about an average of the growth for the acre. Reports must be made to County Agent on March 31st.

Spraying and pruning fruit trees are both good winter jobs.

A gate that drags is a nuisance but it never improves itself.

Alaboma farmers are buying more tractors and more improved farm implements.

A bale of cotton to the acre on a large number of acres will result in a nice income.

Scientific principles applied on a business basis to agriculture pay handsome profits.

FARM POWER NOW BEING INCREASED

Auburn, Ala., Dec. 6.—From human power to more steel and iron power farming in Alabama is turning. By operating more tractors and improved farm implements farmers are increasing their efficiency and thereby increasing their inlomes.

Information received by the College of Agriculture at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute from county agents, farmers and implement dealers shows that Alabama farmers are buying more tractors and larger tractors, and that improved farm implements for preparing land for cultivating crops are selling on a larger scale.

This information is accepted by officials of the College of Agriculture as another wholesome development. They point out that by the proper use of more power and implements necessary thereto farmers will add to the net returns from farming. The income per farm parallels the amount of power efficiently used. Here the principle of power applies to agriculture the same as to industry.

Viewing the situation as a whole, county agents point out that one of the biggest needs is to increase production per man because profits in any productive business are based upon efficiency in production. A high yield per acre on a large number of acres is the object of the efficient farmer who is engaged in producing crops for sale. The same principle applies to livestock farmers.

Who's Who In Clanton

MR. HUGH FOSHEE

When we consider the beautiful and progressive town that Clanton is today it is difficult to picture as the small village that Mr. Foshee found when he moved in January 1873.

Mr. Foshee is one of our oldest and most loyal citizens. Old Jim Baker is the only man left here today who lived here when Mr. Foshee first came.

He was born in Kingston, Alabama in Autauga County the 20th of March in 1851. He attended school at Isabella.

Just as Clanton has attracted a number of other fine men and women, so it attracted Mr. Foshee.

Clanton was incorporated for the first time the year that Mr. Foshee moved here in January 1873, and he had the distinction of writing up the first by-laws of the Town of Clanton. He clerked for a time in the store of J. W. Foshee that was located in the same spot where Mullins and Moore now stand.

Mr. Foshee's history is one of the most interesting and colorful imaginable. It represents in a large measure the ambitions and aspirations of every boy. When he was quite a young, carefree youth he heeded the call of the "Wanderlust" and journeyed to Texas where he rode wild ponies and enjoyed every thrill of ranch life. After staying in Texas a short time Mr. Foshee secured school in Fannin County in the northern part of Texas and taught one session. In July of 1874 Mr. Foshee drove a number of Texas ponies to Arkansas and it was there that he met his lovely wife, Miss Mary Marzell Jones. After a brief courtship Mr. and Mrs. Foshee were married and made their honeymoon on Texas ponies to Monroe, Louisiana, 75 miles distant. It was there that the young bride saw her first train, so rare were they in those days. They boarded the train at that place and arrived in Clanton October 15, 1874.

Upon their return Mr. Foshee went to Lomax and taught a five-months school after which he kept books for the old saw mill firm, Allen, Spain and Hawkins.

On account of bad health Mr. Foshee was forced to seek the out-of-doors and he again encountered interesting experiences. He bought a team and hauled logs and in 1877 he traded his team for a house and lot in Clanton where he again made his home. He was appointed Clerk of Circuit Court where he served until 1892. After which he practiced law for a few years. He next went into the lumber business in which he had had long and successful experience.

Mr. Foshee is the father of two children, a daughter, Mrs. Renfroe Mullins, and a son, Durwood Marian, who died in 1902.

Three years ago Mr. and Mrs. Foshee celebrated their fiftieth anniversary.

Mr. Foshee has meant much to the business and community life of Clanton, and is one of the men who has helped to put Clanton on the map. He and his family are highly esteemed, and Clanton has been a better place by their living here.

In a visit to the Thorsby Institute library we noticed a collection of current issues of the most popular magazines published in this country, and inquired if these magazines were subject to distribution outside the student body on the same terms as the books may be drawn by the people of the community. (That word community applies to a wide area around Thorsby). Miss Fairbank, the librarian, said they were. The following is a list of those which may be borrowed, under simple rules, as the school management desires to stimulate the reading habit among young and old as far as possible. BLEED THROUGH

The Parting Guest

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

RACHEL has been on her vacation visiting her relatives. She is going back to take up the household duties which have been carried on by some one else during her absence, but those whom she is leaving, as is common in such cases, are urging her to stay longer. A host can scarcely do anything else in such a case. She's had a good time, she admits to herself, but she's about talked out, and, anyway, it's better when making a visit to leave behind a little grief than a lot of relief.

Years ago—so many, in fact, that I should have forgotten the circumstances wholly—a distant relative of father's who lived in the city was invited to spend the week with us. We were living on a farm, there was much work to be done daily, and the house was small. The woman came with her three children, the oldest six, as I recall, the youngest a baby in arms. They entailed a good deal of extra work, but mother did not mind that for a time. But the one week stretched out into two, and the two into four, and the four into six, and still there was no indication that our guests were contemplating kissing us good-by. Finally mother had to say—and it was the truth—that she could no longer delay a promised visit to my sister, who lived some distance from us and who was ill. There was no grief, but considerable relief when our visitor left us. You might suppose that they would never have come back again, but they did. They liked it, I guess.

It isn't an easy matter to know when best to end a call or a visit. It is a good deal like making a speech, I think. One should stop talking just when the audience is interested and alert and wishing you would go on. It is fatal to talk until they begin to wonder when you are going to stop.

Hilda was one of the most satisfactory guests we ever had in our house. She never made us a visit unless she was invited, and when she came she was so much a part of the household that it seemed as if she had always been with us.

"I'm going to stay just a week," she would say. "I know you must have other plans to be carried out, and I've had guests enough in our house to realize what a comfort it is, no matter how much you like them, to know when they're going. You can get ready to kiss me good-by a week from today."

We were always sorry to see her go, but we were never able to persuade her to stay beyond the announced time.

"I want to come back some time, and I want you to be glad to see me rather than wondering how long I'm going to stay this time."

If only all guests would learn when to go!

FACTS ABOUT PROHIBITION IN THE UNITED STATES TO TO BE GIVEN DELEGATES

Westerville, O., Dec. 5.—Pertinent facts concerning prohibition in the United States will be given to delegates attending the 35th annual convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America to be held in Washington, D. C., December 5, 6, and 7, according to announcement today by national officials of the organization.

Delegates will be told that conditions in the United States are not perfect under prohibition, but that they are far superior to the best conditions in the old days under licensed saloons; that building and loan and bank deposits have increased by leaps and bounds; that living conditions are higher than ever before, and that conditions generally are better.

Dr. J. M. Doran, United States prohibition commissioner, will be quoted to the effect that people drinking bootleg liquor take a 3,000 to one gamble with death, because the quality of bootleg is lower than ever before. President Dalton of the Merchant Fleet Corporation will be quoted as saying that prohibition is an asset rather than a detriment to the United States shipping lines, because women and children prefer to travel on ships without bars. Newspaper articles will be exhibited to show that American tourists in Canada are buying comparatively little liquor—fewer than ten per cent, in fact.

The Washington convention will elect a successor to the late Wayne B. Wheeler, League legislative superintendent, who died last summer, and will consider plans for asking the government for further restrictions on the manufacture and distribution of medicinal whiskey, and stricter immigration measures for the deportation of aliens convicted of violation of the prohibition laws. The convention also is expected to approve and disapprove prospective presidental candidates and to make plans for electing friends of the cause in every congressional district throughout the country.

Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, has written a letter to Thomas Marvin, chairman of the Tariff Commission, recommending an increase of 50 per cent in the tariff on corn and meat. President Coolidge can do this under the flexible tariff clause.

MISS ORR'S MILLION DOLLAR "RUSHING" BAND

The appearance for the first time last Friday night of Miss Madelyn Orr's million dollar "Rushing" Band was a most interesting feature of the Fiddler's Convention program at the county high school auditorium. The membership of the band made up of the kindergarten class of Miss Orr, is one of the most unique examples of little folks training we have ever witnessed.

Owing to the bad weather it was decided to have the program presented again this Friday night, when all the fiddlers will be back with some more besides; and the band will be presented again.

Everyone is urged to attend, with the promise that a good time will be waiting for you. It is worth much more than the price of admission to see the little folks' band alone. Don't fail to go Friday night.

MAPLE SPRINGS

About six weeks ago Bro. W. J. Armstrong came down to our church and planted the seed from which a Sunday school has grown. While it is but a little over a month old it is full grown in attendance. On last Sunday the crowd was large and all seem to be interested in the study of Isaiah. Their hearts are in the work and God is blessing their efforts. They have fixed all of the broken windows, and put screen cloth on the outside of the windows for protection. Next Friday is the day set to give the inside of the building a thorough cleaning. They are making all things ready for their beloved pastor, M. J. Parrish. They are praying that God will send him to them next Saturday and Sunday. Everybody is invited to come out and hear him, and help in our Sunday school.—A well wisher.

B. LAWRENCE WRITES REGARDING CHRISTMAS SEALS

I do not want to be misunderstood in the matters of charity. Those who know me know that I have always been ready to do everything in that direction possible and in fact some of my friends think I am too liberal for my own benefit but let that be as it may we are created for servce.

For some few years we have been selling Christmas seals for the Alabama Tuberculosis Association, with the understanding that we were to receive a portion of the receipts to be used for health in our own county but so far as I know we have been unable to get any assistance from the Alabama Tuberculosis Association in this county. Last year we asked them for some funds to be used in our health work in the schools of the county but as usual they had an excuse for it. After we failed to get any assistance last year I told the representative that I would have nothing further to do with the sale of seals in this county and in the Summer I made it plain to one of their representatives again that I could not serve them but without my knowledge they have mailed seals to nearly every leading citizen in the county under my signature. In order that those who have received the seals may understand my position I am asking the paper to publish the following letter.

December 1, 1927
Mr. Richard F. Hudson,
316 Phoenix Building,
Birmingham Alabama.

Dear Sir:

I do not know who gave you the liberty of sending Red Cross seals to individuals of this county under my signature. As I have told you before I am absolutely having nothing else to do with Christmas Seals sales in this county until after I am assured in every definite way that we will receive benefits from it. In fact I think that since it has gone this far you had better leave my name out entirely.

Now it is not necessary for me to explain any further my position in this matter since you and I have talked the matter over and I was frank to tell you about some of the plans we were hoping to carry out last year through our portion of the seals sale but that as usual we were unable to get any assistance.—Yours very truly, B. Lawrence, County Supt. Education.

COLLARDS FIVE FEET ACROSS

Mr. J. W. Cagle has a very good collards record, in fact the best we have had reported to us lately. He came to Clanton last Thursday with a load of three dozen stalks of collards. He weighed one which tipped the scales at eleven pounds and measured five feet across. This one was sold to the plumber, Mr. M. L. Rogers. The rest were sold to local markets.

Mr. Cagle says that he has about 150 more heads of these collards that he intends to place on the market. One hundred an fifty heads have already been cut from his patch this year.

A Gift for All Time

Cash or Easy Terms

It is inevitable that when your mind goes to the subject of gifts, that Jewelry at once suggests itself. From the earliest times, Jewelry has been the standard of all that is valuable and acceptable. It is equally suitable to the husband and wife as to the betrothed of the casual friend. It is a gift for all occasions.

Good Jewelry has an intrinsic value that nothing else possesses. It can be readily converted into cash, and it is really more of an investment than an outlay.

A Proclamation

By The Governor

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama at its last session held at the State Capitol has ordered an election for the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which proposed amendment is herein set forth and has ordered that the election be held upon the second Tuesday, next after three months after the day of the final adjournment of this session of the Legislature; and

NOW, therefore, I, BIBB GRAVES, Governor of the State of Alabama do hereby give notice, direct, and proclaim that on Tuesday the 13th day of December 1927, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama for a vote by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama in the manner and form and places as required by law upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, namely:

(a) The Jackson School District Number 72, of Clarke County, Alabama, and all other school districts of Clarke County which have been or which may hereafter be consolidated with said Jackson School District may levy and collect a tax not exceeding fifty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in such school districts, for the purpose 1. of paying or refunding of outstanding bonds of the town of Jackson, Clarke County, Alabama, which have been heretofore issued for the erection and equipment of the public school buildings in said town; and 2. after the payment of such bonds then for public school purposes within such districts; provided that the rate of the proposed tax and the time it is to continue shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the combined districts affected, and voted for by a majority of those voting upon such proposition at such election. (b) After such tax shall have been voted for and is being levied and collected by said Jackson School District Number 72 and the districts which have been consolidated therewith, no other district may consolidate with said Jackson District until such district so consolidating with said Jackson District shall have also voted a tax of like amount and with like expiration date, as shall have been voted by the districts which are then levying and collecting the tax provided for by paragraph (a) hereof. (c) The election for such tax shall be proposed, called, held and the vote canvassed and the results declared and the tax collected in the same manner as may now or hereafter be provided by law for the special school district taxes authorized by section 2 of the third amendment to this Constitution. (d) The tax hereby authorized shall be in addition to any and all other taxes now authorized by law, and its collection shall in no manner affect the right of the districts in which it shall be levied to share in the school monies heretofore available for such districts, nor shall any reduction in such shares be made by reason of the tax hereby authorized.

AMER. SOCIETY OF AGRONOMY ANNOUNCES ANNUAL AWARD

Similar to Nobel Prize in Other Fields; Will be Known as Chilean Nitrate of Soda Research Award

An annual award of $5,000, which many observers believe may hold a place in agricultural science similar to the Nobel Prize in other fields, was announced by the American Society of Agronomy at its annual meeting in Chicago recently.

The award is to be used in stimulating nitrogen research in the United States and Canada. Its importance to agriculture lies in the fact that nitrogen is one of the most vital elements in the production of crops and in many sections of the United States is the chief factor the farmer has to consider in increasing the yield of his acres. Agricultural authorities everywhere recognize the need of more knowledge about nitrogen and the part it plays in our farming. It was to encourage agronomists and other agricultural scientists in pursuing nitrogen research that the American Society of Agronomy agreed to sponsor the award. The award was made possible thru funds provided by the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau and it will be known as the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Nitrogen Research Award.

Any research worker in North America is eligible for participation. The fund will be adinistered by a special committee of six members of the Society to be appointed by the President. If the committee so decides the award may split into several prizes or it may go to one individual. The committee is to decide what nitrogen research work within the year is most worthy of reward. The Executive Committee of the Society has stipulated, however, that the recipient of such an award must use the money to develop his nitrogen investigation or for professional advancement through study in this country or abroad.

"A more thorough understanding of the part nitrogen plays in crop production is one of the greatest needs of agricultural science today," said Dr. P. E. Brown of Iowa State College, Secretary of the Society.

"It is of vital importance in growing any crop. The prosperity of American farmers is being hindered by their low rate of crop production. In many sections of the country, this is due to inadequate supply of nitrogen in the soil. As farm lands of the United States become exhausted of this element, the need of restoring it to the soil either with commercial fertilizers or legumes becomes urgent. It is in recognition of this inevitable situation that the American Society of Agronomy has agreed to sponsor this fund, which will be known as the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Nitrogen Research Award.

"The announcement of this award is especially significant at this time in view of the distinct trend toward lower prices for commercial nitrogen, due to improvements in old production processes and development of new ones. These lower prices will enable farmers everywhere to use more of this essential plant food to greater economic advantage. Such a condition, combined with the better understanding of the function and efficient utilization of nitrogen in crop production made possible through this award is of far-reaching economic importance to the American farmer.

"We expect this award to develop, particularly in Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, a great fund of authoritive data and information, and we can reasonably expect such work in this country to be followed by similar investigations in all parts of the world."

The plan for the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Nitrogen Research Award was worked out by a special committee appointed several months ago by the President of the Society, D. W. L. Burlison, University of Illinois, which included: M. F. Miller, University of Missouri, Chairman, A. T. Wianeko, Purdue University; F. J. Alway, University of Minnesota, B. L. Hartwell, Rhode Island Experient Station, F. D. Gardner, Pennsylvania State College, J. R. Fain, Georgia State College of Agriculture, T. L. Lyon, Cornell University, C. B. Williams, North Carolina A. & M. College, Oswald Schreiner of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Big Bone Battle Staged At Verbena on Monday

The Bones Rattled and Smoke Rose, But All Left In A Good Humor.

With not a shot fired and with no blood spilled, a teririffic "bone" battle was staged at Verbena last Monday night between the chief "bone heads" of Clanton and the first and second teams of bone artists of Verbena.

The big event was pulled off in the private office of Mr. H. B. Oliver, the Exalted Bull of the Bone Division of Verbena.

Passers-by saw the office filled with smoke, and hearing the uproar inside, rushed in to discern the cause of the racket. On looking in thru the windows, Ex-Sheriff Tom Littlejohn appeared to be in full charge of the fight, but a closer look showed that he was being swiftly beaten to a frazzle and yelling for mercy at the hands of Mr. Jim Hurt, one of Verbena's second string "boners." Mr. Hurt, to hold up the family banner and coat of arms, severely injured the hopes of Mr. Littlejohn, and put him out of business easily.

Close by, Mr. Irby Deramus, another hard hitting candidate for the first division, was successfully bucking Mr. "Buck" Hart, and quickly eliminated this important member of Clanton's bull warrior squad. After Mr. Hart was resuscitated and had gained partial equilibrium, S. L. Gibson, better known as "Shotgun," of the Verbena squad, sailed into Mr. Hart and brought him to defeat in the second and third rounds.

Over in another corner, two scrappers who have been training for each other for weeks sprang together with lowered heads and flying hands and raised an uproar that shook the foundation of the arena. Battling Bob Cathey, alias "Little Blue," and Tom Littlejohn were in deadly conflict; with apparent ease Mr. Cathey floored the Ex-Sheriff, who took the count with little resistance.

The surprise of the fight came as Mr. Oliver, with some science and a pile of luck, put the finishing touches on "Coos" Neighbors, a fine sport and one of Clanton's best bone artists. Mr. Neighbors came out of the battle the chief winner except for the tilt with Mr. Oliver.

Mr. Oliver, still weak from the onslaught with Mr. Neighbors, tackled Mr. Hart too soon and went down in defeat.

Following this racket, Mr. Horace Davis, one of Verbena's best bets, put Buck Hart out of the race.

Young Robert Alred, who came along as a booster for Clanton, found Battling Cathey with his mind off his business and slayed him without exertion.

The above was not a crap game nor a fist fight, but a domino tournament staged between Clanton's best, and Verbena players, in which Clanton came out about one game ahead on account of young Alred's victory over Mr. Cathey, Verbena's "King Bee" in Bonedom.

The bones rattled and the smoke rose, but all left in friendly good humor.—One of the Verbena "Bonesters."

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Horses Had Five Toes

What we think of as the horse's foot is really his toe. There were once five, but lack of use, as he formed the habit of throwing his weight on the center toe, caused the others to gradually become smaller and finally disappear. The nail became hardened and later formed the hoof to protect the toe.

Judge Reynolds Urges Registration of Voters

Last Chance To Qualify For Voting In Elections Next Year.

Editor Union-Banner

I wish to state to the public that if any voter has moved from any other county they must register in this county before they can vote. If they will have been here one year before next general election, then they can register now. If any person will be twenty-one years old before next general election they can register now. Remember the last chance to register to vote next year will be December 12, 13 and 29. If you have not registered, and do not register the above dates you cannot vote next year.

I wish every person in the county, qualified to register and vote, would pay their poll tax and register so they could vote next year. It seems to me there is enough to vote on to pay anyone to qualify. There are ten amendments proposed to the State Constitution to be voted on December 13, 1927, that if adopted would ruin any Constitution in the United States. Then a $20,000,000 bond issue January 10, 1928, and next May a general primary to nominate county and state officers, and then in November 1928 a general election to elect county and state officers.

If anyone will read the papers, I think they will be convinced that next year will be one of the most important political years in the history of this state. If you do not qualify you might want to vote, then you cannot. Register and pay your poll tax now.—Yours very truly, L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate.

To Keep Weight Down

To reduce weight or keep it down, get a job as a football official. Walter Eckersall, who helped run the recent Army-Notre Dame game, told a friend: "You'll be surprised, but my weight is exactly the same as when I played football, and that's 144 pounds stripped."

Due to the bad weather of last Friday and Saturday, we are still able to offer a bowl of Gold Fish Free with each $1 purchase.—MOORE'S.

Pretty Sports Ensemble for Cold Weather Wear

This interesting sports ensemble, worn by Mary Astor, First National player, consists of a gray Angora sweater showing smartly striped effects in gray and black. The silky skirt worn with it is of a gray background with dull red and black stripes. A silk scarf worn in Deauville fashion with a red border adds a chic note when combined with a velour hat of simple outline.

In many cases a little drainage work and a few loads of sand will get rid of mud around the barn.

METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOLS THIS DIST. BEING CHECKED

From November 20th to December 18th, the staff of the Alabama Conference of the Methodist Sunday School Board, assisted by checkers approved by the General S. S. Board, are visiting the assembled officers and teachers of the local schools, and are checking or scoring the schools in accordance with the "program of work", suitable to the several schools. The schools at Prattville, Clanton, Tallassee and Wetumpka are the only B-type schools in the Prattville district. The others are of the C type. Mr. Lemuel Green pastor of the Clanton Church, is the only person residing in the Prattville district, who is authorizd by the Nashville office to check B-type schools. He spent Monday evening (the 5th) in session with the officers and teachers of the Tallassee school and is planning to go soon to meet the workers in the Prattville schools.

At the Tallassee meeting every officer and teacher of the Sunday School was present except two who were absent on account of illness. The school scored about 85 per cent, and was very warmly congratulated upon their attainment of "Advanced Work".

There are resident in the district several authorized checkers (Mr. Green among them) of C-type schools.

For the past two years the Alabama Conference has ranked third in the Southern Methodist Church in the number of Sunday Schools that have ranked (i. e. scored 60 per cent or more on the "Program of Work".)

Constitutional Amendments Beaten at Polls on Tuesday

VOTE IN CHILTON LIGHT, AND EARLY RETURNS INDICATE DEFEAT OF EIGHT TO ONE

Reports coming in from over Chilton County Wednesday showed that some boxes went 20 and 30 against amendments and probably from 1 to 4 for them. Several returning officers said that their beats went solid against all ten amendments. There was not much splitting of tickets but the cross was placed against the entire list of the ten amendments.

Unofficial reports from other counties over the State pointed toward an overwhelming rejection to the ten proposed changes in the organic laws of Alabama. With the probable exception of Mobile county, every county in the State rejected from one to all of the proposed amendments. The vote in the entire State was estimated at about 3 to 1 against all of the amendments.

Opposition to the proposed changes was not confined to any one section of the State. In some instances the rural vote favored the proposals but at other places they marched up in solid phalanx against the whole list. In a few instances city voters expressed favor for one or more of the amendments, but these were few and far between.

Former Clanton Lady Honored in Big Play

Miss Roberta Curry Given Prominent Lead in Big Production.

Within the pages of "The Playgoer," a magazine for the theatre published by the theatre program company of Detroit, Michigan, in the issue of Sunday, December 4, is a program cast of characters, storiettes, etc., of "The White Eagle," now being presented in the Cass Theatre of that city.

The White Eagle, a musical romance in four episodes is presented by Russell Jenny. The play is based on Edwin Milton Royales' famous play "The Squaw Man" and its cast includes very nearly a hundred characters. There are Indian chieftans, braves, squaws, English noblemen, English ladies, British officers, girl dancers, etc.

Scenes for "The White Eagle" are laid in the western part of the United States and England.

There are nine persons on the personal staff of the producer including a press representative, manager secretary, stage manager, etc.

"The White Eagle" is an extraordinary production and it will excite admiration of all who attend as well as press comment throughout Canada and the United States.

But to Chilton Countians the local coloring overshadows all other features for our own Roberta Curry is one of the leading characters, taking the part of "Lady Mary."

After months of preparation the initial performance of "The White Eagle" was given on the stage of the Princess Theatre, Montreal, on last Thanksgiving.

After a season in Montreal, Toronto and Detroit the play will be presented on Broadway on the evening of December 26th.

According to the Montreal critic, Rudolph Friml's music and singing of the principals and chorus proving the right stuff for a Broadway success. The remarkable scenic effects made a strong appeal, notably among these was the first setting entitled "At the Great Rock." The story of "The Squaw Man" has lost nothing of its beauty and interest by transition to the stage. Given a dignified opening in which "Silverwing" is consecrated as the "daughter of the tribe" action shifts to England when the audience rises to heights of enthusiasm over a swinging regimental march, excellently sung by the male members of the chorus, the catchy tilt of which is always welcome upon a second repetition. The "Indian Mating Song" also went over with flying colors. Difficult steps in the dances that were created for the production were excellently executed in the ensimble and received the big ovation of the evening.

Her many friends will be delighted to know Roberta's play went over big and we are sure that her beautiful voice contributed a great deal to the success of the production.

Walter Gillespie Run Over by Liquor Car

Federal prohibition officer, Walter Gillespie, is in the Central Alabama Hospital at Clanton, suffering with injuries received last Thursday night, when he was run over by a car which is believed to have had a load of whiskey.

Officers Gillespie, Seals, and Loss Robinson, had gone into Stumps Hills to look after a car that was reported to have gone in after a load of whiskey. They stationed themselves at a place to block the road and stop the car as it came out.

One car was held up with three boys from Birmingham, H. R. Flynn, F. L. Armstrong, and J. J. McGowan. They had a small quantity of whiskey, and were arrested and taken into custody on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

This car was believed by the officers to be a lead for the car that was to come behind with the cargo. They rmained in waiting and in a short time a second car came along. When the officers made an effort to stop the second car, the driver, instead of stopping, stepped on the gas. As he came by where the officers were stationed he was making great speed, and officer Gillespie was hit by the car before he could get out of the way. His injuries are not serious, and he will be able to get out of the hospital before many days.

Chilton High Girls Win Basketball Game

Will Play Centerville High On Local Court Next Friday Afternoon

On last Wednesday afternoon the Chilton Hi Lassies opened the Basket Ball season by winning a game from Marbury. Both teams palyed well and showed good coaching thoughout the entire game. The visiting team looked as though they might tie the score several times but not once did their score exceed Chilton's. At the end of the first half the score was 12-14 and the final score was 15-19.

Kathryn Johnson played a good game, and seemed to be the star forward, as she shot 17 of the 19 points for Chilton. Vera Jones the other forward also played a good game by her passing and swiftness. The Marbury girls on an average seemed to be taller than the Chilton girls, but it was not many times that the Marbury jumping center out-jumped Capt. Carrie Foshee. Mildred Danforth, the running center was quick and always on the spot. Mary Lee Pyron and Vivian Sanders showed up well as guards and it was by free shots that helped Marbury with her score as one of the Marbury forwards was a sure shot at this. Chilton girls received only 2 or 3 points from free shooting. The same line-up was used throughout the game for Chilton.

We are unable to give the line-up of the Marbury team but two Miss Culpeppers were stars for Marbury. Also Miss Kelly and Miss Lewis played well and gave Chilton Lassies a hard fight.

The Chilton Girls will have another game Friday afternoon with Centerville, on the local court, at 3:30 oclock The admission will be 10 and 20 cents.

CHICAGO RELIGIOUS

Survey Shows 90 Per Cent of People Are Church Members

Chicago, Dec., 10—Chicago ridiculed by the righteous for its rackets and rascals, is 90 per cent religious, the Chicago Church Federation has found.

This ratio, nine church members to one having no denominationol connection, is unsurpassed in any other city of a half million or more in the United State, the federation said in a survey report Saturday.

There are about 2,000 churches in the metropolitan area, said Walter R. Mee, secretary of the federation. Protestants and Catholics are about equal in membership, continued Mee, each having about 1,250 communicants. Those of Jewish membership approxiamtely 400,000.—Birmingham News.

Mr. J. W. Heflin and Mr. Lonnie Gore of Mineral Springs spent Tuesday in our city.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Higgins and son, Joe Frank, and Miss Imogene Sims motored to Birmingham Tuesday.

Miss Margaret Hester

This is our regular weekly feature story about some noted Chilton County man or woman who has gone out from his or her native home and made good in the world at trade, occupation, art, or profession.

In the past we have looked with awe and wonder at a small town girl who has had the courage to brave a big city and seek her career there.

At first thought it might seem incredible that a Clanton girl had the courage to seek her fortune in the business world of New York City, but those who know Margaret Hester realize that a girl of her capability can really realize her ambitions.

The oft repeated story of countless girls and boys who anxiously seek interviews with powerful business heads only to be promptly refused the compliment that cold business like New York has bestowed upon Margaret.

It is interesting to review Margaret's childhood days which were spent in Clanton. In fact her first recollections are of Clanton where her parents have lived for a number of years. She attended the Clanton Grammar School and in 1919 she graduated from the Chilton County High School with high honors. It is interesting to note that throughout her high school days and part of her grammar school days she was one of four friendss who were rivals for honors.

In 1923 Miss Hester graduated at Judson College where her record was also an enviable one. In 1924 she taught music at Columbiana and the following year at a place near Pensacola. The next year Miss Hester became interested in a business career and consequently took a business course in Birmingham after which she accepted a position with the Postal Telegraph Company in that city. Then with less than a year's experience Margaret set out for New York where she became secretary to the director of a large coporation. Mr. Smith, her employer was formerly an instructor at Columbia University who gave up his profession to become a director for his company. So effectively has Miss Hester served her employer that she has assumed more duties and directs his affairs during his protracted absences.

Our hats are off to a girl with Miss Hester's ambition and initiative and we are glad that Clanton can claim her as our own.

Miss Hester is quite a favorite in Clanton as well as many sections of Alabama where she has won a host of warm friends through her sweet personality.

ROUTE FOR SELMA - CLANTON ROAD IS MAPPED OUT FROM PLANTERSVILLE IN HERE

The surveying crew of the State Highway department, locating the new highway from Selma to Clanton, reached the city Tuesday afternoon. They came in on Fourth Avenue by way of the railroad bridge, and intersected the Birmingham and Montgomery highway at Joe Maddox's store.

This is the continuation of the graveled road that is to connect the county seats of Chilton and Dallas Counties. The road is already built from Selma to Plantersville, and this survey is that part of the road from Plantersville to Clanton.

The new survey, we are informed, follows near the old road bed from Plantersville to Maplesville, but from Maplesville to Clanton, the route is in below the present Maplesville road and comes through that community known as Jones Town.

Who's Who In Clanton

"UNCLE DICK" JONES

A man who has known and loved Clanton from its infancy is Mr. Dick Jones who is affectionately known to his friends as "Uncle Dick."

Mr. Jones came to Clanton sixty-one years ago when the place was too small to be called a town. There were only three stores and about two hundred inhabitants here. From this small beginning and during this long period of time Mr. Jones has believed in Clanton and has proved it by standing by the town. In every phase of its progress he has had an active part in the development of our modern little city.

Mr. Jones, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frances Jones, was born in Russell County, Alabama, near Columbus, Georgia, in 1848. At an early age the Jones family moved to Auburn where Mr. Jones received his education. In 1866 he came to Clanton and took a position with Hall & Campbell, a big saw mill company at Stanfield Switch. His next position was with Hayes Hunt, another saw mill three miles west of Clanton. For a number of years after that Mr. Jones devoted his time to the saw mill business in which he was most successful.

In 1886 he married Miss Rosa Wood of Coopers and in 1890 he lost his splendid wife. Mr. Jones is the father of two children, Mrs. T. C. MsSwain and Mr. Macy Jones and has four fine grand children, Louise, Mary, Elizabeth and ? ? McSwain.

Mr. Jones and his descendants have meant much to the community life of Clanton. They are prominent in church and social life of the town.

When we consider the splendid Christian character of "Uncle Dick" we are not surprised that a town backed by such men as he should become a real town.

We asked him what was his first impression of Clanton and he answered, "I liked the place and believed that it had a future." And we realize that his belief was not unfounded.

TRUTH IN LOVE

By Rece H. Rogers

I wish to impress the importance of a general awakening to a real investigation of the simple truth of God.

It would startle you to know just how few people do their own thinking in regard to religion. The world has too much confidence in their ministers and in the religion of their fathers, or parents. I do not mean to say that preachers will mislead us, but I wish to impress you that when you permit anybody to do your thinking for you, you are weakening your grip on the Rock of Ages.

This principle of depending on the leader exclusively is the very principle that brought about the terrible condition that existed from the third to the fifteenth century. The Bibles were burned during that time, and none of the masses of the people had access to them. That principle was not just peculiar to that age, but it will apply to us at this time and will bring about just as destructive results.

I am persuaded that we should spend more of our time in a study of the literal Word. I feel that the barrier that has been raised between people of different religious ideas, making it practically impossible and not at all congenial for them to meet together and study the Bible, can only be destructive to the best interest of us all.

We should come to the study of the Bible with no theory to prove, but with an open mind and a hungry, thirsty soul, just craving the simple truth.

If I have a "hobby," let it be on the study of the Bible. I shudder when I think how little interest we are taking in the teaching of the Bible to our children, but I will give the statistics on this theme, and I venture the assertion that you will be surprised when you read them.

Enemies Of Public Education Traduce Alabama Schools

Judge Hugh A. Locke Warns Voters Not To Be Misled By Paid Hirelings Opposing School Building Amendment

The enemies of education have not only criticized and misrepresented the bond amendtment for schools, but have maligned the entire educational system of the State.

They have maliciously accused the State Board of Education of attempting to build an iniquitous political machine.

They have said that the County and City Boards of Education are unfit to spend the $200,000.00 coming to their Counties.

An examination of the names of the distinguished Alabamians composing the school boards, who give their services for the common good, labels such utterances as maliciously false political buncombe.

They have made unsupported charges of political coersion and even corruption against the Superintendent of Education, his Assistants and Co-workers, although knowing them to be men of culture, refinement, ability and integrity.

In their frenzy, they have dug deep into political filth, and hurled it at innocent school children labelling them as "jelly-beans, bobbed-haired-naked-legged flappers, ball-cranks, aristocratic-Christian hybrids, whose political leanings are bolshevistic, with all its disrespect for honestly acquired property and inclination to free love."

They have attacked the Parent-Teacher Associations that have been doing the best they could to beautify the often dilapidated structures in which school children are compelled to spend their days or be deprived of an education.

While professing to be for the cause of education, they have denounced everybody connected with the System. These denunciations are often signed or spoken by unknown persons, but bear the stamp of a common origin using the same language as the campaign matter sent out in immense volume at enormous cost by the Alabama Tax Payer's Defense League, the anonymous breast works behind which education's enemies and snipers lie.

Get the bond amendment, read it and cast an intelligent vote for the thousands of boys and girls who have no school to go to, and the tens of thousands who spend their days in miserable shacks.

This is your opportunity to do something big for Education in Alaabma.

DO NOT BE MISLEAD BY PAID HIRELINGS OF AN ANONYMOUS ORGANIZATION.

(Signed) HUGH A. LOCKE,
Chairman of Citizens Committee for the Promotion of the $20,000,000 School Building Bond Amendment.

Veterans Advised to Make Application for Compensation

The following letter from James W. Cullens, State Service Commissioner, Birmingham, Ala., to editors of Alabama newspapers is self-explanatory:

To the Editors of All Alabama Papers:

Gentlemen:

You will note inclosed herewith copy of a letter from the Hon. Bibb Graves Governor of Alabama, to J. W. Cullens, State Service Commissioner.

At the request of Gov. Graves we are bringing this letter to your attention and asking that you print same in your paper in your next issue. We further request that you accord this letter the most conspicuous place possible. By so doing you will comply with the Governor's wishes and at the same time render a valuable service to thousands of Alabama Ex-Soldiers who have not as yet applied for their Adjusted Compensation which is commonly called "Free Insurance" or "Bonue."

It is desired that you stress the fact that this letter has nothing to do with claims for disability compensation but covers the "Bonus" or "Free Insurance" only.

It is also desired to stress the fact that in event a soldier died in service, or at some time subsequent thereto, without filing claim for the "Bonus" himself, that his dependent widow, children, mother or father, in the order named may make application.

In event the local American Legion Post or the Post Office cannot supply the necessary blanks, they can be secured from the State Service Commissioner, Room 201—Old P. O. Bldg., Birmingham, Ala., by asking for Blank Form W. W. C. No. 1.

Yours sincerely,
JAMES W. CULLENS,
State Service Commissioner.

"Mr. J. W. Cullens,
State Service Commissioner,
201 Old P. O. Building,
Birmingham, Alabama.

Dear Mr. Cullens:

It has been called to my attention that there are many Alabama World War Veterans and dependents of deceased World War Veterans who have failed to make application for the United States Government Adjusted Service Compensation. This compensation as you are aware, is given to honorably discharged veterans who served for more than sixty days between April 5th, 1917 and July 1st, 1919, provided their services began before the Armistice was signed.

As you know, January 1st, 1928 is the final date for making application and every ex-service man who desires to make the application should do so without delay.

I am sure that you as State Service Commissioner would like these facts to be known in order that you may be able to assist such ex-service men as may call upon you.

Yours very truly,
BIBB GRAVES."

In the ensuing gun battle, fatal to Thurman, and probably fatal to Stanford, Albert Hogland and Vince Nicholson were captured, the former slightly wounded. INDIANA TO HAVE LINCOLN SHRINE

Indiana possesses the site of the boyhood home of Abraham Lincoln and the last resting place of the martyred President's beloved mother. And Indiana intends to mark the historic spot with a Lincoln memorial which will stand for all time to come as a mark of the affection in which he patriotic Hoosiers hold the great war President.

The Lincoln shrine will be located in Spencer County in the southern part of the state and an interesting description of the proposed work is contained in a finely illustrated article in the current issue of the National Republic. The author is Col. Richard Lieber, chairman of the Indiana Conservation Commission, which has charge, among other things of Indiana's fine system of state parks.

In speaking of the proposed memorial Col. Lieber says:

"Born in Kentucky, called by the nation out of Illinois, fighting for the honor of his country in Washington and dying there in victory, yet the plastic determinative period of his life was spent in Indiana. If our country has forgotten that part, whose fault can it be but ours?

"Kentucky has enshrined his birthplace. Illinois guards the national martyr's ashes. In Washington the federal government has erected an imposing temple to his undying memory. The state of Indiana had all but forgotten her obligation as well as her opportunity. For Abraham Lincoln is the greatest Indianian of all time.

"Childhood's plastic mould, youth's glowing ambition, and the bold resolves of adolescence, in which three forms alone character and destiny are determined, find the sixteenth President of the United States a resident of Indiana. By every force that marks a man, Abraham Lincoln was a Hoosier.

"Those who have supremely achieved, tested in terms of their achievements, are found responding to character, to ideals, to truths and to convictions. Character, ideals, convictions come in youth. Men learn to know in later years, but to learn to love in the days of early life. The man who does not love truth, honor, virtue, patience and zeal from early manhood, is not guided by them in the trying hours of supreme need in after years. Those actions, which make such lustrous pages in the nation's history that all the world pays homage to them, had their roots in character that drew its substance from the soil of Indiana. Character made Lincoln great. Lincoln's character received its definite bent and form from the influences that surronded him between the years of 1816 and 1830.

The Influences of home, of mother and kin, the influence of nature and and out-of-doors, the influence of books, the influences of friends and associates, and the first feverish influences of the great world as it passed before his eyes, had cast their line in the silt of his soul. When it had hardened to the grim need of after years, those lines were indelibly graven in granite. The world knows and reserves in Lincoln the virtues he learned in the lap of southern Indiana.

"These facts, Indiana is itself becoming to recognize. There is an awakening, as from a long sleep—Indiana, in the full consciousness of the truth will speak in no uncertain words of mother and son. The world will hear. Because the words are truth, they must get themselves believed."

The Italian government has prohibited the dancing of the Charleston and the black-bottom over there. Maybe the Italians think Europe is shaky enough as it is.

The Bureau of Standards at Washington has hit upon a process which will make paper money wear longer. What we would like to have is a system which would make it last longer.

Seats on the stock exchange now sell for more than first night performance seats along Broadway.

That New York society woman who paid $4,000 for an ear will be out of luck if the old style hair dressing returns and ears becomes passe once more.

There is a Central African tribe which has a peculiar custom. In debates the speaker is required to stand on one leg only and is permitted to speak only so long as he can stand on one leg. We don't know which tribe this is but it is our opinion that we ought to know a little more about its customs.

German socialists could not get the death penalty abolished but they succeeded in getting a law passed so that in the future the manipulator of the guillotine will wear a business suit instead of the customary full dress clothes. We don't know whether this change will mean anything to the condemned victims or not but it at least ought to convince them that the headsman means business.

A new clause has been added to the Constitution. Senators will hereafter be elected by the people, subject to confirmation by the Senate.

A British authority says the American woman is beautiful but cold. How can she help it when she dosen't wear any more clothes than she does?

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Written for This Paper by
FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The report of Secretary Hoover, of the Department of Commerce for the fiscal year 1927 is one which ought to strengthen the hearts of all those who have a profound faith in the future of their country. Our wages, according to Mr. Hoover, are the highest not only in the history of America but in the history of the world. The high level of prosperity reached was the result, he declared of a permenant progress, based upon sound fundamentals of government and business, giving reason for the belief that satisfactory conditions will continue.

The story told by this annual report is indeed an encouraging one. Wages continue high and employment is in the main steady. And it is to be noted that while wages have increased and the standard of living has increased there has been no accompanying increase in the cost of living. As a matter of fact the living cost is actually a little less now than it was a year or two ago. The reason for this is the increased efficiency of the American producer which has enabled him by increasing his output and maintaining his market to sell cheaper and still pay higher wages. This new American theory is directly opposed to the prevailing theory in European countries where it is considered necessary, in order to undersell the competitor, to cut wages to the lowest possible figure that will insure human existence.

Of course the American manufacturer, in putting the new theory into effect and making it work, has been aided by the great American market. This market, with a buying power exceeding anything in the history of the world, has been able to absorb the great bulk of American production. With this market assured the producer could go ahead expanding his business and increasing its efficiency without disturbing wage levels. And the manufacturer has been assured this market by the protective tariff. It is the tariff which has kept out a flood of cheap European products that would have taken the market from the American manufacturer and the job from the American worker. In every case where the tariff has been sufficient to protect the producer at home, the industry has prospered. It has only been in cases where the tariff has not given adequate protection that there has been any slump in business with consequent idle workmen.

It is true that agriculture has suffered since deflation began. But agriculture is on the up grade now and will continue to improve. The progress may have been slow but it has been sure just the same. And is spite of the attempts of the free traders to capitalize depression in the agricultural region of the Middle West, the far-seeing leaders of that section have remained steadfast in their adherence to the protective tariff. They are going to Washington now, not to seek free trade but to ask from Congress additional protection on certain agricultural products which are now suffering because of cheap foreign competition from Australia, South America and elsewhere.

It is interesting to note in Secretary Hoover's report that our exports in the past year were greater in value than in any fiscal year since 1921. Here is ample refutation of the predictions of the internationalists that if we did not lower our tariffs and cancel the European debts our foreign trade would wither and die. Our foreign trade is still flourishing, debts remained uncancelled and the tariff has not been reduced. Evidently it still pays to look out for Uncle Sam's interests first. We cannot help the rest of the world by debasing ourselves to low foreign economic levels as the importers and international financers propose.

The way the Soviet chiefs have spurned Mr. Trotsky leads to the suspicion that Mr. Trotsky may be suffering with halitosis.

Will Rogers, the lasso humorist, who has chumming with President Calles on a special train with an occasional stop for bull-throwing exhibitions, got back to Mexico City just in time, following news that Mexican bandits had captured a circus train and carried off the performers.

WHAT is the quality that Lawrence Tibbett, David Warfield, Nazimova, William Collier, Florence Easton, Mary Boland, Sophie Tucker and other famous singers, actors, broadcasters and public speakers have found that makes LUCKY STRIKES delightful and of no possible injury to their voices?

For the answer we turned to medical men and asked them this question:

Do you think from your experience with LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes that they are less irritating to sensitive or tender throats than other cigarettes, whatever the reason?

11,105* doctors answered this question "YES."

These figures represent the opinion and experience of doctors, those whose business it is to know.

REAL ESTATE COMPANIES MUST HAVE LICENSES

The Alabama Real Estate Commission, of which L. S. Golson is secretary, has established headquarters at the state capitol and has already begun to function, with Mr. Golson in personal charge.

The Real Estate Commission which is provided for under an act of the present legislature, was created for the purpose of providing a safeguard through a state governmental agency, for real estate dealers, and owners of real estate in Alabama. It exercises a general supervision over the real estate business in the state and no real estate firm or agent can legally operate in Alabama without a license issued by this commission.

Licenses are due on and after January 1, 1928 and application should be made for them at once. Under the law a license fee of $10 a year is charged real estate brokers, and a fee of $5 for issuance of a license to a real estate agent or salesman, who is connected with or doing business for some real estate firm. Mr. Golson, secretary of the commission, who formerly was a member of the present legislature and whose home is in Fort Deposit, has announced that all applications for licenses should be addressed to him at the state capitol, Montgomery, and should be accompanied by a certified check for the amount of the required license fee.

He has announced further that there will be no penalty required in the case of all those who make application for license before January 1. Issuance of license certificates will begin as soon as the bank forms are properly filled out and returned to the office at Montgomery. Anyone desiring application blanks may obtain same by writing the Alabama Real Estate Commission, Montgomery.

The Alabama Real Estate Commission, which is composed of F. E. Butler, chairman, Birmingham; Alexander Foreman, Mobile, and Robert A. Yarbrough, Montgomery, has the power, under the law to hear and determine all complaints arising in the ordinary operation of the real estate business in the state. Right of appeal from the commission's rulings in these matters, to courts of law is, of course, provided for also.

CUT TIMBER TO GROW TIMBER

Montgomery, December 12.—That more valuable timber may be grown if some of the stand is cut is pointed out by the Alabama Commission of Forestry. This is somewhat at variance with the doctrine frequently advanced that, although forests are grown for use, all of the trees should be allowed to mature before being removed.

To make clear one way to grow timber is to cut timber, it is necessary only to recall that a tree is a plant and that forestry necessarily parallels in many respects the practices of agriculture and other plant sciences. It is hoped to be borne in mind, also, that the most valuable timber crop is what is desired, rather than the largest, either in volume or in number of trees. In this connection, it must be remembered that both young trees and those that are overmature produce poorer grades of lumber than those that have reached practically full growth but have not yet begun to deteriorate. Still another point to consider is that certain trees, although not yet mature, have outstripped the remaining stand so that they partake somewhat of the mature of open grown trees, being limby and knotty above a certain height and thus containing inferior materials.

In order to obtain the greatest possible yield of most valuable material from the forest, therefore, it is necessary to select carefully the trees which will not increase further in volume, and also those which retard the growth of the better specimens. Such trees should be cut in order that the remainder of the stand many continue to develop to its highest value. Usually this procedure conforms to what is called the selection method of cutting, one of the standard systems of silviculture or the growing of forest trees.

BLEED THROUGH

Ford's Announcement Of New Car Fulfilled

Six months ago Henry Ford announced the coming production of "a new Ford car, superior in design and performance to any now available in the low-priced light-car field." Friday the new car was shown to the public for the first time.

What the public saw was an automobile as new as the forecasts had represented it to be. They saw bodies with beauty of line and color, and with every accessory that has come to be associated with cars of a much higher price class. They saw performance that would compare favorably with almost any automobile of the day—speed, pick-up, flexibility, power. What they did not see, however, was the six months of preparation back of the car, which in magnitude and accomplishment is unique in world industry.

When Mr. Ford announced to the public that he was to introduce a new car he had not only conceived this car, but it was already well on the way to materialization. In the years that the Model T had been produced many inventions, ideas, improvements had presented themselves which did not fit into the scheme of the Model T. Many of these things were retained, against the day when the new idea of automotive efficiency would pave the way of a new car. The formal announcement, last May, was principally becasue it marked the end of production of the Model T as a complete unit.

Cessation of production of the Model T, did, however, turs the full force of the vast organization of the Ford company to the problem of creating and producing a new car, with the exception of that part of the facilities necessary for the prodcution of the Model T replacement parts. This meant opportunity for he reconstruction of not one plant, but many. Thirty-three assembly plants in the United States, the Ford Motor Company of Canada, and twelve plants in foreign countries had to be confronted. A greater problem still, the fountain-head of the parts to feed the branch plants had to be rebuilt almost from the ground—the great Ford isdustries at Highland Park, at Fordson, and along the River Rouge.

Impressive figures almost without end could be quoted to illustrate the magnitude of this task. There have been estimates that the job cost as high as $250,000,000 to accomplish. This figure is too high—how much so, Ford officials will not say. But it was a staggering total of millions, unquestionably.

Strange as it may seem, however, Henry Ford did not figure is terms of millions. He was building a new car—a car which would be as much an improvement of its day, as the Model T was back in 1908. Engineers took certain basic principles and built around them a sew car. When it was completed it was very close to the car that Mr. Ford ahd visualized. It was then that Mr. Ford gave voice to a statment that has been frequently quoted since:

"I will represent the public."

Even his engineers did not sense the full significance of this simple statemest at the time. The plants were being re-tooled. Re-tooling an automobile plant designed to produce thousands of automobiles in a day is no simple matter. Giant machines weighing many tons and costing thousands of dollars had to be designed and built. Countless thousands of smaller tools ond precision instruments had to be manufactured. Orders were built in the Ford plants. But Mr. Ford was "representing the public". A small change meant the reconstruction of great machines which required four months to build. But if this change meant a slightly greater gasoline mileage, or a trifle more of acceleration in traffic, the machines were rebuilt. And so the story went. Mr. Ford started again and again that he was not building a model to meet a specific date or a predetermined price. His aim was fixed on an auotmobile that would be as revolutionry in 1927 as the Model T was in 1908.

These are some of the reasons, in the opinion of members of the Ford organization, why cost figures of the transition from the Model T to the Model A meant little. In the final analysis, they say, most of the expense will be absorbed in greater production and in higher plant efficiency. The maximum production in the days of the Model T was 8,400 per day. The reconstructed Ford industries will have a capacity even greater than that. This will not be reached for some time, but the capacity is there, to be approached as the market demands indicate.

Mr. Ford states that the coal and iron mines, the glass plant, and other "feeder" industries of the Ford Motor Company exact no profit—that the only source of profit is the Ford car. But these "feeder" indsutries have been enlarged and strengthened during the period of transition.

The assembly line at the Fordson plant is today creeping slowly, as compared with the normal production, but each day sees increasing speed. Back of the assembly line, in the units where the parts are made which feed the assembly, a more impressive idea of what has taken place in the Ford industries may be had.

Working limits which would do credit to some of the finest automobiles of today are being imposed in many deparments. Variations of more than one ten-thousandths of an inch are not permitted in many parts. The speed that characterized production of the Model T is being attained, but it is speed with almost uncanny accuracy. Henry Ford is demonstrating that his mass-production methods can be applied to the manufacture of any type of car, without sacrificing the mechanical accuracy which is essential to maximum performance of the finished automobile.

He is demonstrating something else, at which engineers are marveling, he is utilizing methods which had been pronounced impractical. Electrical welding of essential parts, such as the rear end assembly, is being employed, with a consequent strengtheneing of the car, and elimination of sources of noise and troubles. New features of four-cylinder motor design have resulted in greater power and flexibility than had been anticipated. And so the story goes— a story of new methods, revolutiosary principles of manufacture, of design.

This is some of the background of the new Ford car which is to be encountered by those who dig into the story of the happenings of the last six months. It is a story which will be many more months in unfolding, as the American and foreign assembly plants swing into line for the production of complete cars.

MAPLE SPRINGS NEWS

The Maple Springs Sunday School met on last Sunday, and had a good class. After the lesson was finished, Rev. M. J. Parrish preached a wonderful sermon. In the afternoon the Maple Springs and Poplar Springs Singing Societies met at two o'clock, and due to the bad weather, we did not have as large a crowd as we had expected, but we had a good singing for the bad day. We only had two directors, Mr. O. L. Devaughn, chairman, and W. F. Gilliland, but everyone seemed to enjoy the singing. We are glad of our Society and hope that on the next meeting we will have a larger crowd and a lot of help. Do not forget our society meets on the fourth Sunday at 2 o'clock at Poplar Springs. That will be Christmas Day, as you know, but I don't think we could spend the day in any better manner. We invite everybody to come and be with us and enjoy the day in song service. Don't forget the date.—O. L. Devaughn, Chairman; W. F. Gilliland, Secretary.

Value Of Nitrate On Cotton Shown In Test

Production Increased From One-Sixth to Bale Per Acre by Alabama Man

E. C. Simpson of Ohatchie, Ala., a former railroad engineer, has not only regained his health on an Alabama farm, but has also attained financial independence there. Twenty years ago Mr. Simpson gave up his job as engineer and went to Ohatchie, buying farm land at $5 an acre. Today the same land is rated at $100 an acre but that figure is purely theoratical as Mr. Simpson says he wouldn't take that price. He attributes the rise in land values to the increased yields per acre which the farmers in that vicinity have made in recent years.

"When I started farming here the average yield of cotton was one bale on six acres," said Mr. Simpson. "We used cottonseed meal solely for our nitrogen. In 1911 I heard of the wonderful results with nitrate of soda on corn and bought one sack as an experiment. I had never heard of it being used on anything but corn, but that year I had a little soda left over and threw it on one end of my cotton field. That little patch of my cotton which received the soda was much healthier that year and the stalks produced a great deal more cotton than the others in the field. The next year I bought two sacks of soda and put it on more cotton with equally good results.

"Since 1913 I have never used less than three tons of nitrate of soda, depending upon the acreage I have in cotton. From one-sixth of a bale per acre my yield has increased to one bale per acre."

This year Mr. Simpson produced 50 bales on 5 acres. He fertilized according to the Auburn maximum, using 200 pounds of soda per acre, one-fourth in the mixture under the cotton and three fourths as a side-dressing.

Mr. Simpson's neighbors have followed his fertilizing methods with the result that the general yield per acre has increased and a bale per acre is by no means unusual in that county.

CHEVROLET MOTOR CO. ORGANIZES NEW SALES ZONES

Widespread changes in its field personnel, creation of new sales zones and regions, and establishments of better facilities for handling fleet and commercial car business were announced today by the Chevrolet Motor Co.

Outstanding in the new arrangement are two new sales zones, one at Detroit, Michigan, and the other at Knoxville, Tenn., and the creation of two new regions, one with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., and the other at Dallas, Tex. These changes will bring the factory organization into closer touch with the dealers and will enable the latter to provide better service, quicker delivery and generally improved facilities for the public.

The new Detroit zone was established on December 1 under the direction of A. H. Goodman, formerly Detroit city sales manager, while the Knoxville zone will be established on Jan. 1, with J. E. Johnson of the central office as sales manager. These will bring the total number of zone sales offices in the United States to 45, ten of which were established this year.

In the new regional divisons territory formerly making up three regions has been reapportioned into five regions. This change resulted, factory officials explained, because the growth of business in the original regions exceeded the normal volume.

Under the new plan, the former Southeastern region, with headquarters at Norwood, Ohio, is renamed the Mid-east region. It remains under the sales managership ofA. F. Young and compirses the Norwood, Indianapolis, Louisville, Knoxville and Charleston, W. Va. sales zones.

The new region at Atlanta takes the name Southeastern region, and will be under L. S. Costley, former assistant to Mr. Young, and embraces the Atlantea, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Columbia and Charlotte zones which formerly were a part of the region at Norwood.

In the Middle West region with offices at St. Louis under A. W. L. Gilpin, the Denver zone is being transferred from the Pacific Coast region to the Middle West region; while theDallas, Houston, New Orleans and Oklahoma City zones are region to form the new Southwestern region with headquarters at Dallas under Felix Doran, Jr., formerly assistant to Mr. Gilpin. The Southwest region also takes over the El Paso zone from the Pacific Coast region.

With these changes effective, the total number of regions is increased from six to eight. Those unaffected are the Great Lakes region with headquarters at Chicago, the Flint region at Flint, Michigan, and the Atlantic Coast region at Tarrytown, N. Y.

The following changes in zones sales managerships also were made on December 1: F. H. Knight went from the home office to the Richmond, Va., zone to succeed E. E. Jones; C. P. Fisken, ormerly sales manager of the Janesville zone goes to Indianapolis to succeed C. R. Lee, transferred to another General Motors divison; P. A. Jerrue, formerly Denver sales manager, succeeds Mr. Fisken at Janesville; C. E. O'Meara, formerly Houston sales manager, goes to Denver; and G. H. Kavanaugh, formerly assistant sales manager of the Little Rock zone, becomes the Houston sales manager.

Silmultaneous with these changes was the annuoucement that commercial car and fleet sales managers are being added to the personnel of approximately half the zone sales offices. Thes additions were made necessary through the rapid growth in business of this type, and, with an expert commercial car and fleet man in charge, the company will be in a position to extend its service to business concerns.

109TH BIRTHDAY OF ALABAMA

Unofficial Celebration Made in Many Schools of the State

Today Alabama celebrated her one hundred and ninth birthday as a Union State. The state was admitted into the Union December 14, 1819, and it was then that the territory to the south and to a great extent still unexplored began functioning as a sovereign state among those which composed the United States.

Alabama's birthday was celebrated unofficially in schools thruout the state. The suggestion for the annual celebration was made by Mrs. William E. Sorsby, nee Idyl King, of Birmingham. At the meeting of the Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs, in Selma, May, 1898, Mrs. Sorsby made her suggestion, which has been handed down through the years.

Following the Selma convention arrangements were made for exercises December 14, 1899, under the auspices of the Birmingham Woman's Club. At her suggestion the Alabama Educational Association June 8, 1893, unanimously adopted Alabama Day for observance in the State schools on December 14, and it was this year, 1903, that the first celebration was held throughout the state.

The School Bond Issue Made Plain

(By G. W. Brock)

There seems to be so much fog, smoke, and confusion over the bond issue that a few words of explanation are absolutely necessary in order that the voters may be able to decide this issue intelligently.

1. Will the Bond Issue Raise Taxes? This is the crux of the whole matter to the average man. Most people would vote gladly for the bond issue if they had the full assurance that taxes would not be raised on account of it.

Before this measure was passed, the matter was carefully studied by bond experts, by the Ways and Means Committee of the legislature, by the governor himself, and by the best brains in the state. A certain per cent of the state's revenues was set aside to take care of the interest and also to provide a sinking fund which would retire the bonds in due time. The best authorities assure us that the amount set aside out of the revenue bill will take care of the interest and the bonds without any necessity for taxation. The law plainly says that furthermore, no additional taxes shall be levied to take care of the school bonds; therefore, there is not the shadow of a chance for taxes to be raised.

The opponents of the bond issue have proclaimed loudly that the present revenue bill would bring an enorous amount of money into the State Treasury, from eight to twelve millions of dollars; then in contradiction to this, they now say the bill will not take care of the bonds, and that more taxation will be necessary. In one breath they shout too much money; in the next, not enough. Their opposition is based on misrepresentation. If the present revenue bill will bring in from eight to twelve millions of dollars, why should the opponents of the bond issue scare the people by saying the revenue bill is not adequate and that taxation is necessary? Rather inconsistent, we should say.

It is a matter of public knowledge that the majority of the opponents of the school bond issue was very anxious a year ago to pass a bill for the issuance of $75,000,000 of road bonds. They said this amount was a small matter when compared with the wealth of the state and that the state could take care of these bonds without costing the people anything. They had offices of distribution; they spent thousands of dollars in flooding the state with literature and sending out speakers all over the country to convince the people that the sale of $75,000,000 of bonds was a small matter; but now they shout that $20,000,000 of school bonds would bankrupt the state and increase taxes. If they were right in the first case, how asburd to try to mislead the people in this way.

Another point is that the scholl bonds would not be issued immediately, but would run through a period of years being used from time to time as different counties would make plans for school buildings. The bonds would be retired in the same way and would absolutely cost the people nothing. The real fact is that this measure is more in the interests of rural schools than any other, for they will receive two dollars for school buildings to one given to the higher institutions; to make it plain, the county schools will receive nearly $14,000,000 for building school houses while the higher institutions will receive about $6,000,000. So it is very plain that this measure is almost entirely for the immediate benefit of the rural schools.

2. The Bond Issue is for the purpose of erecting school buildings. This measure provides that $200,000 will go to each county for the erection of public school buildings. This is the only measure enacted by the last legislature which helps the rural people. If the bond issue is defeated, the rural schools will get nothing for the erection of buildings and the children of the country will remain in the same old shacks in which they are now housed so uncomfortably. The opposers of the bond issue are therefore opposed to the building of schoolhouses. The bond issue will project the building of schoolhouses ten years ahead of our present rate of building. It will ake the rural schools comfortable immediately, rather than wait ten or fifteen years, if the present plan should continue. The people need relief immediately, not ten or twenty years hence.

Allow me to call particular attention to one very important point. The present revenue bill appropriates large sums to the higher institutions amounting to nearly $4,000,000. If the bond issue passes, all these appropriations will be automatically abolished and this money will go to the paying of the bonds and those higher institutions will get their money from the sale of the bonds and not from the direct appropriations as they now exist; in other words, these institutions are well provided for out of the present revenues, but the rural schools are not. The bonds will build a new school house in every rural community in the state if the measure passes. If this measure is defeated, the rural schools will get nothing and the higher institutions will still get their appropriations. This is a patriotic measure and is for the uplift of the rural communities of Alabama. It was inaugurated by the friends of the people. They have no motive except for the good of their counry.

3. Whence comes the opposition to this bond issue? Evidently the organized opposition is from the Big Money Interests throughout the state operating through Selma as a mouthpiece. Of course, many individuals have been based and have misunderstood this measure , those who are opposing it conscientiously. To such I would say that if you will investigate both sides of this question, you would change your mind and vote for this bond issue. Would the rich corporations who oppose the bond issue, be willing for their children to attend the rural schools of Alabama in these miserable schoolhouses? They seem willing for your children to have no schoolhouses in order that they may save you from paying tax! This tax is only a hoax, a matter of deception. They are trying to save not you but themselves from paying the taxes required in the present revenue bill.

Now in conclusion let me call the attention of every voter in the county to the fact that the bond issue will give you good public schoolhouses throughout the country and will not increase your tax rate one cent and will not cost you anything. If you allow yourselves to be misled by the shouts of the corporations, you will get no public school buildings and your children will be uncomfortable as they are today and the rural schools will get no help. Be not deceived, for the people talking against the bond issue are not interested in you. Of course there are many good citizens who are mistaken about this matter who oppose the bond issue believing they are right, and I would not class them as belonging to corporations. They are simply misinformed and deceived by this organized opposition. Many good men are opposing this measure through the scare of taxation. They will change and vote for it when they clearly understand it.

4. Are schoolhouses needed in the Country? Let us examine the conditions in a few typical counties. By the last school census, Dallas County had 1,615 pupils within the educational age; Coffee County, 6,188. The value of school buildings per child in Dallas County was $163.14; in Coffee County, $29.79. The total cost of instruction in Dallas County was $66,536; in Coffee County, $64 367. In other words, 1,600 children in Dallas County cost as much for instructions as 6,000 pupils in Coffee County. The average salary in Dallas County was $294; in Coffee County, $407.

Does Coffee County need schoolhouses? Does it need money? Does it need better teachers? Coffee County is typical of forty counties in Alabama. Thes inequalities run through all the so-called white counties of the state.

Let us come nearer home. In Choctaw County the value of school building per child was $32.50. The average teachers' salary was $565.70; in Dallas County the value of school buildings per child ws $174.14, the average teachers' salary was $924. In Clarke County the value of school buildings pr child was $36.70, the average value of school buildings per child was $36.40, the average salary was $421.80. Do these counties need school buildings? And yet the big fight comes from a portion of the state where school children are comfortably and well-housed. It also comes from big Birmingham with schoolhouses worth a million dollars and with minimum salaries for beginners in the elementary schools of $1,000.

Let me summarize the following facts:

1. From the bond issue nearly $14,000,000 will go to the respective counties for school buildings alone; not one dollar can be spent for any other purpose.

2. From this bond issue nearly $6,000,000 will go to the higher institutions for school buildings alone, not one dollar can be paid for salaries or for any other purpose except the erection of buildings.

3. No additional taxes can be levied to pay off these bonds because the law expressly forbids it. In the light of these facts, who can vote against this bond issue?

NEW OPPORTUNITY TO ENTER THE AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS

One of the world's largest and oldest automobile manufacturers is establishing dealers to sell a new six-cylinder closed car which will list at

$795 f. o. b. factory

Other models of this same manufacturer range in price up to $2450. They will all be available to the dealers who handle this new popular priced car.

In communities of small size, however, you need contract only for the fast-selling low-priced model.

Practically no capital needed to Start Business

A contract has been worked out to enable dealers to get started representing this new car with hardly any investment.

A sliding scale of commission increases from the base figure if the dealer maintains a demonstrator, handles trade-ins, and maintains a service station.

It is not necessary to do any one of these things at the start, but they may be added one by one as time elapses and profits will thereby be increased.

No such favorable franchise has ever before been offered by any manufacturer

If you believe that you have the ability to sell in your community an automobile that is destined to be the sensation of 1928—a closed car that will offer for $795 a beautiful exterior, lacquered in the latest fashionable shades, an interior luxuriously upholstered, arm rests, ash receiver, gasoline gauge on the dash, coincidental lock to steering and ignition, steering wheel control of twin-beam headlights, rear vision mirror, automatic windshield cleaner, and similar refinements—proved power to maintain high speed indefinitely—quality construction throughout—if you are able to sell such a car in your community, send in the attached coupon at once.

Room 2615, 310 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

PAN AM GASOLINE - PAN AM MOTOR OILS
TIRES AND TUBES

It will pay you to insist on the improved Pan-Am motor oil. This tougher oil retains its body in spite of engine heat and friction; protecting cylinder walls and bearings effectively.

Pan-Am Gasoline is clean gasoline—carefully processed and purified to make it so. This clean fuel means added miles to the gallon. Get it at the familiar cream-colored Pan-Am pumps.

Never before so important to buy

CLEAN GASOLINE ...TOUGHER OIL

TODAY'S motors achieve their smoother power and more efficient operation by greater demands than ever before on fuel and lubricating oil. Their higher speed develops scorching heat that soon breaks down old-fashioned oils. And higher compressions demand carbon-free cylinders.

To meet these new conditions Pan-Am offers you two better motor products—

CLEAN gasoline

The extra-careful Pan-Am refining process removes the carbon-forming elements and corrosives found in many gasolines, as well as dirt and sediment. Notice how crystal-clear it is next time you see a Pan-Am pump. No wonder it keeps your motor cleaner—gives more power and mileage.

TOUGHER oil

The improved Pan-Am motor oil is especially refined from paraffin-base crudes to stand up under greater heat and friction. It is tougher; adhering to cylinder walls and bearings effectively. Extra-long life cuts the cost of this tougher oil below that of doubtful kinds.

Both of these better motor products are sold by Pan-Am dealers everywhere. Look for the familiar cream-colored Pan-Am pump. It marks a reliable place to trade.

A delightful surprise met Miss Giula Williams as she entered her music class room at Thorsby Institute Monday morning. The first thing that attracted her attention was a large bunch of carnations. Soon, however, she spied a box of books she had never seen there before. Next she was surrounded by an excited group of her music students all enjoying the expression of amazement on Miss Williams' face as she realized the flowers and the books were intended as a Christmas present to her from her music class. The books comprised an edition of Groves' Dictionary of music and musicians in six large volumes, something she had long wanted and best of all was a card on the packge inscribed "Because we love you."

During the past few days the stork has been unusually busy in Thorsby. On Friday of last week a lovely baby girl came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Franklin. On Monday twin boys were found in Thorsby but somehow they had become separated and one found a home at Mr. and Mrs. Varney Wyatt's while the other one is claimed by Mr. and Mrs. Richardson. Each weighed 9 pounds. We have not been furnished the names of these new arrivals but have been told the mothers and little ones are doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Each desire to express their grateful appreciation of the many offers of sympathy and help they have received from their neighbors and friends, which practically includes the whole community.

The oyster dinner given by W. M. U. last Saturday cleared $14 for the Baptist church building fund. Four dollars was also received from the sale of fancy articles. They hope to have another dinner in the near future.

Mary Marie, youngest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Each, created some surprise and anxiety in the community by developing a full grown case of diphtheria. She was immediately quarantined in a room at home under the care of Dr. S. C. Wood, who administered the usual remedy that has robbed this child's disease of it former terrors. She yielded to the treatment and is now convalescing.

Don't forget the play "Always in Trouble" to be given during Holiday week. This play is pronounced a good one by many who have seen it. It will be given under the auspices of the Baptist young people for the benefit of the church building fund. Time and place will be announced later.

The Ladies Guild Social will be held Thursday afternoon, December 22 at the home of Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer.

Congregational Church Sunday School Christmas exercises will be held at the church Christmas night, Sunday, December 25.

There will be services in English language at the Lutheran church next Sunday morning, December 18, and their Sunday School Christmas entertainment will be held at the church, Monday night, December 26, to which you are invited.

Next Sunday night at 7:15 Rev. J. E. Each will give another of his Missionary lectures illustrated with Stereopticon views. The subject this time will be "Under Ceylon's Palms."

The Lutheran Ladies Aid Society will meet Thursday afternoon, December 15, at the home of Mrs. E. N. Dyrhovd.

Misses Giula and Margaret Williams and Mary Sue Robinson were visitors in Birmingham Saturday.

Mrs. George Freeman and daughter, Meryl, went to Birmingham Monday on a shopping expedition.

Misses Gertie and Edith Sunberg had as their guests Sunday Claude Carlson of Ensley and Richard Johnson of Selma, Ruby Price of Lomax and Edna Childress of Thorsby.

Mrs. E. L. Sunberg spent the day last Monday in Selma.

Miss Agnes Leary left Monday to spend a week with friends in Birmingham.

The Christmas program of the Literary Society of Thorsby Institute will be held on the night of December 1. The program will consist of readings, music and a play. Every one is invited. The admission is 10 cents.

The C. E. Society of the Congregational church met Sunday at six thirty. The topic was "Good Mottoes for Christian Living." Miss Odie Lee Arthur was the leader. She had announced the Sunday before that all come, and be able to give a motto. Many gave good mottoes. We were favored with a special musical number by the "Loyal Helpers" of the Sunday School.

KNOCKING THE KNOCKERS

"What have we gained by the World War?" asks Dr. Frank Crane in a syndicated article, and then proceeds to give the answer: "Nothing."

But the good doctor might as well ask after a smallpox epidemic: "What have you gained by smallpox?" and then proving that it really has not helped us any proceed to argue as in the case of war, that hereafter we should not prepare to defend ourselves against, by quarantine and vaccination.

The good William Jennings Bryan was loudly applauded when he declared, some years ago, that all we needed to do to keep out of war was to refuse to prepare for it. A little later, while he was Secretary of State, we were at war.

And we were at war because we were so illy prepared for war, had done so much talking about being "too proud to fight" and so much acting along that line in Mexico that the imperial German government practically concluded that Uncle Sam could be booted all over the high seas without creating any result but a few written complaints.

And when we got into war our boasted unpreparedness cost us billions of dollars in hurry-up preparation.

There are millions of people who believe that we never would have had to go to war if we had not been supposed to be hopeless pacifists in a complete state of unpreparedness. A toothless dog's barking scares nobody.

Indeed if we had been supposed to be prepared to fight if necessary our intervention might have stopped the war bfore we got into it. There was a time when both sides were willing to quit and a few well placed threats to both sets of combatants might have brought them to a basis of peace.

The cost of the war to the United States was far greater than has been generally supposed. Probably a hundred billion dollars—a third of our national wealth at the beginning of the war, would not represent the ultimate burden of our participation in that struggle. No one claims that the postive gains were a profitable investment.

We did gain this much by the war. We proved that we were not a jelly-fish among nations. The vastness of our war effort, the unity of our people in the national cause demonstrated that whoever attacks the United States will have a man-size job. A nation that could transport two million troops across the Atlantic and have two million more under arms ready to follow them, does not offer a standing invitation to invasion. By that tremendous demonstration of capacity for defense we may have saved ourselves future trouble. Our relations with Japan for instance have undergone great improvement.

That this nation contemplates, or ever will contemplate war, for any purpose other than that of national defense, is theory entertained by no person frendly to or comprehending the United States. We have all the territory we want or need or can govern. The talk of "militarizing" the United States is balderdash, mostly inspired by persons who, having no affection for this country, are willing to see it rendered defenseless against attack from without or within. It is significant that few of those who root for this disarmament program ever have anything appreciative to say of the American government.

What we have to consider is what we might have had to pay if we had lost the war. No one knows, indeed, but that if we had stayed out of the war the impoverished combatants would not have found some joint reason for "jumping on" a nation it was believed had been enormously enriched by the war. Feeling against the United States even among the nations we helped seems now to be at fever heat; what would it be if we had not helped at all, and the question of paying debts incurred in this country for ammunition that had all been shot away, and food and clothing that had been used up, was up for decision?

Most of the arguments against reasonable national preparedness are glittering non-sequiturs. If fine phrases and resounding resolutions or even good intentions could make perpetual peace certain all the spears would long ago have been beaten into pen points. At any philosophy which ignores realities is not only false but dangerous.

This country no more wants war than it wants yellow fever, or bubonic plague. Yet there are breeding spots of both yellow fever and bubonic plague in the world. And there are breeding spots of war over which we have no jurisdiction. To ignore these facts is not to destroy them.

DOING NOTHING

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

IT IS a real art to do nothing and find comfort and pleasure in it, an art which unfortunately I have never learned. We were never idle at home when I was a boy. During the day, winter or summer, there were always chores to be done, odd jobs waiting to be accomplished when the regular work was finished or interrupted. In summer we went to bed as soon as the work of the day was finished, and during the long winter evenings there were books to be read and this task I took to very kindly.

"Can't you sit still for a minute?" mother used to ask me as I wandered about restlessly. I couldn't then and I cannot today. When the regular tasks of the day are over I still must be busy with something—reading or writing, or a game, or something which will keep my hands employed.

Now there is Carter—he can sit for an hour, or two for that matter, smoking—not saying a word, but simply blowing rings and relaxing his muscles and looking into space. He gets much comfort from this pastime three times a day. But as for me, I get no pleasure in smoking. A very dear friend of mine—a minister, by the way, who had my welfare at heart—did his best to encourage me to cultivate the habit, sent me a pipe and a can of fine tobacco, saying that if I should become wedded to the pipe I would take life more easily, would gain a certain poise, and grow old less quickly. Doing nothing would be good for me, he thought. Very likely he was correct, but I didn't stick to it long enough to learn.

I have watched the great Hindu poet Tagore sit for an hour or two silent, motionless, looking into space quite oblivious of those around him. He was meditating I was told, a very good practice for us all, no doubt, but one of which I grow tired in a very few minutes. I am too active for prolonged meditation, good as it would be for me.

When Morris goes home from his office at night he takes a sheaf of letters with him to look over. When he goes for a vacation his stenographer and a clerk or two go along and he has a long distance telephone installed in his sitting room. He has no knowledge of how to do nothing.

When Hanley goes off for his summer vacation, however, he can lie on the sand for hours at a time doing nothing but watch the gulls in their flight, or the clouds drifting lazily overhead. He doesn't even think he says, but simply lies there and breathes and does nothing, and out of this lethargy he comes back alert, rested, ready for whatever hard job comes along. He says it is worth everything to him, this ability to do nothing for a time and to enjoy the doing. It is a panacea for tired nerves, a sure cure for worry. It is a game which every high-strung overworked business or professional man should learn to play—the game of doing nothing and enjoying it.

Strategy

NEGROES TO DIE AT KILBY UNLESS GOVERNOR ACTS

Jeff Coleman, Birmingham negro, will die in the electric chair at Kilby prison after midnight Friday night and Bob Eastman, Hale County negro, will be electrocuted Decmeber 30, unless Governor Graves grants reprieves or commutes the death sentences to life imprisonment. The board of pardons has voted against commutation of the death sentences.

Coleman was convicted of the murder of A. A. Stanley, Birmingham policeman, who was killed while attempting to arrest Coleman and another negro on a charge of stealing an automobile. Eastman was sentenced for the murder of his mother-in-law and brother-in-law.

The board during the next two days will render a final decision on the application of Frank McAdams, Shelby County negro, for commutation of his death sentence to life imprisonment. If his sentence is not changed nor the date postponed he will become Coleman's companion in the walk to the death house on Friday night. McAdams was convicted of the murder of John Bugg, old negro farmer of Shelby County, whose dead body was found in the woods after his cotton had been sold in Sylacauga. McAdams contends that he knew nothing about the murder, but has told many conflicting stories of the case. A jury imposed the death sentence on him late last year.

Fiddlers Convention a Success.—
The fiddlers convention sponsored by the P. T. A. Friday evening at the Chilton County High School was received with a great deal of enthusiasm.

There was a splendid audience considering the low tempterature of the evening. The opening feature of the program was the "Kiddy Band" of Miss Orr's Kindergarten who quite surprised their audience with the splendid rendition of several numbers. The kiddies from the ages of three to six were adorable in their tailored little uniforms of Crimson and white.

Another number of the program that received an ovation was a vocal solo by little Frances Smith, who though only three years old sang in a clear voice, "Let me call you Sweetheart."

Tre talented little dancer, Theda Wyatt, in a picturesque costume charmed the audience with a dance. Next J. Lee Smith, Jr., danced the Charleston with so much pep that he received a hearty applause and graceful little Nell Rockett's dance was enthusiastically received.

When the curtains next rose a large number of fiddlers from all over the county were seated the length of the stage.

Each fiddler played two selections with a guitar accompaniment. Their rendition of numerous popular old melodies were very much enjoyed and after much deliberation the prize was presented to Mr. F. Smith who lives near Billingsley.

The judges for the evening were Mrs. J. Lee Smith, Mr. Frank Higgins and Mr. Clinter.

Mrs. E. E. Upchurch was hostess to the members of Circle 4 of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Society at her beautiful home Monday afternoon. RULING ON LIQUOR HANDED DOWN BY COURT OF APPEALS

Landlord Cannot Be Held Responsible For Liquor or Still on His Land Without His Knowledge.

An owner of land upon which a still or prohibited liquor may be found in Alabama, cannot be held liable unless it can be shown that these things were there with his knowledge and consent. This ruling is made by the Alabama Court of Appeals, in a decision rendered last Tuesday, granting a new trial in the case of Roy Hayes and Winnie Miller, appealed from the Lee County Circuit Court. Both defendants were convicted on a charge of possessing prohibited liquor.

According to the evidence, Roy Hayes and Winnie Miller owned a chicken farm. L. Hammond was employed by them to operate it, and lived in the only house on the place, and was in the actual possession of the premises, it is stated. This house was raided, the raiding officers finding 31 pints of whiskey, an empty keg, and some syphons and funnels. Neither of the two defendants was present, nor was it shown how long it had been since either of them had been on the premises, if ever.

These must be a conscious and substantial posession by the defendantts of the prohibited liquor before there can be any sort of criminality, the Court of Appeals ruled. The defendants were entitled to the affirmative charges as requested, it was held, and the refusal of the court to give these charges constituted reversible error. Judgment of the trial court was therefore reversed and the case remanded for another trial.

CHILTON MAN WON PRIZE ON PEANUTS

W. G. Glover Wins in "Big Bunch" Contest Put on By Tom Huston

Among the prize winners in the "Big Bunch" peanut contest just closed was W. G. Glover of Maplesville, who took sixth prize. Mr. Glover won this distinction in competition with peanut growers from all over the country, and his prize came to him for the excellence of his crop of Jumbo Spanish Peanuts.

The "Big Bunch" peanut contest is conducted annually by Tom Huston Peanut Company of Columbus, Ga., for the purpose of encouraging the growth of better quality peanuts in this section. $900 in cash prizes are awarded, and the competition is judged by experts.

In announcing the prize winners for 1927, this company pointed out that in the states of Alabama and Georgia there are state funds for the development of almost every crop except peanuts. The competiton is calculated to stimulate interest in improving the seed peanuts, especially the Jumbo Spanish Peanuts, which are said to be the most profitable variety to the planter, producing more to the acre, and yielding a higher revenue.

A FEW WORDS FROM UNCLE DOCK WELLS

Editor Union-Banner:

If you will permit me, I would like to say a few words to my friends through the dear old Banner.

My name was on the subscription list to receive a copy of the first issue of The Banner which was ever published, many years ago. It has been there every year since the beginning, and I am glad to say that I got a copy of the last issue.

I am glad to say that I appreciate the friends I have throughout this country, and I consider my friends the greatesst blessing that has ever been bestowed upon me.

I am living in Clanton, still able to kick, but not very high, and I am enjoying myself reasonably well.

While I will be 79 years of age at my next burthday which comes on the 29th day of February, 1928, I have had only 19 birthdays, as that date comes only once in every four years, that is leap year.

During long years of ministerial work I have married a great many people, but failed to keep my record of them. Now, as a special favor, I want to ask every one of those couples whom I maried to mail me a post card to Clanton. This will only cost you a penny, but will afford me the greatest of pleasure. State on the card when and where you were married.

I wish for everybody a merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.—Yours very sincerely, A. C. Wells, Clanton, Ala.

Montgomery, Dec. 17. — Hayes Leonard, negro accomplice of Clyde Reese Bachelor in the slaying of the latter's father in law, Judge Lamar Smith, will die in the electric chair at Kilby Prison, according to a decision handed down Thursday by the supreme court.

Bachelor was executed on July 1o for his part in the murder, and his execution terminated one of the most strongly fought legal battles in the recent history of the State.

GRAND JURY INVESTIGATING CASE OF GIRL'S DEATH

Columbiana, Dec. 21.—The Shelby County Grand Jury is investigating the case of the death of Miss Louise Monteabaro, which occurred on the Montgomery highway at Calera on the night of November 14. The major witnesses in the case appeared before the grand jury Tuesday.

Previous to the meeting of the grand jury Attorney General McCall, who is investigating the case, stated that the wound from which Miss Monteabaro died could have been inflicted by herself or by someone else. He has favored a theory conflicting with the "death by suicide" story ever since the case started.

The stories told by H. F. Blake, Calera policeman, point toward suicide.

It is expected that the grand jury will complete its investigation into the case and make a report on Wednesday afternoon.

Who's Who In Clanton

DR. J. P. HAYES

The list of men who have been prominent in the progress and development of Clanton would be incomplete without the name of Dr. J. P. Hayes, who is one of our most substantial citizens.

Dr. Hayes was born in 1869 and attended his first school at Mulberry; later at Poplar Springs, Miss.

He began the practice of medicine in 1894, under Dr. Sam Johnson in Clanton, and in 1895 he moved to Lawley, in Perry County, where he practiced independently. The following year Dr. Hayes graduated at the medical college at Memphis, Tenn., where he made a creditable record. At the close of school he located in Maplesville, where he practiced two years, and in 1898 he located in Jemison, where he stayed one year.

In 1899 Dr. Hayes returned to Clanton, where he has practiced his profession for thirty years.

In 1903 Dr. Hayes took a post graduate course at Tulane.

Clanton has never had a more capable nor conscientious physician than Dr. Hayes. The person who said that sympathy is one of the requisites of a successful doctor must have had Dr. Hayes in mind, because his sincere sympathy has been a true comfort to hundreds of his patients all over Chilton County.

Few physicians have the ability to make a success of anything aside from medicine, yet, besides being a splendid physician, Dr. Hayes' business ability has meant much to the growth of Clanton.

In 1896 Dr. Hayes married the lovely Miss Eula Rasberry of Mulberry, the mother of Mrs. Grady Broadhead, one of Clanton's most popular matrons. Two years later his wife passed away.

In 1900 he married Miss Celeste Jones of Mulberry. Dr. and Mrs. Hayes' other four children, Dick, Jack, Kathryn, and Alex, mean much to every phase of Clanton life.

Dr. Hayes' elder daughter, Mrs. Broadhead, plays a prominent part in the religious and social life of her community. The elder son, Dick, is a popular salesman with Polk Brothers Motor Co., Chevrolet dealers. Jack has gained fame in major league baseball with the Washington Senators. Kathryn is an accomplished musician, and Alex aspires to the laurels attained in the baseball world by big brother Jack.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Hayes are very prominent in the social and religious life of our city, and their host of friends all over the county bespeaks the splendid spirit they have shown in everything for the betterment of our city and county.

A proof of Dr. Hayes' faith in Clanton lies in the fact that he has put most of his earnings in Clanton real estate for a long period of time. When we consider the combined efforts of our citizens toward a better and bigger Clanton, we are inclined to borrow the slogan adopted by another town and say, " Watch Clanton Grow!"

UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA GLEE CLUB IN CLANTON DEC. 27

U. of A. Glee Club To Give Program Here

The University of Alabama, besides boasting one of the best football teams in the South, apparently has one of the best College Glee Clubs to-day, judging from the press reports some of which are as follows: "A very large audience attended the performance of the Alabama Glee Club and were splendidly entertained for one hour and a half by the best balanced Glee Club that has ever appeared in Troy.

The quartet, the yodeling were the bright lights of the evening's entertainment. The quartet was everything that was expected and a little bit more. These four boys occupied two important places on the program and were called back by their audience each time for a number of encores."—Troy Messenger.

Alabama Glee Club will appear here on Tuesday night the 27 under the auspices of the Ladies Missionary Society of the Methodist Church at the High School Auditorium. A very delightful program, consisting of solos, quartets and other numbers by the Club, which is composed of approximately 30 members will be rendered. Besides these numbers the University Glee Club has an exceptionally good orchestra which is making a good hit on its Christmas tour. This is the first opportunity the people of Chilton County have had to hear the Alabama Glee Club in several years, and we trust that Clanton will turn out and give the Alabama Boys a good reception.

Admission will be 50 and 35 cents.

Great Crowds View New Ford Car Friday

Many Orders Already Booked By Clanton Motors For First Cars

One of the most interesting demonstrations that Clanton has witnessed in quite a while was that of the new Ford car which was shown here last Friday by the Clanton Motors, local Ford dealers. Tremendous crowds were here to take a first look at the car, which has created so much excitement in the motor world.

The car on display was a Sport Coupe, with all the beautiful trimmings It was in charge of a factory representative of the Ford Motor Company of Atlanta. The car bears no resemblance to the Model T Ford, but has all the beautiful lines of body that are peculiar to the higher priced line of automobiles. Those who have seen the car are delighted with its splendid appearance, marvel that such a beautiful car can be put on the market at the remarkably low price of $385.00, F. O. B. the factory.

The Clanton Motors have already booked a large number of orders for the various models of this car and no doubt many more orders were taken last Friday. Orders will be filled strictly in the order in which they are taken. No deliveries have been made to date anywhere, but is expected that they will be begun in a big way beginning with the new car.

Mr. Herbert Davis

This is our regular weekly feature story about some noted Chilton County man or woman who has gone out from his or her native home and made good in the world at trade, occupation, art, or profession.

It is interesting to trace the origin of a man's ambition and consequent success to his boyhood days and in so doing we find Herbert Davis a tiny lad tinkering with a net work of wires in which he has visions of wonderful inventions, and a few years later we find him in a crude little labratory of his own making experiments with various chemicals, and today we find him a man, quickly rising to the top of the ladder of success for Herbert has become a successful chemical engineer.

Back of almost every successful man we know there is a noble father and mother who have taught the boy vision and through inspiration and self-denial have helped him toward his goal. Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Davis, the parents of Herbert, have meant this and much more to their son.

Herbert was born at Enterprise, August 6, 1901. When he was three years of age his parents moved to Clanton where Herbert entered grammar school. In the class of 1920 he was an honor graduate of the C. C. H. S., after which he worked three years before entering college at the University of Alabama. His record there contradicts the statement that so many boys make that a man is handicapped if he cannot immediately enter college after graduation from high school. Quite often people who only view their success, so to speak, instead of experienceing it, think that success is a piece of luck, but it is not. Herbert worked hard every day of his college life. So diligent was he in his work that his high grades won for him several Fellowships. After his first year in college Herbert accepted a Fellowship in Physics and with the last two years of college he was offered a Fellowship in Chemistry.

He was president of his class in his senior year and was active in military life. Aside from being a good scholar, Herbert was popular in the social life of his school. He was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi fraternity and of the Gamma Sigma Epsion, a honorary chemical fraternity, an honor which only one other Clanton boy has received, namely, Clyde Foshee.

In 1923 Herbert graduated from the University of Alabama with the highest honors in his class, having a record of nothing but A's during his four years.

A few weeks after his graduation he accepted a position with the United States Steel Corporation in Elwood City, Pa., as chemical engineer. It is interesting to note that this is the same company in which Bill Evans holds a splendid position.

Those who understand chemical engineering can readily understand why Herbert enjoys each step of his research work which is as follows: Plugs and points in getting differences in heats on all electric furnaces (in which he has the opportunity to find the best deal at the lowest prices). Hardening room on special steels for machine parts, boiler water, foundry sands etc. After his last assignment which includes X-ray and microscopic experience Herbert will become technical advisor of the big furnaces after which his next promotion will be to the General Electric Company in Cincinnati.

The impression of Dr. Denny, president of the University of Alabama, of Herbert is expressed in his recent remark "If Chilton County High School has any more students like Herbert Davis, it does not need any other recommendation."

When we consider the sources of Herberts inspiration it brings to mind one other who has meant much to him, his sister, Mrs. Robert L. Williams.

We are proud of this native son of Clanton and we hope that other boys and girls will follow his example and in so doing remember that in Herbert's inspiration it brings to and impossible were absent.

BAXLEY HOME AT CALERA BURNED LAST MONDAY

Calera, Dec. 20.—Fire of unknown origin practically destroyed the home of Mrs. A. B. Baxley shortly after 10 o'clock Monday morning. The entire block was threatened but firemen succeeded in confining the flames to the one residence. The city hall was next to the Baxley home, but was not damaged.

DOWELL ELECTED TO HEAD MERCER UNIVERSITY

Dr. Spright Dowell, of Auburn, was elected Tuesday as president of Mercer University at Macon, Ga. He will advise regarding his acceptance of the place in a few days. The services of Dr. Dowell at Auburn will terminate next June, when he will have completed 30 years of educational service in Alabama.

MRS. HATTIE HANDLEY DEAD

Mrs. Hattie C. Handley, age 47, died at the home of her father, L. M. Rowell, near Thorsby Sunday morning. The remains were prepared by Martin, who carried them to Birmingham, where interment was made Monday in the Oakland cemetery near Ensley. She was buried at 3 o'clock.

MRS. DIXIE L. NEELEY DIED IN B'HAM HOSPITAL

Mrs. Dixie L. Neeley, age 46, wife of J. Albert Neeley of Enterprise community, died in Woodlawn hospital, Birmingham, last Friday afternoon. The body was brought to Clanton by Martin and prepared for burial. The funeral services were held at Bethany church Sunday morning, the funeral being conducted by Rev. J. A. Raines.

Mrs. Neeley was a devoted Christian woman, having been a faithful member of Bethany Landmark Baptist church for a number of years. Her friends and admirers were numbered by the hundreds, as was evidenced by the great number who attended the funeral and shared in the sad bereavement of the sorrowing father and children.

Mrs. Neeley, a Deloach before her marriage, is survived by several brothers and one or two sisters. She leaves her husband, one son and several daughters.

A Christmas Talk

By Rev. J. H. Roberts

Santa Claus is nearly in sight now —just over the hill.

The best way to find our missing kinsfolk is to get rich.

The hard thing about making money last is making it first.

When picking your friends be careful not to pick them too much.

Money may not mean everything but almost everything means money.

Small cities and towns that do not have "welcome" signs on every main road leading into the place are regarded as slow and out of date. And as a rule the signs emphasize friendliness, regardless of whether the community has it or not.

Once upon a time, it is related, there was a man who believed in signs, and taking the one at the edge of a strange town literally, he drove in prepared to be real friendly. He sat on the curb for an hour and not one person even looked friendly, much less asked him questions about what luck he was having among the strangers.

This is a mistake common to us all. We boast of our friendliness and advertise the fact to the world, but we seldom exercise our shaking arm on strangers and never discommode ourselves in order to give them pleasant reminders of their visit.

The holiday season is now at hand. Thousands of motorists are going to be passing through. Some of them will stop here if they get the right kind of a reception. More of them will be our guests if we show ourselves hospitable.

Now, this rule of friendliness can and should be used in our church life. Make strangers feel welcome and invite them back again and nine times out of ten they will return if an opportunity presents itself.

As to the Baptist Church at Thorsby. We are in love with each other and are working in unison. Our young people are working hard to give the public a great entertainment in the near future. Watch for the date, for it is grand and we are your friends. For this reason with another one we do not want you to miss it. Have you ever worshiped in one of our services? We have a great Sunday school. It is a standard school, with one of the best of superintendents I have ever met, and our teachers are wonderful. Come and see for yourself. You are welcome. We are on our way to the Glory Land where people never grow old. May we turn our eyes toward Heaven for there is room for us all if preparation is made here. Be sure to come to church next Sunday.—J. H. Roberts.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Adams wish to thank Dr. Wood, and their friends of Thorsby for the kindness shown and help given during the illness of their baby, Lovejoy. She is improving nicely after an attack of pneumonia.—Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Adams.

ALTON JOHNSON HURT IN WRECK

Taken To Hospital Where Amputation of His Leg Was Found Necessary

Alton Johnson, son of Mr. J. A. Johnson of Temple community, was seriously injured last Saturday afternoon at the corner where the Clanton post office building stands, when a passing automobile got beyond control of the driver and smashed into a large post, pinning the young man's leg between the car and the post.

Several young men were standing on the corner, when a car going south attempted to turn east at the post office corner. Another car going north arrived at the corner at this time and tried to pass the other car. A slight bump followed which threw the northbound car into the telephone post, catching the young man's leg, who did not have time to get out of danger after he realized what was about to happen.

The car was driven by a man who gave his name as Thomas, and his home as Montgomery. He was put in jail, but later released. Charges of reckless driving were placed against him.

Johnson was taken to Central Alabama Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the foot, it being crushed so badly that doctors had no hope of saving it. At last reports the young man was resting fairly well.

REGISTRARS WILL MEET AT COURTHOUSE ON 29TH

The attention of the public is called to the meeting of the County Board of Registrars which will be held at the courthouse on Thursday, December 29th. At this time any person from any part of the county who is eligible to register may appear before the board and secure the necessary certificate making him or her a qualified voter. This is the last chance to register and become qualified to vote in the elections next year. Any person who will become 21 years old before the 6th of next November may register.

BUSINESS BUILDING SOLD BY BAKER AND TAYLOR

A real estate deal of interest was consumated this week whereby the large store building on Sixth Street south of the courthouse was sold by Jesse Baker and Tom Taylor to Miss Bertha Margolis. The deal was handled through Mr. Clay Marcus of the Central Alabama Development company.

The property involved in this transfer is one of the most desirable business locations in Clanton. The store was built about five years ago by Baker and Taylor and since that time has been used by them as a merchandising place.

No statements could be secured from the purchasers of the building as to their future plans.

REFUGE

Our singing society met Sunday in its regular monthly session. The crowd was small but in spite of the rough weather we had some fine singing. O. R. Robinson, chairman, sang the opening song. Prayer was led by M. Lockhart. Directors were S. V. Miller, S. L. Baker, C. R. Mims, J. E. Minor, M. Lockhart. Pianists were Miss Clara Mae Mims, Mrs. Annie Robinson and Miss Lilla Belle Golden. Benediction by Rev. M. J. Parrish. Merry Christmas to all.

CLANTON LAUNDRY IN NEW LOCATION

Formerly Occupied by Bates Motor Co., Sixth Street, South fo Courthouse

The Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Company has moved its plant into the building formerly occupied by Bates Motor Company on Sixth Street south of the courthouse. This change was made necessary on account of the growth of the business which demanded larger space and the installation of more and modern machinery and equipment.

The new building will furnish double the space of the former place. A better arrangement of machinery is possible in the new place, and a greater volume of business will be possible.

We are glad to note the growth of this business. It is considered a distinct asset to Clanton, and we hope its future business will be all the management may expect.

BLEED THROUGH

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARMERS GREATLY IN NEED OF A PROFITABLE SYSTEM

We have gone over the top in a campaign to locate a new, and what we hope to be, a very profitable industry in Chilton County. Other manufacturers will likely follow with other industries, all of which will surely help the farmers of Chilton County who are running their farms on a business basis.

Present day farming in Chilton County is strictly a process of manufacturing. The farmer has three big problems confronting him, just as any other manufacturer. These are the questions of buying the raw materials, such as seed, fertilizers, etc., selling the finished products, cotton, strawberries, melons, dairy products, poultry, hogs, etc., and then the big problem of 'economical production. The success of the individual farmer does not depend so much upon the price of the product he has to sell, but rather upon the difference between his cost of production and the selling price. For example, cotton over a five or ten year period will sell for around 17c per pound, then a farmer must produce cotton over a period of years well below 17c if he is to make a profit. The same is true with any other crop or with live stock. Over an average of three years, hogs will sell for around 8c per pound, and a farmer must produce a pound of pork for less than 8c if there is to be a profit.

The system a farmer puts into operation on his farm may vary considerably with the individual man, type of soil, locality, or labor conditions, but the big general principles are the same. A system has nothing to do with fertilizer, variety, cultivation, etc., but rather with the kinds and amounts of money crops grown on that particular farm. The days of the ox wagon, horse and buggy, long skirts, etc., have become history—so has the system of farming where a farmer's wants are measured in terms of bushels of corn, pounds of meat, and gallons of syrup. A profitable farmer must produce these things, but his foremost thoughts and efforts should and must be centered on money crops, for the 1928 model farmer's wants are, to a great extent, measured in dollars, just as are the needs and wants of other business men. Farming is strictly a business and we must consider it as such in all its phases, if we are to keep step with civilization and increase our buying power in Chilton County.

There is no "wonder crop" nor "wonder land" from a practical profitable agricultural standpoint. The best money crops for Chilton County are cotton, strawberries, watermelons, dairy products, poultry, hogs, and a few others that fit into a special condition here and there. It goes without saying that our standing money crop is cotton. The proportion or numbr of acres of these crops that a farmer grows, constitutes his system. If he is to make money, he must have a reasonable number of acres to the plow in one, two, or three of these crops. And he must stay with this system year in and year out. If 12 acres in cotton to the plow is right when cotton is 30c, it is right when cotton is 12c. If eight acres in crops for hogs per plow is right when hogs are 12c, it is right when hogs are 6c. A "profitable system" means that on a given farm you must produce an average of so many bales of cotton, or crates of berries, or pounds of cream, or pounds of pork, or combination of these, each year. You have no chance of making a profit when you switch your system every year. You can't put 20 acres to the plow in cotton this year, switch to dairying when cotton gets cheap, and later jump on hogs when they get high. Nor can you make much profit having only 8 or 10 acres to the plow in money crops. You must handle 18 to 20 acres per plow in money crops, and then make all the feed, hay, etc., to run the farm on the remaining acres cultivated per plow.

After the proper sytem has been put into operation, then comes the details of producing maximum yields per acre, for cost of production depends very largely upon per acre yields. Several years ago the U. S. Department of Agriculture made a survey of 1,100 farms in the cotton belt to determine cost of producing cotton. After the survey was made the 1,100 farms were divided into three groups and the results were as follows:

(The first column gives the number of the group tested; the second gives the average expenditure for fertilizer per acre; the third gives the average yield of lint per acre; and the fourth gives the average cost per pound).

Group 1	$1.60	41 lbs.	47c
Group 2	$2.54	126 lbs.	20c
Group 3	$8.50	500 lbs.	9c

The same principle of cost of production applies to most all farm crops.

The best and most economical methods of fertilizing, spacing, cultivating, pasturing, feeding, handling, etc., have been carefully worked out and established by our Experiment Stations and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, just as the medical world has found out through experiment and study, the treatments and methods of handling many of the diseases of the human body. And it is the business of the County Agent to furnish this information to farmers, and to assist them in putting it into practical application on their farms, so they will get a return for their year's labor and their capital invested, and thereby increasing Chilton County's buying power and raising the standard of farm living.—C. E. Stapp, County Agent.

MARKET OUTLOOK ON FARM PRODUCTS IN THE SOUTH

Auburn, Ala., Dec. 19.—To assist farmers in planning their farming for the future, the Alabama Polytechnic Institute has inaugurated a price outlook service. With present facts and experiences of the past at his command, J. D. Pope, farm economist, Auburn, is able to give farmers reliable information as to what these trends will be for the next year or more.

Recent inquiries have come from farmers seeking infirmation as to the price outlook for hogs, cotton, beef cattle and other products. The inquiries are being answered in a way as to enable those concerned to plan their production so as to get the best returns from their operations.

The service is not based upon "guesses" but upon facts obtained in a scientific manner. Performances of the past are recorded, and this information together with present factors and anticipated production are the factors determining changes in prices.

"Information of this kind," said Mr. Pope, "is to farmers what statistical service is to manufactures, importers, exporters, and others engaged in business. Although expected trends do not always pan out they do in the majority of cases. Hence, farmers can well afford to be guided by it."

TIMELY FARM FACTS

A little money spent during the winter for ornamental shrubs planted around the house will be apreciated in the future.

It is an interesting fact that farmers who have tried 2-horse cultivators with the determination to use them have succeeded in doing so.

Fruits, vegetables, and milk are as important in the school chid's lunch as any other foods.

Tom Campbell, wheat king of Montana, says that to him, "nothing has a better outlook than farming over a period of ten years." He uses power and machinery for every operation.

Action of the government to promote foreign trade in honey has resulted in a marked increase in the exportation of honey from the United States.

There may be some sentiment in hanging to a one-horse cutivator but the farmer who persists in doing so is certain to drop behind in the economic struggle.

Production of a bale of cotton to the acre was thought of as a big feat a few years ago but now it is not unusual. Farmers throughout Alabama have made this record this year. Those who failed have much to learn from the many who succeeded.

Representatives of farm bureaus in 40 states assembled at the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Chicago; and, among other things, reiterated their stand on farm relief by endorsing the principles of the equalization fee as set forth in the McNary-Haugen bill.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

There is no substitute for economic production.

Pumpkins are a good succulent feed for dairy cows.

Skum on the surface of pickle brine indicates that the brine is too weak.

The farmer who learns to use a tractor to advantage is well on the way toward more prosperous farming.

Many factors now present indicate that farming in the future will be done along industrial lines.

With power machinery being applied to the production of cotton the small cotton farmer will have hard sailing in the future.

NITRATE OF SODA BRINGS BIG COTTON YIELD

John R. Witt, 1927 master farmer, will get approximately a bale and a half of cotton per acre from his farm near Bell Mina, Ala., according to a report which has just been received by the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau. Mr. Witt is an ardent advocate of good fertilizing methods for Alabama soils. The farmer who does not keep up the fertility of the soil, he believes, not only suffers in reduced yields, but is shirking a responsibility.

Mr. Witt fertilized according to the Auburn Maximum on part of his land this year, but on other acreage used only 100 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre, 25 pounds under the cotton and 75 pounds as a side-dressing.

"I have been using nitrate of soda for seven years and know that if properly applied it will double the yield of cotton. I know that it pays because I have left check plots on which no soda was applied and the sickly yellow cotton there was in sharp contrast to the dark green healthy cotton on land which had been fertilized with nitrate of soda.

"Nitrate of soda is the greatest cotton grower the Southern farmer ever had."

People have pooled their money for banking, manufacturing, trade, transportation, and for public service; but farming still remains an individual business in the main.

One way to improve the landscape of the home is to use trees and shrubs growing in nearby woods. However, the more exacting buy ornamental shrubs from nurseries to add to those growing wild.

To the production of cotton, power machinery is being applied on a larger scale and the farmer who fails to keep step with advanced methods in production will be crushed in the economic struggle.

On 40,168,000 acres southern farmers made 12,842,000 bales of cotton in 1927 as compared with 17,977,374 bales on 47,087,000 acres in 1926. The acreage in 1927 was slightly below the 5-year average, 1922-26. The yield per acre in 1927 was 152.3 compared with 182.6 in 1926 and 155.8 the 5-year average.

NEWS IN BRIEF

During 1927 the American people purchased life insurance to the extent of $16,900,000,000, according to a big insurance company. The year's business brings the number of policy holders to 62,000,000 and the number of policies in force to 115,000,000.

Over twenty-six billion dollars was on savings deposits in banks and trust companies of the United States on June 30, 1927, it was announced by the American Bankers Association. This was an increase of $1,368,094 over the same date in 1926.

The annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Chicago voted for the removal of the tariff of two cents per pound on hairy vetch seed. This tariff cost Alabama farmers more than $15,000 on hairy vetch seed purchased for the fall of 1927.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, has been re-elected vice president of the American Farm Bureau Federation for a period of two years at the recent meeting in Chicago. He is also chairman of the legislative committee which is the most important committee of the organization.

Before The Union-Banner goes out to its readers again you will have observed the most broadly acclaimed holiday known to the civilized world—Christmas.

It is customary at this season for friends to express their thoughts of each other and their good will toward one another by exchanging gifts. This is very admirable indeed. The Union-Banner cannot make a material gift to all of its many friends. We wish that we could give everyone something for Christmas who has in any way contributed to our happiness and to whatever success we have attained since the last Yuletide, but we cannot do this.

We can, however, extend to every one, from the largest to the smallest and from the richest to the poorest alike, something that we consider worth infinitely more than any material gifts that money can buy, and that is our friendly feeling and our good will.

We ourselves enjoy counting among our assets that something which money cannot buy, but which we may have at no expense to those from whom it comes—the good will and friendly feeling of our fellow beings. Therefore, we extend the same to all whom it is our pleasure to call friends and neighbors. We wish you twice as much happiness and contentment during the Yuletide season as you yourselves wish for, and that prosperity unbounded may be yours through the coming New Year.

Four hundred and thirty-two persons have petitioned President Coolidge to get the United States into the League Court. It is interesting to know how many of the internationalist bitter-enders there are left.

A Kansas man after years of experimenting has perfected a seedless tomato. But the real benefactor of mankind will be the fellow who first produces a seedless watermelon.

A German chemist is said to have invented a kind of ice which will stand a heat of 208 degrees before melting. Well, you may be able to think of one place where there will be a big demand for this.

Now that President Coolidge has given it such wide publicity it occurs to us that "I do not choose to run" would make a proper slogan for the marines.

Will Rogers says that Mexico is a comparatively quiet and safe place, but you will note that he didn't announce himself as a candidate for president while south of the Rio Grande.

One way to increase the price of cotton would be to make Santa Claus wear longer whiskers.

A New Jersey woman stoked the furnace on her 101st birthday. It's getting so now that they never grow old.

In talking of disarmament European nations say that they first want guarantees of safety. But if everybody disarms and disarmament will end warfare, as the pacifists claim, what is the need for guarantees of safety?

A small town may be defined as one that hasn't at least one traffic light, whether needed or not.—Ohio State Journal.

A MATTER THAT NEEDS ATTENTION

The serious automobile mishap of last Saturday afternoon which caused painful and permanent injury to a young man in Clanton suggests to our mind some matters that need official attention in our city.

Traffic on our streets, and particularly the Highway, should be better regulated. Motorists in Clanton generally give splendid recognition to our traffic rules, but we need more rules in some respects.

The Highway should be declared a boulevard, and all streets crossing or coming into the highway should be marked with stop signs. Every automobile entering the highway by a side or cross street should be required to come to a full stop and observe traffic before entering or crossing the highway.

Such a rule as this in effect last Saturday afternoon would have averted the serious accident which crippled and maimed a young man for life.

Information about the unfortunate occurrence referred to above also leads us to venture the statement that if the highway had been a few feet wider, the disaster could have been avoided. But it is no use to discuss that phase of the matter. As much as we might expect our town officials to do in regulating traffic, we surely can not reasonably expect them to make Seventh Street any wider.

However, we do remember that somebody once said Seventh Street was too narrow for the uses of such a great highway. Others at the same time said it was wide a plenty. We have seen the highway on Seventh Street now for two years and the question of its sufficient or insufficient width is not a mere theory as it once was. It is a thing which we can look at every day.

We ought to have two highway routes through Clanton. The Seventh Street way as the highway now goes, should be a one way street for traffic south. Then the once proposed Sixth Street route should be opened up and paved, and used as a one-way street for traffic north. At the points where these two ways would converge north and south of town signs should be erected instructing motorists to drive to the right.

Not only would such a system greatly alleviate the traffic dangers in our city, but it would serve the interests of a great many of our citizens in many ways.

Only recently Clanton demonstrated a wonderful spirit of co-operation for a very important industrial victory. We seem to have forgotten many of our old isms and scisms for a time, and all of us were surprised at the wonderful way it worked. There are dozens of other matters that ought to have the same kind of interest and the same kind of unselfish work that won such a noble victory for our city last Thursday night.

If we are ever to have a real city we must not stop with this one victory; but seeing how we can build and grow by co-operation we should push forward with unceasing determination.

Cheap labor may be dearest in the end.—Boston Herald.

America has loaned European nations almost a billion and a half dollars in 1927. Evidently Uncle Sam isn't the horrid old Shylock they paint him or they wouldn't be coming back for more.

Of course it is possible that the delegates to the next Republican National convention will leave enough of their expense money in the middle west to relieve the farm situation.

Ohio has at least four possible presidential candidates which would be enough to start a general massacre in Mexico.

The Soviet government is "merciless with insurgents." Thus the perfect state speeds its object. Violence for virtue is its method of progression.—New York Sun.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Written for This Paper by
FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Far-seeing politicians are beginning to wonder whether or not the next big political split will come between the international bankers of the country and American manufacturers. Already there are signs that all is not well between these two important groups. In a recent address to members of the Synthetic Organic Chemists Manufacturing Association, John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, stressed the importance of our protective tariff and took occasion, according to the New York Times, to deplore the policy of American bankers in extending loans to foreign countries.

On this latter subject Mr. Edgerton is quoted as saying: "Our American banks have undertaken to finance our competitors abroad and certain industries in Germany have been entirely rehabilitated by American finance. This money has gone out on the philanthropic idea of service to the world. I don't want to attack the golden rule but I believe it is best for America to maintain the integrity of its own institutions first. That is more charitable." Mr. Edgerton also took occasion to refer to what he termed "hostility of part of our banking interests to the protective tariff" which he declared has manifested itself numerous times.

In former years the bankers and manufacturers generally worked together. This was because the banker financed the manufacturer and was primarily interested in him. But the war changed many things. Before the world struggle Great Britain was the money center of the world. Since the armistice Uncle Sam has taken over a considerable part of John Bull's duties as the world's banker. This has made imminent the division between American manufacturers and the financial interests who look after international banking. This group has found lending money to European interests, some of them industrial, more profitable than lending the money at home. In addition to this, of course, is the fact that our prosperity has brought us so much money "We hardly know what to do with it" in an investment way.

Now it is easy to see that American money which finds its way into European industry builds up manufacturing interests which are in direct competition to our manufactories at home. It follows logically that these European manufacturers want the rich American market if they can get it, to pile up profits for themselves and to pay the heavy interest on what they have borrowed from the American bankers at high rates. And it is just as easy to see that the American bankers naturally want their European clients to have some of this American market so that these loans will be good and profitable to the end.

Quite as naturally the American manufacturer wants the first call on the American market so that he can continue his enormous production and incidentally pay high wages and give steady employment to the workers. Here then comes about the clash of interests between the American manufacturer and the American banker who does an international business.

It would not be surprising therefore, some of our far-seeing politicians tell us, if in the near future we find important banking interests abandoning old principles and joining the importers in a battle for a lower tariff. In such a political battle they will of course be aided by the theoretical free traders and all other internationalists, and will be opposed by the manufacturing industry, labor, and all who believe in protection as a matter of principle and national interest. In such a struggle it is not difficult to see who will have the ultimate advantage. The protectionists will be in the great majority because they will recruit their strength from the factory and the farm. For the worker and the farmer has a natural interest in protecting the American market.

But even at that, the internationalists will have unlimited resources back of them and they will be assisted by every rofessional class-room and pulpit internationalist. So this political clash, if it ever comes, will be a struggle worth witnessing and worth taking part in.

DOESN'T IT MATTER

By George B. Lockwood

"The nation will be prosperous no matter who is its President" is the caption of an editorial printed in the Hearst newspapers. "The President is, after all, only the National Executive. The laws of Congress and the well defined wishes of the people which he carries into execution are more important than his personality," concludes the editorial

Is it true that it does not matter to the people of the United States who is President? The President of the United States is the most powerful executive in the world. If in harmony with the Congress elected with him, he is in position to define the policiess of the United States. If out of harmony with the majority in Congress he is in position to deadlock the government, and put it in the position of a great business corporation with its President and Board of Directors at odds, and working at cross purposes.

There is an all too common belief that the national government runs of its own momentum; that it does not much matter what are its policies, the result is about the same. This would not be believed of any other great enterprise. Business concerns succeed or fail in accordance with the wisdom of their management, and especially of their underlying policies. What is true of the business enterprise, is true of the national government.

The influence of our national executive upon national policies is very great. The Presidency is a broadcasting station which reaches the ears of every American and of the whole world. If Congress is out of harmony with the will of the executive, the Presidency is the most effective agency for changing public opinion in existence.

In the field of foreign affairs the influence of the Presidency is especially great. A President may initiate foreign policies which either in their acceptance or rejection profoundly affect the status of the government of the United States. It is impossible that the influence of a President like Governor Smith, who has been an ardent advocate of the League of Nations, including Article X, would be the same as that of a president who believes in the policy of avoiding international political entanglements. It is impossible that the influence of a President who believes in firmly upholding the rights and just interests of the United States abroad, should be the same as that of a President committed to the theory that the American who travels or invests abroad does so entirely at his own risk, and is not entitled to the protection of his own government.

It is true that the prosperity and security of the United Statess does not depend upon the election of any one man to the Presidency. That the wefare of the American people might not be affected by the election of a candidate for President who does not represent the popular will in reference to certain great national principles and policies, is a statement that cannot be logically supported. Men should be supported or opposed for high executive or legislative office not on the basis of their personalities, but on the basis of the principles and polices they represent. To choose men for such posts on the ground that they are not "the whole show," and therefore would be powerless to carry out their wishes, would represent an abandonment of common sense by the voters.

WINTER SPRAYING HELPS MAKE FRUIT

Auburn, Ala., Dec. 20.—With numerous insects and diseases present the production of first class fruit without spraying is no longer expected. From the time fruit trees are planted in the orchard the orchardman must struggle with insects and diseases if he makes good fruit, according to Lyle Brown, extension horticulturist, Auburn.

And more than one spray is needed. Both winter and summer applications must be made. Certain insects and diseases are controlled by winter sprays and others by summer sprays. "Winter spraying," said Mr. Brown, "is necessary to destroy such insects as San Jose scale which is not destroyed by sprays of summer strength. In the winter when the trees are dormant, with no leaves on them, a strong spray solution can be used. For the summer the strength of the spray solutions must not be sufficient to kill the leaves." With no leaves on the trees a smaller amount of spray solution is needed. Other farm work is less pressing and there is more time for spraying during the winter.

Spraying requires a spray outfit. A farmer with a few trees usually feels that he cannot afford to buy one. Seeing the situation, county agents are suggesting community organizations or spray rings so that an outfit will serve several farmers in a community. In this way the cost per farmer is very small.

SHILOH SINGING

The singing society met at this place Sunday afternoon and rendered a singing prgram, but not as good as usual, as the weather was so bad.

The society was called to order by Prof. F. I. Popwell by singing two songs. The directors for the afternoon were Misses Lottie Henley, Agnes Mullins, Sudie Keen, Messrs. Herbert Traywick, Vesta Bice, S. A. Henley, Julius Mullins, and Prof F. O. Popwell, each directing one and three songs each.

The organists for the afternoon were Prof. F. I. Popwell and Miss Minnie Bice.

The Society meets every Third Sunday in each month. We invite everybody.—Secretary.

A Reply to a Letter Written by An Opponent to School Bond Issue

My Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge receipt this day of your circular dated October 17, 1927, also your own reply to Dr. R. E. Tidwell, and your leaflet, "More Bonds-More Taxes".

I am for the amendment and shall do my utmost to secure a favorable vote next January when the twenty million bond issue goes before the people for their verdict. I cannot see that you really bring out anything new or important in your reply to Dr. Tidwell or in 'More Bonds-More Taxes'. Your main preachment seems to be in your circular of October 17, and this I have just read.

When you say that "The proposed $20,000,000 bond issue is a radical departure," you state the sober truth. And the times are ripe for such departure. You beg the question when you say that the proponents for the amendment offer no reason for the amendment and then proceed to discuss the reasons which the proponents give. You state that you cannot arrive at any estimate of the cost of employing teachers, of maintenance, transportation, etc. Who can make such computations? This question is entirely dependent upon the number of children of school age and whether we are really and finally to send them all to school or not. If you accuse your adversaries of dealing in buncombe, I wonder, if by some token, you are not yourself tarred with the same pitch.

You urge that we are to have some $101,000,000 from our revenue bill and you still urge that there must be extra taxes to take care of the twenty million of bonds and the interest thereon. If I can draw any conclusions from your argument whatever, I am forced irresistably to the conclusion that the revenue bill will do just what its makers thought it would do—pay the annual interest of the twenty million bonds and retire them in twenty years. Judge Thomas thinks so, and he is our State Superintendent of Banks, and many an other Alabama banker agrees with him. In all fairness, I believe that we have far and away the better argument. You are not convincing in what you say about the increase in tax rate. The tax rate is already provided for and if the law is observed ,cannot be changed.

You are troubled over the provisions laid down in the amendment for the erection of new buildings, etc. I have read this part of your statement with especial care and I cannot see how it could be improved upon. Could you state the purpose of this great new educational programme with finer spirit or more clearly? Perhaps so, but your circular letter of October 17th, 1927, gives no such promise. Clearly your words condemn you. I hold no brief for the State Department of Education nor for Dr. Tidwell. I am just a school teacher in a private school, but in all fairness, if you have correctly quoted the provisions as laid down in the amendment, no county can be ruled out, if it sincerely and honestly wants to co-operate in the funds arising from the twenty million amendment.

You are also troubled about Dr. Tidwell serving as chairman of the Campaign Committee. Why should he not serve, and also Mr. Duncan and all the others? These men are trained Educators and this campaign is in the line of their business. When you want any banking reform, bankers are the men who attend to the matter. You do not get farmers or school teachers to take the lead. In all this discussion you do not say one word about the children. For thirty years I have been at work in this state for the poor under-privileged white youth of Alabama.

The day must come when you and I must put our hands into our pockets and provide educational facilities in this great State for our youth. You ought to be out with both hands for the boys and girls. If the revenue bill will not take care of this amendment and even more taxes must be raised, I am still for the bill. The child is the child of the State. Don't any longer turn him down. He appeals tto you, he appeals to me. Let us not be deaf any longer to his needs. Please join us on January 10th, 1928. Vote for yourself and your State and for these youth who are now ignorant and helpless. Give us adequate buildings and equipment. Look around you with a sympathetic eye and see the need of your boys and girls, then vote as your heart dictates. Let us make Alabama truly great by giving to this generation of children as good opportunities as can be found in any other State in the Union.

With great respect, yours very truly,
(Signed) Lyman Ward, Prin.

CONSIDER THE CHILDREN

(Editorial, Mobile Register)

The death of a school boy aged 13 on Wednesday, December 8, 1927, at Tunnel Springs, Alabama, and seriously injuring six other children, caused by the collapse of an old shanty used for a school in a Masonic hall, furnishes appalling evidence of the need of substantial and decent school buildings for the neglected sections in Alabama.—L. M. Bashinskyin a letter to the Editor of the Troy Messenger.

It would be interesting to know what answer Hugh Mallory, and the power trust, and the railroads, and the coal and iron magnates, and others who are fighting the $20,000,000 school bond issue in Alabama can make to an argument of this kind in behalf of the school children of this state. What do they think of a state that will force parents to send their children to such schools as this Tunnel Springs school where they are likely to be killed or crippled for life? When school buildings are so shabby and so dangerously insecure that they collapse and kill and maim children, surely it is about time for the conscience of Alabama to come to the line.

Is it wise for Alabama to continue a policy which forces the children of this state into these dangerous school buildings? Is it decent? Is it respectable for any citizen or any group of citizens, to ask this proud commonwealth to continue such a policy? School attendance is compulsory in this state. Has the state a moral right to force citizens of Alabama to send their children to such schools as this Tunnel Springs school? Has the State any right, in morals, to persist in a policy which puts crepe on the doors of homes of its citizens? What would happen to a citizen in private life, or to one of the big corporations fighting this $20,000,000 school bond issue, in a case where either the citizen or the corporation forced children into an unsafe building, with results as tragic as in the Tunnel Springs case? The answer, we think, is in the law, and it would not be pleasant either for the citizen or the corporation.

This Tunnel Springs tragedy is an appalling indictment of this state, for unhappily, this school is not the only school of the kind to be found in Alabama. There are several thousand buildings in Alabama used for school purposes not much better, not much less dangerous, than this Tunnel Springs building; and because progressive public officials, and progressive citizens, desire to remedy this condition as speedily as possible by tearing down these unfit and unsafe school structures, and replacing them with buildings that are suitable and safe, they are challenged by powerful corporate interests in the state, and are forced to fight for something that ought to be supplied without a fight.

It is a crime against the children of Alabama to force them to attend school in buildings that are unsafe to the point of danger to life and limb. It is unjust to the parents of these children. Good citizens are not made by state policies of this kind. If the people of Alabama desire to see the children of the state ripen into manhood and womanhood with a decent regard for the state, if they desire to see the state hold the respect and esteem of thoughtful citizens they cannot afford to follow the selfish leadership of men and interests opposed to this school bond issue.

When buildigs used for school purposes are so insecure that they cannot stand a gust of wind, it is time for the citizens of the state to take sober note of the situation. There are many places in Alabama where this Tunnel Springs tragedy might be repeated. This danger to the children of Alabama should be removed as speedily as possible, and the selfish financial interests of corporations should not be permitted ti interfere with plans to achieve this result. The welfare and safety of the children of Alabama should outweigh the selfish pecuniary interest of corporations already unfairly fat at the expense of other Alabama taxpayers.

FORESTS SUPPLY CHRISTMAS CHEER TO YOUNG AND OLD

Montgomery, December 20.—The forest is the background of all Christmas enjoyment, points out the Alabama Commission of Forestry. Moreover, wood products from the principal parts of the material articles typical of the season.

Christmas trees, which comprise a recognized annual yield of cedar, holly, spruce balsam and pine stands, from the central figure in practically all observances of Chtistmas time. Next to this feature comes the Yule log, comprising the main part of the wood fire in the fireplace so typical of traditional holiday cheer. With the young folks the toys and articles used in sport take first rank. Most of these are made of wood, and even in the case of metal articles a great deal of wood is used in connection with their manufacture. Christmas decorations of mistletoe, holly, laurel and pine add to the picture. In the South, many ingenious art arrangements of the cones and straw of pines comprise a conspicuous feature.

When it is recaled that gift books and poper novelties are made from pulp obtained from wood, it is readily appreciated to what extent the forests enter into holiday considerations. The Christmas cards also included in this list, and during recent years cards made directly from the cross sections of wood daintily engraved and printed have become very widely used.

MARK TUCKER'S LETTER

Numerous amendments whereby cities, counties and committees sought, with the consent of their voters, to tax themselves for schools and other public improvements were defeated December 13 by the same forces that are opposing the school building amendment which will be voted on January 10, and which would authorize the state to issue bonds to carry on a state-wide school building program. The same men, money, mailing lists and methods were employed in both campaigns. All of the voters in the state were circularized with literature containing misleadnig statements which the advocates of the amendments had no opportunity to deny or refute.

The cost of sending out each of these communications to all of the voters, postage, printing and mailing included, is more than $17,500. The estimated cost of the ten batches of letters and printed matter sent out by those opposing the school amendment and the other amendments is more than $175,000, and this does not include the money being spent upon paid workers out in the field spreading poison against the public schools by word of mouth. Forney Johnson, attorney for a railroad organization that is national in its scope, controlling billions of dollars of public service property, is announced as a member of the finance committee to raise these immense sums of money. He and his associates can throw a mollion dollars into such a campaign if they so desire, to gain control of the government of Alabama, including the taxing and rate making powers of the State.

By defeating local efforts to raise money for schools by taxation and attempting to defeat the proposed bond issue that would give each county $200,000 to spend for its school buildings, these enemies of public education say in effect that those counties and communities which are too poor to pay for their own school building must do without adequate schools and endanger the lives of their children in such flimsy frame shacks as caused loss of life and injury to school children at Tunnel Springs, December 7, when a high wind reduced and old and delapidated frame schoolhouse into kindling wood.

It is certain that those responsible for the defeat of measures designed to provide permanent school buildings will also be responsible for death and injury of many poor school children in Alabama if they succeed in their efforts. For this reason many thoughtful voters who have been influenced by propaganda to doubt the wisdom of the bond issue plan have resolved to give the children of this state the benefit of the doubt and will at least refuse to vote against the interests of the boys and girls in less favored sections of the state where the cold winds of winter days blow through the cracks of the crude frame or log structures, upon thinly clad and undernourished bodies in many instances. Such voters do not wish to be even remotely responsible for the deaths and sickness that such conditions must cause.

The worst feature of the campaign now being waged against the schools is the mob spirit being aroused in the rural sections against the schools and everything connected with public education. It may be that some of these paid workers are exceeding their instructions, but certain it is that they are firing prejudices that can not be controlled when once aroused. The Alabama Power Company, recognized as the leading factor in the fight against the schools, is playing with fire when its agents and attorneys inflame the people against those who are giving their lives to the eradication of ignorance in this state. Such a blaze, as history has shown, is much easier to ignite than to quench or control. Those who light such fires of public hatred are always scorched by them.

And now former Governor Charles Henderson adds his voice to those clamoring with prejudice against the Schools. There are those still young who recall that a legislature altogether favorable to corporation ideas about taxation and revenue starved the schools of Alabama during the four years of the Henderson maladministration. They recall that the governor smiled, borrowed money at high rates of interest; that teacher's salaries were shaved to the bone and payment thereof was deferred for months at a time; that Confederate pensions were held up for long periods and only the usurers were made prosperous by the Henderson legislature and executive policy.

Bowie Gives Facts About Bond Issue

Two hundred thousand dollars of the proceeds of these bonds shall be set aside and expended for the permanent construction and permanent improvement of public school buildings in each county in the state when authorized by appropriate laws passed by the Legislature." This is a clause in the school bond amendment. No part of the $20,000,000 bond fund can be used for any purpose other than for buildings and equipment.

By appropriate laws is meant laws in harmony with the amendment. Legislative acts are necessary to put a constitutional amendment into effect. But the Legislature is powerless to change the provisions of a constitutional amendment in any particular. It can only pass laws in agreement with it.

The Legislature, in order that the amendment might be effective from the date of the Governor's proclamation declaring it to have been ratified, passed an enabling act. A section of this act has been construed by opponents of the amendment as requiring counties to raise sufficient funds to complete the county-wide building program before they can recive any of the bond money. Even if they are right in their interpatation of the enabling act, it cannot be effective for the reason that it is contrary to the provisions of the amendment itself, which is supreme and cannot be altered by legislative enactment. The amendment declares that each county shall receive $200,000 of the proceeds of the bonds. This provision is mandatory. It is not within the discretion of the Legislature to make conditions not authorized by the amendment. This clause in the enabling act has been picked out by the opponents of the amendment and heralded as the law of the state if the amendment is ratified. They know it is not. They know that any part of the act that contravenes the amendment is ineffective, but they think it makes good campaign argument and so talk about it wherever and whenever they have the opportunity.

Alabama has ranked near the top of the illiteracy column for decades. It is high time she removes this stain. It is high time she was giving her boys and girls the chance for an education too long denied them. An adequate and equipped school building is an essential for the education of the children. The ratification of the $20,000,000 school building bond amendment is the only feasible plan presented to the voters and it is the only way in which the state can pay its debt to her boys and girls today who will be the men and women of tomorrow.

The amendment will be voted on January 10, 1928.

Give The Rural Children an Equal Opportunity

In an effort to do this, the last Legislature increased taxes as follows: 2½% on gross receipts of interstate commerce, 2½% on gross receipts of telegraph an telephone companies, 2½% on gross receipts of express companies, two-fifths of a mill per kilowatt hour on hydro-electric companies, 2½ cents per ton on coal, 4½ cents per ton on iron ore, severance taxes on sand, gravel, slag, etc., $20,000 per year on sleeping car companies, 15% on wholesale price of cigars and cigarettes.

The big interests affected by above taxes are fighting the bond issue for building rural school houses. They cannot shift these taxes, otherwise they would not be financing the campaign against the bonds.

The Legislature DID NOT INCREASE PROPERTY TAXES. The Legislators KEPT FAITH WITH THE PEOPLE. WILL THE PEOPLE KEEP FAITH WITH THEM?

Do not let these selfish interests longer deprive the children of Alabama of their birthright!

METHODIST JUNIORS PRESENT BEAUTIFUL PAGEANT DEC. 18

The Methodist Juniors, assisted by Miss LeCroix, gave a most beautiful pageant at Sunday School on the 18th. The pageant was adopted by Mrs. Macey Jones from a more elaborate one. Miss LeCroix followed with the Story of the Other Wise Man".

Mr. Lemuel B. Green and family will spend the Christmas holidays with relatives in Selma.

The official board of the local Methodist Church voted to not have any services on Christmas Day, except Sunday School at 9:45 A. M. and Epworth League at 6:15. Both the school and the league will have special programs and will receive offering for the Ophans Home.

The offering for the Orphanage, which had been panned for the morning preaching hour on Christmas Day, has been postponed to New Year Day, at which time the Clanton people will doubtless respond generously.

$5 TO BE GIVEN TO ONES RETURNING BALLOONS

Montgomery, Dec. 15.—Interest on the part of the public in the sounding balloon observations to be made by the local weather Bureau, along with a group of stations throughout the country, will doubtless be general. With each sounding balloon released, there will be a meteorograph to which will be attached instructions for the person finding it to follow in returning the equipment to the Weather Bureau the instructions stating that $5 will be paid for his service.

Just when the first balloons will be released is not known here. The weather men here have recently constructed a shelter for the work on the roof of the government building and have everything in readiness so that when instructions for sending up the balloons are received preparations will have been made.

With each meteorograph released with the sounding balloons from the Weather Bureau office at Montgomery, the following instructions will be found printed on a postal card:

"This meteorograph was released from Montgomery, Ala., for scientific purposes. Please do not open or handle it roughly. Fill out the reverse side of this card and mail at once; it requires no postage. Pack the instrument, balloons, parachute, and basket carefully in a strong corrugated box and if it does not weigh over four pounds, it can be sent parcel post, using the inclosed penalty stickers, which require no postage. If it weighs over four pounds, it should be sent "express collect", using the inclosed tag. Five dollars will be paid for this service.

P. H. Smyth, meteorologist here, is hoping that the peope will be on the lookout for the instruments, especially those who work on the outside, pointing out that by return of the equipment they will be aiding scientific research.

Give Us and All Other Boys And Girls In Alabama

Equal Educational Advantages

We have about a third of what the average children in the United States have in the way of school buildings. Thousands and thousands of children in Alabama are going to school in miserable shacks. Many of us have done the same. Does Alabama have less faith in us, her children, than do the other states?

The natural resources of Alabama are being exploited for gain by outside interests. They have been and are still seeking to rob us of our birthright.

We appeal to the voters to come to the rescue of the thousands of underprivileged children in Alabama, by VOTING FOR the bonds for the erection of school buildings.

By doing so you will prove your faith in children of Alabama. Join in the chorus and sing with us "Alabama, Alabama, We will aye be true to thee."

TRUTH AND LOVE
(By Rev. Reece H. Rogers)

In my last week's article I promised to tell you just how little we are teaching the Bible to our children. I am sure that the majority of us feel that our children are overburdened with the amount of Bible teaching they are reciving, but if you will just note a few comparisons, I feel that your mind will change on that point.

We often wonder why there are religious bodies that can be so successful in holding their members or rather that can have such a loyal membership. The following figures will give us at least one reason.

The Catholic Church gives to the training of their children 229 recitation hours per year, that is they teach them in that many classes of one hour each.

The Jewish people give to their children 200 hours per year. The Episcopal Church gives 100 hours per year. These figures do not seem to be so very much, but let us see now what the Protestant Churches are doing.

All of the Protestant Churches average of from fifteen to forty hours per year. What! you mean to say that we do not teach our children more than that and I reply that the average is nearer the fifteen than the forty.

At the very offset we have one class a week of thirty minutes duration. Then the ones that are enrolled will not attend on an average of more than two thirds of the time and half of that they know nothing about their lessons then. Again, we will not enroll more than half of the ones that should be. Again when the children go to their classes, they meet in many cases an unskilled teacher.

I think if you will study these figures you will no longer have to wonder as to why our children have such little interest in the Bible.

Christmas Program at Thomas Jr. High School

GOOD-WILL MEETING HELD BY PATRONS, TEACHERS AND PUPILS OF SCHOOL

The editor of The Union-Banner had the pleasure last Friday of attending a meeting of citizens at the new Thomas Junior High School, which impressed us as one of the most interesting gatherings we ever saw. It was intensely interesting because the people who were gathered there were interested in their purpose. It was a Christmas service for the children of the school and a friendly gathering of the fathers and mothers for the advancement of the cause which the school represents to them.

Prof. J. L. Wilson, principal of te school, opened the exercises with a talk to the assembly of students and parents. Everyone was made to feel the motives for which they had come together, and after Mr. Wilson had finished, the expressions which came from others shed a light upon the work of the school that brought us a wonderful picture of a fine school spirit at work among the people of the community.

It was turned into a kind of experience meeting for a few minutes when every parent present was given a chance to express himself or herself about the school. Not one word of dissatisfaction was mentioned. Expressions came freely from the following: G. B. Jones, J. E. McDowell, H. B. Glenn, J. T. Lansford, Mrs. W. E. Parrish, J. L. Smith, Mr. Hawkins, A. D. Scott, O. L. Devaughn, Mrs. C. B. Norrell.

A school that can draw from the patrons such praise as was voiced by those people surely must be a very valuable asset to any community.

In his introductory remarks Prof. Wilson called attention to some figures on the blackboard concerning the attendance record of the school. In the junior 1, 2, and 3 grades the enrollment was shown as 49. Average attendance the past month 46. In the fifth and sixth grades enrollment 40; average daily attendance 38. In third and fourth grades, enrollment 25; average daily attendance 23. In the first and second grades, enrollment 62; average daily attendance 50 plus. The average daily attendance for the entire school was exactly the same during the past two months, 156.

Following are the teachers of the school: J. L. Wilson, Principal; Miss Juanita Connatser, Miss Nell Stubblefield, Miss Etta Foshee.

The Thomas High School is now made up by a consolidation of the old districts of Poplar Springs, and Maple Springs and Bethel. One motor truck is in service conveying the pupils. Thirty to thirty-five are transported daily. The truck is driven by Alton DeLoach, a school boy.

The building of the Thomas High School is the pride of the community. It is a thoroughly modern and up-to-date school plant fully equipped. It cost over $7,000 in cash, and is fully paid for. In the erection of this magnificent building during the past summer the patrons of this school have set up a mark of accomplishment that is a challenge to any community in the county.

The work of Prof. Wilson in this school has been of such vital effect that it would not be fitting to close these remarks without giving him due mention. Mr. Wilson went to Maple Springs School seven years ago with one other teacher, 67 pupils, no desks, no blackboards, a very poor building, no school tax to support the school, and very little spirit in the community. It was a dark picture for him, but he had vision of the possibilities of the future. Knowing the people whom he had to work with, he had faith in tem and believed tey would respond to te right kind of leadrship.

During the summer after his first school, the principal, with the aid of some of the loyal patrons, canvassed the district and carried the 3-mill tax for the school. They bought $800 worth of equipment and added the third teacher. Enrollment the next term was 101.

Next year the enrollment reached 121. Next year the fourth teacher was added and the enrollment reached 167. An enrollment of 179 the next year made necessary the building of an additional room. The sixth year enrollment was 191.

During the past summer the present new building was erected, and the status of the school and community was definitely fixed as among the best in Chilton County.

The principal address of the occasion on last Friday was made by Judge L. H. Reynolds. His remarks upon the subject of education and training of young people were very forceful indeed. The Judge has had a wide experience in life, coming up from the lowliest circumstances to occupy for many years the highest position of honor in the gift of his fellow citizens. No one is more capable or more able to discuss the subject of training of young people. His address was full of feeling and was accepted heartily by those who listened to him.

ALABAMA COLLEGE HONOR FOR THE FIRST QUARTER

Fourteen percent of the student body at Alabama College made the honor roll grade for the first quarter, according to a statement issued by Dean T. H. Napier.

Twenty-five students—three percent of the entire body—achieved first honor roll, which means an average grade for the quarter of half A's and half B's. Eleven per cent attained second honor roll, which represents an average of B for the quarter. Miss Ruth Hillman, of Moffet, made an all A record.

The following students from Chilton county are represented on the college honor roll for the first quarter of the year 1927-28 which O. C. Carichael, president says is the most successful year so far in the history of the institution: Mary Scott, Verbena.

MR. J. N. SCOTT WRITES

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to reply to Mr. Lawrence's article published in The Union-Banner two weeks ago, which was in regard to crying over spilt milk. I knew when I saw him last that something was the matter. His eyes were red and seemed to have been running water.

Cheer up, Mr. Lawrence, don't be so much like a baby. There is no spilt milk. The voters of Chilton County have got it all canned up and are going to use it next year to make a crop. I ask that you content yourself and cry no more. Make a servant for the people and don't try to boss so much. Take what the people have entrusted to your care. Don't show special favors to any school—give each one what the State allows them.

The only milq that has ever been spilt has been up at your end of the dairy, and the people of Chilton County have decided to stop that and keep it at home, churn it and give the butter to the children.

Cheer up, Mr. Lawrence; There is no spilt milk; the schools are not hurt. Mr. Graves promised us seven months schools and has made provisions for it. So let the boys and girls alone and let them have the seven months to play ball and other games and have the usual concerts and ..dlers conventions and so on. Don't be crying like a baby just because we did not give you the one-mill tax. If you are going to do that way it would be better for the people of Chilton County for you to resign and let some one have the job that would deal fair and not threaten to cut some of the schools short in the rural districts.

We people of this county have got enough of taxation, and on the tenth of next month we are going to vote down that twenty million dollar bond issue. I want the voters to get ready and be sure to go out to the polls and cast your votes on the 10th of January as you did on the ten amendments the 13th of this month.

Let us give Mr. Lawrence something fresh to cry about. There has got to be a stop to taxation or the poor man is not going to be able to own property. I think now is the time to begin the fight as we have made a fair show during the past few months.

I will conclude by saying that these ignorance drops will give quick relief if everybody will use them as instructed. Yours for less taxes, the same old doctor.—J. N. Scott.

WIFE OF AKIN MIMS DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Sara Lucinda Mims was buried at Collins Chapel cemetery last Sunday afternoon. She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Lawley near Lawley station last Saturday night. The remains were prepared for burial by Martin. The funeral was conducted by Rev. J. H. Roberts.

Mrs. Mims was 69 years of age and was the wife of Akin Mims. They were living at their home in south Alabama up until a month ago, when Mrs. Lawley brought her mother to her home. Mrs. Mims had been sick about three weeks then. Her death is said to have been caused by apoplexy.

SHERIFF DROVE 1,140 MILES TO CATCH NEGRO 'SHINER

A combination of the coldest kind of weather and a negro making liquor in a dense swamp has produced an episode in the experience of Sheriff Collins that will cause him and his deputies to long remember the "Peter Stack Place." It was at that place ,two miles southesast of Stanton that he long cold virgil ended at midnight last Wednesday. Sheriff Collins had made his way to a place where the still was hidden in a gully. A man was there operating the outfit with no light save now and then the rays of a flashlight as he went about his job. Creeping to the edge of the pit the Sheriff, cold and shivering, waited his chance. At the proper time he leaped in, gun in one hand and flashlight in the other, when he saw he had charged a big black negro. The negro made a pass to get away and the officer jumped on him, holding him till Billy Foshee could make his way a hundred yards through the dark swamp to help him out.

It is 30 miles from Clanton to the place where the still was located. The officers made 19 trips in their efforts to catch the operator of the outfit, a total of 1,140 miles. This was perhaps the most difficult case that has come under the attention of Sheriff Collins, and the faithfulness with which he and his deputies stuck to their job would indicate that they are by no means recreant to their duties as enforcers of the law.

The negro whom they caught was Will, alias Dock Bailey, who lives at Dixie. He rode a mule to a place close by his still. He was brought to jail, later being released on bond.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK SMITH OF DENVER, COLORADO HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of Denver, Colorado are the guests of Mr. Smith's mother, Mrs. Mayme C. Smith here for the Christmas holidays.

Several years ago Mr. Smith ran a Candy Store here in the building now occupied by Moatts Brothers, near the Railroad. He is now a traveling salesman for a Jewelry concern in Denver, Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have many friends in Clanton who were glad to see them. They will return to their home in Denver after the Christmas holidays.

THE OUTLOOK FOR 1928

Generally speaking it may be augured that 1928 approaches with better indications for business in Clanton than did 1927. While 1927 has been a good year, yet it has not marked any permanent business expansion as may be hoped for in 1928.

Before many months our farmers will begin to market strawberries; then will come the busy crop cultivating season, when everybody will have plenty of work to do.

During the early spring we are hopeful of seeing the first of Clanton's major industrial plants begin to take definite form, and before the end of the year its operation begin. This is the big fact for Clanton in 1928, which will make the year more interesting in a business way than any year previous.

Gov. Graves Speaking in Favor of School Bonds

WRITTEN BY DAVID HOLT AT REQUEST OF MARK TUCKER

Governor Bibb Graves resumes his speaking tour in favor of the twenty million dollar Bond Issue for school buildings on Wednesday of this week with a speech at Dadeville. He expects to continue speaking for the amendment until the date of the election, January 10. Last week the Governor visited north Alabama speaking in the counties of Cullman, Marshall, Jackson, DeKalb and Cherokee. His message to the voters in the hill counties was that Alabama is going to give the children in the mountains the same chance for an education as the children in the valleys; the same in the country as in the cities. He frankly told them that lengthened school terms and brick school houses will cost money and that the railroads, power companies and other large corporations have had their taxes raised already, so that further increases in taxation will not be necessary to carry out the plan for which the proposed amendment would give means and authorization.

At each of the ten or more towns and cities where the governor spoke he quoted statistics showing that the mountain counties were receiving only enough money from all sources, prior to the passage of the equalization act by the recent legislature, to keep their white schools going on an average of from 95 days to 105 days per year. He showed that the present revenue law gives ample funds for carrying out the legislative act givng to each county in the state a minimum school term of seven months; that this has been done without putting county tax adjusters in the county to raise the farmer's taxes or assessments.

In the battle of life, the Governor said, the trained forces will win, and called attention to the fact that the negro children in Birmingham where most of the opposition to the school building amendment comes from, have better schools and longer school terms than do the white children of the farming sections of Alabama. He did not advocate reducing the schools of the negroes but increasing those of the whites.

Governor Graves referred to the power company and the public service corporations whose taxes have been raised, as "the big mules," which he said had been hitched to the state's wagon and are pulling a part of the load that had been taken off of the back of "Old Beck." He intimated that it had been necessary to get a twist on the noses of the big mules before they could be backed into the harness and that they are now kicking and balking against pulling the load, which he described as a cargo of better schools and public health measures. He said they are trying to defeat this amendment so they can say to the next legislature that the people of this state do not want better schools, or they would have voted for them. That the big mules wish to get back behind the wagon and eat out of the trough while "Old Beck" again takes up the burden of the load. There can be no doubt that the audiences addressed understood these illustrations, for they gave the governor more applause than they are accustomed to giving to public speakers.

At every place where he spoke Governor Graves predicted the success of the amendment at the election of Tuesday, January 10, and referred to those organized to oppose the school extension plan as a small and selfish minority. He said that the public has discovered that much said against the amendment and the public school system has been proven untrue and that many voters now realize they had been deceived by the vast amount of propaganda sent out from Selma by the carloads direct to the individual voters of this state; that the reaction against such efforts to deceive the people has already set in and will bring about the adoption of the amendment by a majority that will leave no doubt as to where the people stand on the questions of building schools and making the "big mules" pay their share of taxes therefor. The governor made quite a point of the statement that those opposing the amendment have never sent to the voters a copy of the amendment, itself, and that many of them have not seen that document except through the distorted vision of Mr. Mallory.

Governor Graves told the people that this administration is not on trial in this case; that he will not have the expenditure of one dollar of the bond issue money, which will be spent by county and city school boards all over the state; that he is not a candidate for any office and has given his promise that he will never run for public office again. He begged his enemies not to shoot at him through the brains of their own children.

Governor Graves speaks at Dadeville Wednesday morning and Alexander City the same evening; Goodwater, Thursday morning, Lineville and Ashland, Friday, and Roanoke Saturday. Next week he expects to visit the Wiregrass region.

WALTER LAMBERT BURIED AT CANE CREEK SUNDAY

Mr. Walter Lambert, age 36, died at his home in Selma last Friday. The remains were brought here Sunday by an undertaker from Selma and buried in Cane Creek cemetery Sunday afternoon. Rev. W. P. Lowery of Thorsby conducted the funeral services.

Mr. Lamert was the son of Will J. Lambert who formerly lived near Cane Creek but for the past few years has been in the lumber business near Maplesville. Walter sustained a broken spine while working underneath a heavy truck last August. The lower part of his body has been paralyzed ever since and he has been absolutely helpless. He has fought valiently through these five months but was unable longer to ward off death that has been gradually creeping upon him since the sad accident last summer.

Besides his father and mother, Walter Lambert leaves a wife and two small children.

ERNEST WILLIAMS HERE FOR CHRISTMAS

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Williams of Albany, Ala., came back to their old home to spend awhile Christmas with their families and friends. Mr. Williams went from here to Albany some years ago and took a position with the Morgan County National Bank. He at once grew into the good graces of the people of his adopted home and was elected a member of the City council, which office he filled with credit to himself and honor to his city.

He wears the same old smile which has always endeared him to many friends here, and his handshake is in unison with a heart that beats with the undying warmth of friendship that grows fonder with the fleeting years.

THANKS PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH FOR PRESENTS

We wish to thank the Presbyterian church of Clanton for the nice Christmas presents given us recently. It was very kind of the church to be so thoughtful to us.—Mrs. Mayme Bates and daughter, Ruby Bates.

NEW BENCHES WILL BE BUILT AT FRIENDSHIP

After preaching at Friendship last Sunday, the report of the Stove committe was heard and accepted. With the exception of a few dollars, the cost of the stove and flue was collected.

The question of the seating of the church was taken up and it was voted that the Moderator appoint a committee to look after the matter. Henry Miller, T. G. Wyatt and H. F. McCary were those appointed to look into the matter and determine the best way to get seats built. The committee is working on a plan and will be ready to make their report to the church in a few days.

No services were held at the church Sunday afternoon or night. Sunday School was held at 10 o'clock, followed by preaching by Rev. M. J. Parrish. Rev. Parrish preached a very timely sermon, giving some very wholesome advice to the members of the church.

TOM OGLETREE HERE X'MAS

Tom Ogletree, printer of Haleyville, was in Clanton last Saturday on his way to Prattville and Wetumpka to spend Christmas with relatives. Several years ago when Mr. Crichton edited The Banner, Tom worked here as a printer. He formed many acquaintance and friendships while here and we are always glad to see him come back this way.

At present he is in charge of the shop of the Haleyville Advertiser-Journal for Mr. Lakeman, the owner. He says he likes Haleyville and Winston County fine and expects to stay there permanently.

MR. MELLON'S PLACE

The Secretary of the United States Treasury has earned a large place in the confidence of his countrymen for the wise guidance he has given to financial affairs in the government at Washington. His annual review submitted with the budget statement, which is mainly an outline of estimates with enlightening comments, will be read with keen interest. With receipts for the past year, ending June 30, of $4,129,384,441, and with an excess of $635,809,921 over all expenditures, he was able to report a reduction in the gross debt from 19,643 millions to 18,510 millions. This compares with a gross federal debt for Canada of $2,774,043,323 on March 31, 1927.

SHOULD WE GET ALARMED?

Sometim a fellow gets up on the housetop, so to speak, and announces to the world that things are going to the bad. Forthwith, someone else passes it up by saying that the fellow just had a brain storm and that there is nothing to it.

We do not believe in raising false alarms and scaring people, but when there is real danger ahead, is it not a good idea for sombody to use his foresight a little and try to get the people to avert the calmaity before it is everlastingly too late?

In this article we are dealing only with Chilton County. We suppose that there are other counties in Alabama and in this country that need to look ahead as much so as Chilton does, but that is their business. If the people of Chilton County keep themselves together and on the right road, we will have done a child's part.

We want to say a few words on the matter of law enforcement. We say it for a fact that the people of Chilton County, generally speaking, have not got the proper respect for the laws of our county, State and nation. There is too little regard for the law to result in our good. Take for instance, the whiskey traffic. There is hardly a rural community in the county but that there are automobiles sizzing back and forth all hours of the night. In many places there is shooting, hollering, and so much general cutting up that the people cannot rest at night.

A good preacher recently said that he believed that Chilton County would have to have more than one Sheriff—that the job was too big for one man. The job is too big for one man, and it is also too big for half a dozen Sheriffs, unless the good people of the county get squarely behind the officers and help them in their efforts to enforce the law.

The bootleggers are running away with Chilton County, and there are too many people being willingly led by them. The bootleggers have too much help. There are too many supposedly "good" men who keep bootleg whiskey in their possession most all the time, who take the front seat at church and Sunday school on Sunday and stay half "stewed" most all the rest of the week. These same men have children growing up—sweet little boys and girls—who will very soon go to imitating "papa." It is natural for boys and girls to do this. A man who disregards the law of the land to the extent that he will patronize the black-hearted bootlegger and indulge in the other dirty things that are always adjuncts to such conduct—we say that such a man as this is not fit to raise children and the country would be safer should such folks become extinct and out of the way.

"No man liveth unto himself." Every man, no matter how small or how large or where he lives, exerts some influence on others. A person can't exist without making some impression on somebody else. People labor under the false impression that they can sin or break the law and that it is nobody else's business. This is the greatest mistake that anyone ever let the devil drive into their heads. If one man breaks a law that law is weakened to an extent. If every man breaks a law that law automatically becomes nonexistent, so you can see the tendency when a large per cent of the people disregard the law. The law loses its purpose and effect.

"It is an alarming fact that it is almost impossible for a jury of twelve men to be gotten in Chilton County who are not themselves guilty of breaking the law." The above is quoted from the sermon of the same good old preacher that we referred to above; and we repeat it as a lamentable yet certain fact.

People are growing too careless. They forget that they are fallible human beings and trust too much in the strength and will power that they haven't got. People can't walk beside the devil without partaking of his iniquitous devilment, because man is not as powerful as the evil one. The devil dosen't grab a man and pull him into his way all at one time, but he takes him by degrees. He pulls a man a little today, a little more tomorrow, and on and on until he gets complete control.

No man ever took a drink of whiskey with the intention of becoming a drunkard. But they say "I am strong enough to hold up myself, and will quit after a while." But the longer one waits, the harder it is to quit. So, the only sensible thing to do is never to start. Be truthful to yourself and to your God. Be fair to your country and to your fellow man. Make yourself fit to be a citizen of a God-fearing country, and live so that your life may be an example for your fellow men to follow. Live as you would have your children live after you; help those who are trying to make the country better and stop donating your money and means to the low-down bootlegger whose heart is as black as night and whose only aim is to send souls into the bottomless pits of hell.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Too much cannot be said nowadays about the importance of party government and party organizations. For the trend in the United States for the past few years has been away from the party government and toward personal and bloc control. Such a trend, if not checked leads ultimately to anarchy, or a dictatorship. During the past few days two distinguished Americans have called attention to the importance of maintaining our party system. In a letter to the Rhode Island Woman's Republican club Secretary Hoover declared that "men and women who believe in government by the people will ally themselves and be willing to render genuine service day in and day out in the maintenance of party organization." The Secretary of Commerce emphasized the importance of party organization and told something of the bloc systems as he had seen them operate in Europe, leading to a destruction of authority and responsibility, and weakening of the democratic goverments in which they are employed.

As an example of the results which follow the abandonment of the two-party system of government Will R. Wood, noted Indians congressman pointed out the fact that one Southern state in the presidential election of 1920 cast only six per cent of its eligible vote. No party rivarly there.

"On the other hand," Mr. Wood continued, "the election figures very clearly demonstrate that the largest percentage of votes is polled in those states where party rivalry is keen. It is a powerful argument for parties and the desirability of strong and active party organizations. For not from individuals and cliques, but from organized national parties, can the people obtain an accounting. Since the need of the growing republic first made evident the desirability of parties and party responsibility, every American citizen who has written his name high upon the scroll of American statesmanship, has been a believer in parties. Abraham Lincoln was a party man who thought and talked and wrote along party lines. In the troubled days prior to that great national convention of 1860 that called him to the immortal service of his country, we find him busy writing to, and conferring with the leaders of the new party about matters of party policy. He was determined that local and sectional issues should not creep into the coming national convention and destroy its purpose to serve the whole country. In his well remembered letter to Schuylr Colfax he warned against the cliques and blocs of his day. In the truer and better sense of the word he was a politician. Through his contact with things political he came better to know men and gauge their purposes, and out of the knowledge so gained, his statesmanship grew."

Here are some interesting and logical statements from two distinguished men. It is true that all our great national leaders, were party men. It is true also that the lack of two great predominating parties in the European republic has handicapped the progress of these republics. For when there are a half-dozen or more quarreling little blocs, instead of two great parties, there is no national responsibility; instead there is greater danger and less chance of progress. Instead of government by the will of the people we have government in such cases, by compromise and intrigue.

Loss of party responsibility in America grew with the growth of the primary. Perhaps the repeal or amendment of the primary system would correct the evil. But at any rate it will have to be corrected if America is to continue its progress.

It's our opinion now, since Lindy blazed the way, that long before there is a good motor road from the United States through to South America, motor roads will be out of date.

No Rest for Father Time

CHRISTMAS THEN AND NOW

In the Banner of 25 years ago the Man on the Corner made the observation that on Tuesday before Christmas the floor of the express office was "literally covered with whiskey jugs." Perhaps many of our readers can remember when we had such Christmases in Clanton and all Chilton County.

No doubt many folks had their "nog" this Christmas, but it was not a wholesale proposition like The Banner man saw 25 years ago.

Nowadays you do not get it by express. You only crank up your flivver and run out into the woods, shake a few bushes and dig into a stump hole, and presently there it is, Coosa County Corn just as mean and full of deviliment as any rye ever brought to Clanton by the Express Company.

We heard it remarked this week that Christmas had been unusually quiet and that little whiskey drinking was in evidence. True perhaps, so far as the evidence is concerned. But we may console ourselves with the almost certain assurance that we merely failed to see the evidence.

There is plenty of liquor being dispensed in our county. We have raised a fine crop of bootleggers and wildcatters during the past year.

What is the matter with our officers? you may ask. We will answer by asking: What is the matter with our citizens? Our officers are doing all they can to enforce the law. They can't be everywhere at the same time. It is physically impossible for our officers to meet the situation fully without the co-operation of the good citizens of the county.

If every good man and good woman in Chilton County would render all the cooperation and assistance they could to the officers in 1928, there would not be enought bootleggers in our County a year from now to make an egg nog.

Pimples, Boils, Skin Eruptions

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin; makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Those Whose Business it is to Know

Lucky Strikes —the finest cigarettes ever made. 11,105✻ doctors give written opinions about smoking and throat protection.

WHAT is the quality that Giovanni Martinelli, Mary Garden, William Hodge, David Belasco, Lenore Ulric, Fiske O'Hara, Blanche Ring, and other famous singers, actors, broadcasters and public speakers have found that makes LUCKY STRIKES delightful and of no possible injury to their voices?

For the answer we turned to medical men and asked them this question:

Do you think from your experience with LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes that they are less irritating to sensitive or tender throats than other cigarettes, whatever the reason?

11,105 ✻ doctors answered this question "YES."

These figures represent the opinion and experience of doctors, those whose business it is to know.

Fiske O'Hara, Pleasing Stage Star, writes:

"The throat is a delicate instrument which all singers protect with the utmost care. To avoid irritation, I smoke Lucky Strikes. They are not only kind to my throat but have the finest flavor."

Approximately 2 MILLION Men and Women are employed by American Railroads

IF EVERY man, woman and child who lives in the four largest cities on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad—St. Louis, Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans—were engaged in one undertaking, it would just about equal the number of employees of the major steam transportation systems of America.

This vast army of capable, well-trained people is constantly working for your personal and community welfare. So great is the detail work required to operate the world's greatest transportation systems, that there are more than 145 different classifications of railroad employees. This Railroad, alone, pays annually the vast sum of $78,000,000.00 to its more than 53,000 employees. These employees are good citizens, good neighbors and good people to know—men and women who, in serving you, are serving themselves, constantly earning promotions and increased incomes.

BLEED THROUGH

A WAVE OF SENTIMENT FOR BONDS IN NORTH ALABAMA

Birmingham, December 26.—A wave of sentiment in favor of the $20,000,000 school bond issue is now sweeping North Alablam, fast undermining the subtle propaganda implanted there one month ago by the "Taxpayers Defense League" which organization threw up a smoke schreen in defense of the taxpayers' money, but which now is put in the position of defending "The League" itself.

The reaction has come with the disclosure of the real "Nigger in the woodpile," which is nothing more than the knowledge of the fact that the "Taxpayers Defense League" is an organiza on financed purely and simply by n ney contributed by the largest corporations in Alabama.

These corporations, it is not necessary to name specifically, but only that they are the same one affected by the last legislature. They are suffering from an unlooked for series of taxes which came from a fearless legislature despite the long program of "education" fostered onto the people of the state through their friendly daily newspapers of Alabama.

They have sought to defeat the school bond issue with but one purpose in view and that is with the defeat of the bonds they can go before the next session of the legislature and demand the repeal of the present corporation taxes on the plea that the state treasury will be overflowing with money.

This reaction has set in everywhere Col. Bibb Graves, Governor of Alabama, has spoken in the last ten days. In other parts of the North Alabama section where the Governor failed to visit other friends of education have exposed the program of the "Taxpayers Defense League" with the same results.

Jasper had heard that the school bond issue would increase taxes, this propaganda having been spread by the league. The governor gave the people there first hand information and a new aspect was placed on the situation. Several days ago the people of Boaz and other communities on Sand Mountain were told of the "Nigger in the woodpile."

Huntsville, Florence, Sheffield, Decatur and Gadsden have awakened to the real forces behind the effort to defeat the bond issue and everywhere the word is being passed that the "League" is trying to tie the hands of the voters of Alabama.

The reaction in North Alabama where the "League" has worked hardest was sure to come, say observers of the situation and the bogie of increased taxation put forward by the agents of the power, rail and transportation companies of the state has vanished into thin air, exposing the real purpose behind the corporations' efforts to destroy the bond issue, and that is the paving of the way to have the taxes on their own plants removed at the next legislature.

FEED MILL PUT IN BY J. A. MADDOX AT CLANTON

In response to a popular demand among the farmers of this section Mr. J. A. Maddox of the Clanton Mill & Gin Company announces that he has installed a mill which is equipped for grinding any kind of feed stuff that may be grown by the farmers of this county. The mill is located at the cotton warehouse of Mr. Maddox. He invites the farmers when in Clanton to come and see the mill at work and investigate the merits of the feed it is capable of making.

This is a distinct advantage for the farmers of this couuty. They can grow any kind of feed stuff they need, and the fact that they can get it ground into commercial feed will make them able to use their home grown feeds to much advantage.

As cited by Mr. Maddox, the dairy business in this county is getting to be of considerable importance. The big item in dairying is the feedstuff they need but they can not use it to the best advantage unless it is milled in the proper shape. This mill will give them the advantage of converting the products of their farms into mixed feed, which Mr. Maddox believes will reduce the feed bill one-third.

We urge the farmers to come to see Mr. Maddox and talk over your feed problems with him.

PLANT TREES NOW

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 26.—The planting of young forest trees is usually the last forestry activity of the year in Alabama, according to the State Commission of Forestry. Most of this work is carried on by farmers although other landowners also take advantage of the convenient season to set out small trees.

Late Fall, winter and early spring comprise the season most favorable to planting. This is chiefly because during this period the young trees are dormant and their life processes are not disturbed materially through being transplanted. In most instances, by the time general warm weather brings about a renewal of growth, the seedlings and transplants have become firmly fixed in their new location. While there is a certain degree of retardation due largely to the necessity of establishing additional root fibers to take the place of the portion lost when the tree was removed from its original site, some growth takes place the first year. Usually by the second year growth proceeds at its normal rate.

Forest planting can be done much more cheaply in the South than elsewhere. This is principally because seedlings can be grown in nurseries so rapidly that many species are ready for planting the first year when but a few months old. This saves the expense of caring for the seedlings over an extended period. Further, fall planting is rendered still more feasible in the South for the reason that there is no danger of the seedlings being heaved by frost after having been transplanted to their permanent location.

A NEW CHEVROLET

Detroit, Dec., 24.—Promising the most spectacular low priced automobile of all time, the Chevrolet Motor Company announced here today that a complete new line of motor cars will be introduced to the Public on January first.

In confirming reports that Chevrolet would very shortly introduce a new car of surpassing interest, W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor Company, declared that the official announcement covering all details of Chevrolet's sensational new product would come Sunday January first. No details will be available until that time he said.

Chevrolet assembly plants have been in production on the new car since Dec. 12. Factories in Flint, Michigan, Tarrytown, N. Y., St. Louis, Mo., Oakland, Cal., Buffalo, N. Y., Janesville, Wis., and Norwood, O., have been humming with activity preparing for the highways the first of the new cars that promise to make motor car history in 1928.

Shipments of the new cars to dealers have been leaving the various assembly plants since December 15 so that the vast country-wide dealer organization may be prepared for the introductory showing next Sunday. Unbridled enthusiasm is being displayed over the new cars by Chevrolet field sales officials, who have been milling into Detroit for private showing of the new line.

Practically every Chevrolet dealer in the United States will have cars ready for public inspection January first. From Bangor, Me., to San Diego and from Miami to Vancouver there will be simultaneous exhibitions of the uew car that has caused so much discussion in the last few months.

This gignatic distribution achievement of supplying thousands of dealers with cars in such a brief space of time was made possible only thru the farseeing policy of the Chevrolet organization and the tremendous resources and productiin facilities of the Chevrolet Motor Company. Never in the history of the industry will so many new models of one make have been placed in dealer's hands in such a limited space of time.

Cars will be ready for the boulevards and highways immediately after the first of the year. Production at the various assembly plants throughout the United States is racing along as fast as precision manufacturing will permit.

Unofficial reports from the Chevrolet offices here say that the new car will embody many improvements in design and construction. New standards of beauty are promised. Easier handling and smoother riding qualities are heralded as some of the outstanding features of the new Chevrolet line.

Many unlooked for changes have been made in the appearance of the car, according to reports, providing the new Chevrolet with a beauty and style appeal, unexampled in the low price field.

Without disclosing details, Chevrolet officials declared that the new cars would embody the results of 13 years experience and prgress in the building of low priced transportation. Lessons learned from millions of miles of testing on the General Motors proving grounds have been brought to bear on the new product, officials declared. In fact all the resources of General Motors have been employed for months to design and build the car that is heralded to be by a wide margin the greatest automobile ever offered by Chevrolet.

More than 5,500 newspapers across the entire country will assist through their advertising columns in broadcasting the announcement, which will take the form of one of the most comprehensive advertising campaigns ever attempted in the automobile industry. Every city, town and hamlet in the country will read the details of the 1928 Chevrolet on New Year's day.

Who's Who In Clanton

W. I. MULLINS

We like to read the stories of the pioneers of the West who were surrounded by romance and adventure, whose dauntless courage and perseverance converted a wild undeveloped country into a land of planty. And we are inclined to over-look the pioneers of our own town who through taking in hazardevous experiences are important nevertheless. It must have taken courage to have settled a sfall town o fseemingly few possibilities and to have expended years of energy until it has become a modern little city located in a good agricultural section and has developed into an important business center.

In thinking of the early settlers of Clanton the name of Mr. W. I. Mullins comes to mind. Mr. Mullins moved to Clanton in 1893 and since that time has given generously of his time and support to every phase of the development of Clanton.

Mr. Mullins, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Arhur Mullins, was born in Shelby County, January 10, 1857. It is interesting to note here that Mr. Mullins' birthplace, two miles west of Lock 12, though a part of Shelby County then was taken into Chilton County in 1868.

Mr. Mullins received his schooling at Mt. Zion church. Later his parents moved on Yellow Leaf Creek. In 1876 Mr. Mullins accepted his first position as clerk at Wells and Mullins at Verbena.

In 1880 he married Miss Alice Wells, daughter of K. Wells, representative of this county in the legislature. A short time after that Mr. Mullins and his bride moved to Kincheon where he went into business for himself.

In 1893 Mr. Mullins visited Clanton and Talledga and decided to locate in Clanton where he opened a general merchandise store in the old Garner building. A few years later Mr. Mullins bought his present location.

For thirty-five years he has carried on a good business in general merchandise, cotton buying and fertilizer. And for thirty-five years Mr. Mullins has stood by Clanton and lent his support to the building of our city. He is one of Clanton's most progressive and influential citizens and is held in high esteem by every one who knows him.

Mr. and Mrs. Mullins and his family mean a great deal to every community in which they live. They are as follows: Mr. Renfroe Mullins, Mrs. J. Watts Moore, and Miss Kathleen Mullins, all of Clanton. Mrs. Amzi Gowan of Brewton and Mr. Bill Mullins of Birmingham.

Mr. Mullins has eleven grandchildren of whom he has just cause to be very proud.

When asked what his first impression of Clanton was, Mr. Mullins answered, "I thought it was a live little place with a good future but its progress has far exceeded my fondest hope." Mr. Mullins continued, "And now the dawn of bright day is just breaking and the star of prosperity is beginning to rise. I have watched Clanton grow from year to year. It has progressed in a business way. Manufacturing interests, building churches and in a literary way its standards and ideals are higher than ever before and Clanton's future is brighter."

With splendid citizens like Mr. Mullins, who is a real booster, Clanton is sure to make great strides toward a big city in the near future.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. NORTON, Manager).

Fred Howard, Perry Bussey and Clarence Marcus returned Saturday night from a fishing trip in Baldwin County waters. They made their headquarters at Thomas Steele's place on Bon Secoura River, seven miles from Foley. At this point tides from the gulf ebb and flow raising the water about two feet at high tide. When cold weather sets in many kinds of salt water fish seek winter quarters in the streams that empty into the Bay or Gulf. Trout, Red Fish, Croakers and Mullets come in schools so dense that many are captured by "snagging" which means with a set of three or more hooks arranged in triangular form with a lead, or other sinker, attached to a line. The hooks and sinker are swung about to give it mometum so that when released it flies far out in the stream and sinks among the fish that are crowded together. No bait is used, but a smart jerk on the line is apt to hook a fish sufficiently to haul it in.

Fishing with hook and line, known in many places as still fishing is called "Nigger Fishing" by the people of that section.

Our friends from Thorsby met up with Hermie Childress, son of the late Alfred Childress, but now a resident of Baldwin County, and making good as a grower of Irish Potatoes and other kinds of truck farming. Mr. Childress accompanied them long enough to see that they were put wise as to the best places and means of fishing which resulted in a catch of over 200 pounds of as fine a table fish as one could wish. We saw a lot and sampled the quality of a sea trout.

The congregational Sunday School Christmas service Sunday night gave the large audience a pleasant hour. The program consisted chiefly of recitations by the young folks and singing familiar Christmas hymns by the chorus. Miss Sadie Shannon as Madonna at the manger made a pleasing picture, and Mrs. Butler told the story of "The Shepherds Children" to a class of little girls seated on the floor before her to which the entire audience listened with interested attention. Over it all was an air of reverence befitting a Christmas religious service.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Goddard and Mrs. Each, accompanied by their sons, Cecil and William, left by auto early Monday morning for West Florida. The Eaches will spend a few days among friends and neighbors at Crestview and vicinity; while Mr. Goddard is takign theatment from a nearby doctor.

Thorsby Public School opens at 8 A. M. Monday, January 2nd.

Misses Nell and Sadie Shannon left Monday for their respective homes, after spending several days with their sister, Mrs. Nels Peterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Soberg expect to leave for their home in Sheboygan, Wisconsin Friday morning of this week.

Thorsby Institute opens at 8:30, A. M. Tuesday, January 3rd.

The Thorsby Christian Endeavor Society will meet for a social on Thursday night of this week at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson entertained Messrs. John and Claud Carlson and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Hanson, at dinner Sunday.

In accordance with a custom for the past several years the Gerald family and the Butler family met with the Nortons for a Christmas gathering. Miss Fairbank was also included in the company at the Norton home Tuesday night.

We visited the new home of D. L. Ward on Jones Street just east of the hotel buliding recently and want to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Ward and her mother, Mrs. Wright, together with the children on having so commodious and pleasant living quarters. The living room with a cheerful grate fire occupies the southwest corner. Next to it on the north comes the dining room. Next to that a cozy breakfast room. The kitchen might well be the envy of any good housekeeper. On the east side of the building at tht front is a guest room, adjacent to it is a room for "The Lord of the Manor." Next to it a room for Robert. Then comes what in most houses would be the back porch, only bigger and completely finished for a sleeping apartment for other members of the household. This is called a sleeping porch. We should say a sleeping parlor. Ample closets flank each of the sleeping apartments and provision is made for heat in every room. Running thru the middle of the house is a wide hall with openings into each of these rooms and terminating at the north end in a spacious and well appointed bath room. A new well just outside provides plenty of pure water which is obtained by an automatic pressure for a hot and cold water system. A pressure boiler at the kitchen range supplies hot water where needed.

All the rooms are large and well lighted and good taste has been shown in the soft shades of light colored decorations. There is a total absence of that which appears cheap or tawdry.

Mr. and Mrs. Yancey M. Kelley and little Audray passed through Thorsby Saturday morning enroute to the home of Mr. Kelly's parents in southeast Alabama. They brought with them from Birmingham Mrs. Herbert Peterson and children to spend Christmas here.

Mr. Walter Morgan, wife and his children of Wylam and Arnold Soberg spent Christmas Eve and Christmas Day with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Soberg.

Messrs. Fitzburgh Martin and Leonard Moody of Birmingham spent a day in Thorsby the past week.

Mr. Bert Bosworth and family of Birmingham spent several days at Christmas here with his brother, Mr. J. M. Bosworth.

Mr. C. R. Peterson, wife and two daughters, Dorothy and Norma are visiting their relatives, the Fosses, Reagans and Bosworths during the holidays.

Mr. Sumner Gerald of Birmingham and Miss Agnes Gerald of Fort Payne are spending their week's vacation witih their mother, Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald.

Mr. W. L. Leary and son Earl from Lock 18 are spending several days at home.

Miss Esther Johnson of Birmingham is at home with her parents for the Christmas week.

Mr. Curtis Billingsley and wife of Ocala, Fla., are here for an extended visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. David Paxson are spending several days with children and grandchildren in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Meade had as their guests for Christmas dinner, Mr. A. M. Johnson, Mrs. Ollie Tagg, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Meade and baby and Earl Meade of Birmingham. After dinner Clyde Meade took the party to Mitchell Dam for a ride.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Barnes and Mr. Martin Nelson were visitors for the Christmas season with Mrs. Barnes' parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nelson.

Mr. Waldermer Lefstead from Andrew, N. C. and Miss Alma Lefstead from Marengo County are home for the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lefstead and son Lawrence Jr., spent Christmas Day at the Lefstead's home.

Mrs. Louis Self of West End spent Christmas Day with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peterson. Walter Peterson of Pensacola is also home for a ten day stay.

Mr. Horace Franklin, Miss Lena and Dorothy Vaughn are spending their vacation at home with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Langville, and two daughters, and Miss Anna Werness were Christmas visitors at Mrs. Maratha Grothery.

The Lutheran Sunday School gave their Christmas Progrem Monday night and all voted it one of the best programs ever given in the church. The church was beautifully decorated and the little folks all did their parts well. A Pantomime of the shepherds and the angels choir singing praises was very effective. Appropriate songs and solos interspersed the program.

Mr. R. L. Parnell of Vredenburgh, Ala., father of Mrs. J. C. Wood, is spending a few days in Thorsby.

Dr. and Mrs. Wood had as their guests Monday Mrs. A. C. Watts of Birmingham; Mrs. Anna Parnell of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. C. S. King, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Franklin.

Rev. Highdon from Pesacola, Fla., preached at the Baptist shurch Sunday evening. Mr. Highdon is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Franklin.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Franklin entertained a few friends at dinner Sunday. Her brother from Deatsville, Mr. and Mrs. E. Davenport, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Davenport, Dr. and Mrs. S. C. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spivey were present.

Rev. Roberts and family were the guests for dinner Monday of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Franklin.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to thank our many friends in Clanton for remembering us so generously on Christmas, for you certainly made our Christmas one of joy.—Mrs. Mary Gwathney and children.

If you didn't do your Christmas shopping early you have nobody to blame but yourself—unless of course you can lay it on the old bank account.

It's going to get after a while that a new senator will have to have his clothes fumigated and his tonsils removed before they will let him inside.

If Oklahoma keeps on cutting political capers Indiana will be getting jealous.

GARDEN LETTER NO. 1

If the hotbeds were not started in December they should be begun at once. Although December is the proper time to start them it is not yet too late. The hartier crops started in December, such as lettuce, cabbage and cauliflower are now ready to be transferred to the cold frames to be hardened off. The hotbeds may then be used for tomatoes, peppers and eggplants. In the coldframes cabbage and other plants can be brought to such state of hardiness as to enable them to withstand cold, except in the most severe cases.

Seed should be bought this month if the supply has not already been secured. Some new vegetables should be tried this year so as to widen the variety used, and this should be considered when the seed are ordered. Be sure to buy sufficient seed to last throughout the season. Oftentimes good seed of the most widely used vegetables become scarce and difficult to get during the summer months. In buying, remember that the garden is to supply the family for twelve months and not just during the spring and summer. This will require more seed and a greater variety.

Manure that is to be applied to the garden should be put on this month and should be worked well into the soil. This will insure its being well rotted by the time of spring planting. A supply of commercial fertilizers should be provided, and especially should some available nitrogenous fertilizer be a part of the general supply. An additional application of nitrogen is a quite often and unforseen necessity.

Strawberries that have not received a good application of fertilizer since the bearing season last spring should have a heavy application now of a complete fertilizer.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

I, J. D. Collins, Sheriff of Chilton County, Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct, and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 10th day of January, 1928, an election will be held at the several polling places within Chilton County, Alabama, for a vote by the qualified electors of Chilton County, Alabama, in the manner and form and places as required by law, upon the following Amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, namely:

Such bonds when issued shall be a direct obligation of the State and for the prompt and faithful payment of the principal and interest thereon, the full faith and credit of the State is hereby irrevocably pledged and such bonds shall be exempt forever from all taxes of every kind. Two Hundred Thousand Dollars of the proceeds of these bonds shall be set aside and expended for the permanent construction and permanent improvement of public school buildings in each county in the State when authorized by appropriate laws passed by the Legislature and the remainder of the proceeds of said bonds shall be set aside and expended for the permanent construction and permanent improvement of the school buildings for the institutions of higher learning, including the normal schools, in this State, when authorized by appropriate laws passed by the Legislature. To create a sinking fund for the prompt and faithful payment of the principal and interest of these bonds and for the construction and improvement of such public schools, one mill of the two and one-half mills ad valorem tax now levied by law for general purposes, is hereby set asde as a fund to be used exclusively for said purpose until the principal and interest of said bonds shall have been paid in full. Nothing herein shall be construed as in anywise authorizing any increase in the rate of taxation now provided for by the Constitution of Alabama.

This, the 8th day of December, 1927.

12-8-4t-ch. J. D. COLLINS,
Sheriff of Chilton County, Ala.
